ST. LOUIS FORWARD OR BACKWARD?

The proposed bond issue represents only 8 per cent of St. Louis' assessed valuation. Its success will mean 100 per cent in the city's progress.

MINERS REJECT GOVERNMENT PLAN OF ARBITRATING THE COAL STRIKE

Counter Proposals Drawn and Submitted to President Harding by Leaders of United Mine Workers Along With Official Notification of Their Action.

VOTE UNANIMOUS BY POLICY COMMITTEE

The Post-Dispatch Bureau,
No. 20 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The United Mine Workers tonight threw down the gauntlet to President Harding. Speaking for both anthracite and bituminous coal miners they flatly rejected his proposal to end the existing strike by arbitration.

As a result of this flat declination the President is faced with the necessity of carrying out his implied threat of yesterday to take over and operate the mines or of accepting a counter proposal submitted with the declination.

The firm refusal came after two short sessions of the Policy Committee today. The union officials, led by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, from the very first strongly opposed acceptance of the arbitration proposal.

Vote of Officials Unanimous.

Lewis, Frank Farrington and one other leader roused the big committee to a frenzy with a fiery denunciation of the proposal to return to work pending an award by an Arbitration Committee, and when the vote was taken a unanimous shout of aye shook the national headquarters of the American Red Cross.

Immediately after this vote was taken, the counter proposals were drawn. Lewis telephoned the White House of the decision, but asked an audience with President Harding to present the counter proposal. The audience was granted and at 4:25 o'clock the committee filed into the executive offices where the President was closeted with Secretary of the Interior Fall and Secretary of Labor Davis.

The audience lasted less than five minutes. The committee filed in and Lewis handed the President the counter proposal. The President, according to those present, hesitated for a moment, as a look of great disappointment flashed over his face. He thanked the committee for their effort and according to a statement issued from the White House tonight added that "he hoped they fully appraised the responsibility they assumed in declining the Government's offer of a means of instant adjustment and the resumption of mining."

White House Statement.

The remainder of the formal White House statement said: "The President met the Policy Committee of the United Mine Workers and received the written declination to accept the voluntary plan proposed for the settlement of the dispute which is responsible for suspended mining activities.

"There will be no announcement of any government plan to relieve the situation until the response of the bituminous operators is received. It is expected to have their report Monday morning."

As the anthracite operators already have accepted the proposal and leaders of the bituminous mine owners indicated their agreement with the principle involved, it is a foregone conclusion that following the meeting of the operators tomorrow they will inform the President of their acceptance.

In making public the declination of the mine workers to accept the proposal President Harding also gave out a lengthy interpretation of the original proposal, which was addressed to A. M. Ogle, President of the National Coal Association, S. D. Warriner, President of the Anthracite Coal Association, and John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America.

Denial From Lewis.

Issuance of this statement brought forth an emphatic denial from Lewis that either he or the mine workers

WILL OF LAWYER, WHO MADE MANY FOR OTHERS, INVALID

Desire to Establish Library for a University Shattered by Court's Decree.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The dream of Benno Loewy, a lawyer, who died in 1919, to establish a Benno Loewy library at Cornell, Johns Hopkins or Leland Stanford, was shattered today when the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court held that although the deceased had drawn hundreds of valid wills for others during his career at the bar, his own was invalid.

The higher court held the document invalid because Loewy did not meet stipulation of the decedent estate law that no person having a wife living shall bequeath more than one-half of his estate, after payment of debts, to a charitable institution. In this case a university was defined as a charitable institution.

The Court set forth that Loewy's estate was valued at $200,000, that the library was worth $65,000, but that it had not yet been accepted by Cornell apparently because the university was waiting to see if the $135,000 endowment fund scheduled to accompany the books would be forthcoming.

URUGUAY FOR LEAGUE OF AMERICAN NATIONS

Proposes That All Countries on This Continent Unite to Prevent Encroachment.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15. — The Government of Uruguay has proposed as a principle to be adopted by the nations attending the fifth pan-American conference to be held in Santiago, Chile, next March "that all countries of the American continent will consider as an encroachment upon their rights an encroachment upon the rights of any one of them inflicted by a non-American Power" and that "such encroachment would give rise to a common and uniform attitude of all nations of America."

Uruguay also has proposed that an American League of Nations be formed to bring about the observance of the principle.

This policy, which would involve a unity in international affairs of the 21 republics of the American continent, was first proposed and initiated by Uruguay during the world war and was intended to bring about the entrance of all the Latin-American countries in the war as an expression of solidarity with the United States.

"The Brum doctrine," as it is called in South America, was launched by President Balta Zar Brum of Uruguay, June 17, 1917, when he proclaimed the benevolent neutrality towards the United States and it constituted the basis of which Uruguay severed its diplomatic relations with Germany on Oct. 7, 1917.

President Brum then declared that no American nation could be or should be hostile or even neutral when one of them was in war against a non-American Power and that an act of aggression committed against one of them should be regarded as committed against all. Several other countries of Latin-America adopted thereafter that policy and followed Uruguay in severing its diplomatic relations with Germany as an act of solidarity with the United States.

SPECTACULAR FIRE DESTROYS NEGRO BAPTIST CHURCH

SHEETS OF FLAME ATTRACT HUNDREDS

The First Free Baptist Church, also called Freewill Baptist Church, at the northeast corner of Garrison and Lucas avenues, owned by a negro congregation, was destroyed by a spectacular fire that was discovered at 8 o'clock last night and burned itself out, despite the efforts of 17 companies and six trucks that responded to a general alarm and played about 20 lines of hose on it for two hours. The structure, once one of the most attractive in the city, was built in 1874.

The blaze, which shot in great sheets high in the air, attracted hundreds of persons in automobiles. Their cars jammed Washington, Locust and Grand boulevards and the other east and west streets near the fire, and scores of policemen and traffic officers had to make way for fire apparatus.

General Alarm Sounded.

The blaze was discovered under the organ loft in the rear of the edifice and an alarm sounded. With the arrival of the first apparatus, a general alarm was sounded. A few minutes later a general alarm for a fire in the metal works at Hall and Branch streets was sounded, 13 engine companies being sent there. This fire was quickly extinguished, and a number of the companies were diverted to the church fire.

The Rev. A. J. Donaldson, pastor, who lives at 3414 Hickory street said the janitor, a negro named Towles, lived with his wife on the third floor, rear, and that Mrs. Towles was alone in the church and said the fire started in an unused closet at the second-story level, near the organ loft.

Explosion Shatters Roof.

In the first half hour the fire, then affecting only the rear of the structure, was seemingly extinguished. Hundreds of spectators had started to leave the scene when there was a crash and a column of flame burst through the roof, as though caused by an explosion. The roof was of slate laid on heavy timber construction and rose in gable shape to a height of about that of a five-story building.

The great rent in the roof rapidly grew larger, and hose lines were hauled upon the roofs of nearby dwellings. Piece by piece the roof gave away. The next 30 minutes completed the ruin and left standing only the four stone walls and part of a charred skeleton framework.

Loss Estimated at $40,000.

Pastor Donaldson estimated the loss to building and contents, including a printing plant in the rear, at $40,000 to $50,000.

The edifice was erected at a cost of $140,000 in 1874 by the congregation of Central Presbyterian Church, now at Delmar boulevard and Clara avenue. A Jewish congregation, sold it to the negroes three years ago for $22,000.

Edwin Kauffman, 27 years old, a fireman with No. 3, Salvage Company, fell over a chair in the church and suffered an injury to his left knee. After being treated at the city hospital he returned to the fire.

$6000 Loss Caused by Fire in Foundry Roof.

A general alarm of fire was caused at 8:05 last night, by a dangerous-looking blaze in the roof of the foundry building of the Lewin Metals Corporation, 1 to 39 Branch street, in a North St. Louis lumber yard neighborhood. The fire, believed to have been caused by an overheated blast furnace, caused damage in the foundry, a two-story brick building, and in the three-story stock building, estimated at $6000. It was extinguished within 40 minutes after the first alarm. Fireman Fred Bergman of Engine Co. 13, who was cut on the face and shoulder by broken glass, was sent home.

LAD IS ILL FROM TETANUS

Joseph Deluca, 15, Is in a Serious Condition From July 4th Wound.

Joseph Deluca, 15 years old, of 811 Carr street, was taken to the city hospital last night, in a serious condition from tetanus. He wounded himself in the left hand with a blank cartridge pistol, on the Fourth of July, and the proper treatment was delayed beyond the point of safety.

$10,000 Brooch Is Lost at Ball by Countess Beatty

Robbery Is One of a Series in Which More Than $500,000 in Gems Have Been Stolen or Mysteriously Have Disappeared.

By JAMES M. TUOHY.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20 Cockspur st., London, S. W.

LONDON, July 15.—Countess Beatty, one of the best known titled American women of England, whose husband, Earl Beatty, is first sea lord, lost a diamond brooch valued at $10,000 during the ball given Thursday evening by Mrs. Marshall Field. The ball was one of the most brilliant functions of the present London season and among the guests were the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York. Countess Beatty lent Mall House, the official residence of the first sea lord to Mrs. Marshall Field for the ball given in honor of Miss Gwendolin Field. Countess Beatty was Ethel Field, daughter of the great Chicago merchant.

The first that was heard of the sensational jewel loss was the announcement today that 200 pounds (sterling) would be paid for the return of the brooch. Previously to the brilliant function at Mall House, Countess Beatty gave a dinner at Hanover Lodge, Regents Park, London, the home of Earl and Countess Beatty. Jewels worn that night were worth a king's ransom. Among the 350 guests were Miss Edwina Ashley, said to be the richest peeress in England and her fiance, Lord Mountbatton, who will be married next Tuesday, when the Prince of Wales will be best man.

It was not until three o'clock that Countess Beatty missed the diamond brooch which she was wearing in her corsage. There were detectives present and when she notified them of her loss an immediate search of the premises was made. The belief is that some expert crook is responsible for the job. In recent months jewels to the value of more than $500,000 have been stolen in the British capital and during the present season a number of valuable brooches have mysteriously disappeared.

Because of illness Countess Beatty did not do much entertaining last year. It was only after undergoing auto-suggestion treatment under M. Coue, of Nancy, that she again became one of the most active London hostesses. She and several other American women were instrumental in bringing Coue to London. Many society women since then have attributed the restoration of their health to Coue's auto-suggestion treatment.

At the first big ball given by Princess Mary after returning to London from her honeymoon, the Princess, herself, found a valuable piece of jewelry dropped in the hall room of her home, Chesterfield House, and returned it to its owner the next day.

$60,000 VERDICT TAKEN FROM CHILD WHO LOST HANDS

They Were Amputated by Truck When She Was Making Mud-Pies.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Because of a dispute as to whether the American Express Co. or Talbot & McKeon controlled the automobile truck which, on Sept. 8, 1920, amputated the hands of Rose Cattini, the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court today took away the $60,000 a jury in the Supreme Court awarded her and dismissed her action.

Rose lives with her parents on West Fiftieth street. She is almost 9 now, and every passing week brings fuller realization of what the loss of her hands means to her.

There was rejoicing in the Cattini home last fall when Rose's verdict, the largest ever awarded in this State as damages for injury to a child, was announced by the foreman of the jury that heard her testimony and saw the little empty sleeves.

The American Express Co. appealed from the verdict and advanced the same argument it had advanced on the trial—that it did not own the automobile truck which ran over Rose's hands as she knelt making mud pies, but merely had engaged it to deliver goods.

"I think the only reasonable construction of the testimony," wrote Supreme Court Justice Laughlin in the majority opinion, "is that the American Express Co. did not become the master of the chauffeurs at any time, though given authority to suspend them from the contract work whenever it became dissatisfied with the manner in which they were performing it."

In the case of such suspension, he pointed out, their employers were at liberty to assign them to other work and thus retained control over them.

KINGS AND QUEENS TO WELCOME VETERANS BACK TO EUROPE

American Ex-Service Men Also Will Be Received by French President on Battlefield Pilgrimage.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Kings and Queens of two European countries and the President of another, with his wife, will officially welcome the group of American ex-service men who leave Aug. 5 for their annual pilgrimage to overseas battlefields, the American Legion announced today.

The party, which will go to Paris after landing at Cherbourg, will be received by President and Mme. Millerand at the executive mansion, and a state dinner, presided over by Premier Poincare, with Marshals Foch, Joffre and Petain in attendance, will follow.

From Paris the legionaires will jump to Brussels, where King Albert and Queen Elizabeth will receive them and the Royal National Grand Opera Company will give a special performance in their honor.

Following tours of the Flanders battlefields, the party will go to London, where King George and Queen Mary have arranged a royal reception. Premier Lloyd George, Field Marshal Haig and Admiral Beatty will be among the notables who will sit at the official banquet.

Triplets Tagged "A, B, C," Pending Name Choosing

MR. AND MRS. THAD H. TAYLOR, 1458 Shawmut place, hoped it would be a girl and had decided that if it was they would name it Dixie. The delighted Mr. Taylor learned when he hurried to the hospital yesterday that he was the father of triplets, all girls.

The three Dixies were born at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium. The mother and the triplets were reported last night to be doing nicely.

Taylor is a switchman in the Burlington yards, East St. Louis. Mrs. Taylor was formerly a nurse at the sanitarium. Each is 21 years old. So far as either knows there have never been twins on either side of the family, not to mention triplets.

Pending a consultation about names for the two not expected, the three have been tagged A, B and C.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN SUFFERED AMNESIA AFTER BEATING

Miss Helen Greiner Rendered Unconscious by Blows of New York Taxicab Driver.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 15.—A woman found suffering from amnesia on Staten Island Thursday, as a result of a terrific beating, regained her memory today and said she was Helen Greiner of St. Louis.

Miss Greiner, who came to New York with her brother, a cattle buyer, said she had been beaten unconscious by a taxicab driver when she refused to pay what she considered an excessive fare for taking her to the wrong destination. Miss Greiner has been sent to Bellevue Hospital. Her talk is incoherent and disconnected. Her brother was expected to visit her at Bellevue, but had not appeared tonight.

TEMPERANCE INVESTIGATOR FINDS TWO DRUNKS IN U. S.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 15—Dr. Robert Herrod, of Switzerland, director of the International Temperance Bureau, who has been in the United States investigating conditions under the prohibition law, saw only two intoxicated persons, during a tour of the nation, he declared today before sailing for home. One of these was in New York, and the other in Butte, Mont.

Dr. Herrod, who will report to the governments of Norway, Sweden, Finland, Denmark, Jugo-Slavia, Bulgaria and other countries, declared that on the whole he had found social and street life in America "a hundred times cleaner and more decent than in Europe." "The Bowery in New York compares with Whitechapel in London, as heaven compares with hell," he said.

TWO KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS BUGGY AT CROSSING

By the Associated Press.

JONESBORO, Ill., July 15.—Miss Carrie Ury and her brother were killed on a crossing two miles south of here today when their buggy was struck by a Mobile & Ohio passenger train, the same train which eight days ago caused the death of a man and woman near Murphysboro, Ill.

FAMOUS DESIGNER AND WIFE FOUND SLAIN IN HOME

DEATH PACT AGREED TO, FRIENDS BELIEVE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DAYTON, O., July 15.—Friends here tonight speculated on the motive back of the dual tragedy in which James H. Horne, 61, designer of the Pioneer Limited on the C. M. & St. P. Railroad, and his wife, Sadie, were the victims.

Some profess to believe that Mrs. Horne shot herself first and that Mr. Horne then killed himself. Others are of the opinion that Mr. and Mrs. Horne entered into a murder and suicide compact.

Letters Indicated Agreement.

This theory is based on one of three letters which were found in the room in which the two died at 5:30 this morning. The letters were written July 11, indicating that an agreement had been entered into at least four days and probably more, before the tragic climax, which was discovered at 7 a. m., an hour and a half after two shots and then a third, were heard.

Horne was one of the greatest car designers in the country, friends who know of his professional career said tonight. He was a native of London and a graduate of the Kensington School of Designing. He came to the United States in 1882 and took charge of car building and designing for the Canadian Pacific. In 1888 he became the designer for the Barney-Smith Car Co. in Dayton. This position he held for 27 years, and became the general superintendent, which position he held for four years and then retired.

Motive Uncertain.

Inquiry at banks showed that he was not in any serious financial difficulty. In the absence of any other motive, it is believed the one feared the other would die and the survivor dreaded the future alone.

Surrounded by every luxury money could buy, the bodies were found in a bed chamber of their sumptuous home by a maid.

Coroner E. E. Kimmel, who conducted an investigation, said the double death undoubtedly was the carrying out of a pact formulated by the couple more than a week ago. This belief is based on a letter addressed to Mrs. J. A. Prentess, sister of the dead woman, in care of William Wheatly, Laurel Hill Farm, Warren, Conn.

The instrument used in carrying out the well-formulated death plan was a 38-caliber revolver. One bullet had been sent into Mrs. Horne's left temple, while another had drilled its way into her left chest just below the heart. A third bullet had been directed into Horne's right temple.

The death chamber was in perfect order, with every piece of tasteful furniture and every fixture in its proper place. Clad in her night clothes, Mrs. Horne was lying on the side of the bed toward the windows and farthest from the door.

Horne's body was lying on its back on the floor, with the head about 18 inches from the door, and the feet extending a few inches under the side of the bed.

A package of three addressed letters was found on the dressing table in the bed chamber. One was addressed to C. L. G. Breene, local tailor, who had been an intimate friend of the family for several years. The other two were addressed to Mrs. Robert Johnson, 116 Joe street, Dayton, a former maid, and Mrs. Prentess, a sister of Mrs. Horne. With the letter was a note, written in ink dated July 11, and signed "J. H. Horne." It read, "Please mail at once." The note to Mrs. Johnson contained the request that she dress the body of Mrs. Horne for burial.

The letter to Mr. Breene, as well as the one to Mrs. Prentess, contained the appointment of Breene as administrator of the estate.

Mrs. Prentess' letter was opened by Coroner Kimmel to determine if it contained any information that might indicate that the couple had met death by means other than of suicide agreement. In part, the letter read: "Our dear sister Lide. My dearly beloved wife, Sadie, and I, will have passed out of this world by the time this reaches you. I know this will be a sad blow to you, but neither of us can leave this world without the other."

UNION HEAD URGES PRESIDENT TO CALL A MEETING WITH ROADS

PRESIDENT SAYS HE DID NOT KNOW RAILWAYS HAD IGNORED BOARD'S ORDERS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15.

THE statement issued at the White House today, after the railway maintenance men's chief had conferred with the President, said:

"E. F. Grable, president of the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes and Railway Shop Laborers, and Fred L. Feick, legislative representative of the same organization, spent two hours this morning in conference with the President on the strike situation. They brought to the President the first personal and official protest that the railway managers were ignoring the decisions of the Railroad Labor Board and presented their objections to the decisions of the board relating to the appeals of that brotherhood.

"The President gave the fullest possible hearing and assured Messrs. Grable and Feick that they had taken the one defensible course in presenting their case.

"He assured them that, inasmuch as Congress has constituted the railroad Labor Board for the express purpose of settling disputes and preventing interruptions to transportation, all decisions must be accepted by employers and employes alike, and assured them also that noncompliance on the part of the railways had not been brought to his attention until the strike was called.

"He explained that any inadequacy in the law must be corrected by Congress and cannot be effected by interrupting railway operations.

"Messrs. Grable and Feick expressed a hope for an early settlement and declared that the proper conferences would end in such a settlement. The President assured them that every possible conference was being sought."

LIQUOR GRAFT CHARGED TO EX-REVENUE MAN

Former Chicago U. S. Collector and a Politician Reported in $500,000 Conspiracy.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 15.—Harry W. Mager, former Collector of Internal Revenue at Chicago and Benjamin Mitchell, former member of the State Legislature and widely known figure in State politics, were taken into custody tonight by Government agents in connection with an investigation of "booze graft" totaling more than $500,000. Warrants were served on the two charged extortion and conspiracy to extort.

Based on a two-year investigation conducted by Col. Arthur C. Earnshaw, chief of the special intelligence unit, and Special Intelligence Agents Patrick J. Roche and James J. Donovan, it was declared that evidence was obtained that thousands of dollars had been collected in connection with the enforcement of the prohibition law.

Fifteen prohibition agents and former agents, a former high Government official and three former Assistant District Attorneys it was said, would be named in evidence to be submitted to a special grand jury. Explanations also will be sought from two former Congressmen, according to a Government agent.

Mager and Mitchell were released on $5000 bonds each after having been arraigned before United States Commissioner Lewis F. Mason. Neither would make a statement, but both, denied all knowledge of any illegal practices on their part or that of their friends.

The investigation, Federal agents asserted, broke up a ring that has collected hundreds of thousands of dollars in connection with the enforcement of the prohibition law.

E. F. Grable of Maintenance Men's Brotherhood Says, After Conference With Harding, That Parley Is Only Way to Ease Situation, "Which Is Acute."

DATA GIVEN TO NATION'S EXECUTIVE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—President Harding personally intervened today in the railroad shop strike situation, but the success of his efforts to remedy conditions, now admitted generally by Government officials to be serious, will remain undetermined until early next week when the officers of the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes and Shop Laborers meet in Detroit.

The President for two hours discussed the strike situation with E. F. Grable, chief of the maintenance of way employes' organization, who came to Washington from Chicago for the conference, and with Fred L. Feick, executive representative of the same organization.

As the result of this conference, as announced in a White House statement, the President received for the first time direct information as to the workers' side of the controversy and was afforded an opportunity to present direct to a recognized representative of the employes the position of the Government.

Brotherhood Heads to Meet.

Another result, announced after the conference by Grable, consists of a call for a meeting the first of next week in Detroit of the grand officers of the maintenance of way brotherhood to decide on a policy, presumably on whether that organization shall continue to withhold the authorized strike order or whether it shall allow its members to join the striking shop craft workers.

While the conference between the President and Grable and Feick was in progress, Senator Cummins, Republican, of Iowa, announced that hearings would be started soon by the Senate Interstate Commerce Commission to initiate revision of the transportation act so as to remedy faults which have been shown to exist through development of the present troubled railroad labor situation.

Living Wage to Be Guaranteed.

Senator Cummins indicated that the first effort would be to amend the statute so as to guarantee a fair living wage to railroad workers, and a second endeavor would be to provide penalties for violation either by railroads or by workers of the orders of the Railroad Labor Board. The latter, however, will not be attempted during the present strike.

Postmaster-General Work announced the beginning of motor truck transportation of mails, the new method having been instituted between Bedford and Switz City, Ind., between which two points all mail trains have been annulled on account of the strike.

Statement by Grable.

Before departing for Detroit, and after announcing the call for a meeting of his organization's officers, Grable had this to say as to his conference with the President:

"Our primary reason for seeing the President was to impress upon him the necessity of calling a conference between Mr. Jewell and the railroad executives in order to stop the spread of the strike. We feel that this is the only way to ease the situation, and I believe it would be effective.

"The situation has become acute all over the country, and we laid before the President a lot of facts, many of which he said had never come to his attention."

Grable expressed dissatisfaction that President Harding had not earlier directed the Labor Board toward an agreement between the employes and the railroads.

"He is not reluctant to tell the Senate and the House of Representatives what to do, but has not so di-

DYE EMBARGO IS STRICKEN FROM THE TARIFF BILL

CONTROVERSY IS NOT ENDED, HOWEVER

Jersey Senator Announces He Will Offer Provisions Anew After Report From Committee of the Whole.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Dye manufacturers of the country failed today in the fourth phase of their long fight to have the existing dye embargo and licensing system continued after the coming into force of the administration tariff bill. The Senate, voting 38 to 32, struck out provisions of that measure under which the embargo would have been continued for one year and might have been extended for any part of an additional year at the direction of the President.

This does not end, however, what has come to be a bitter controversy in Congress. Senator Frelinghuysen, Republican, New Jersey, announced he would offer the embargo provision anew after the tariff had been reported to the Senate from the Committee of the Whole. Meantime Senator Bursum, Republican, New Mexico is preparing an amendment containing the embargo system for a year more, but with a provision requiring that the profits of the dye manufacturers in excess of 10 per cent be paid into the Federal treasury.

The Roll Call Vote.

The roll call today on the embargo amendment follows:

For the embargo:

Republicans—Ball, Brandegee, Bursum, Calder, Curtis, Dupont, Edge, Ernest, Fernald, France, Frelinghuysen, Gooding, Hale, Jones of Washington, Ladd, Lenroot, Lodge, McCumber, McKinley, McLean, McNary, New, Oddie, Pepper, Phipps, Rawson, Shortridge, Sterling, Townsend, Warren, Watson of Indiana, and Willis—32.

Several Changed Attitude.

A number of those voting against the embargo today supported it a year ago, when the present act was passed, but explained that they believed the necessity for a law had ceased to exist. On the other hand, Senators supporting the Finance Committee amendment contended that an embargo is necessary to protect not only the dye industry but also to insure the perpetuity of the chemical industry as a means of national defense.

Explaining today his proposed amendment, Senator Bursum said privately that his interest was in the national defense phase of the question and asserted his belief that so long as Great Britain, Italy and Japan continued their dye embargo the United States should do likewise.

House Took Similar Action.

A provision to continue the dye embargo was contained in the tariff bill as reported by the House Ways and Means Committee, but the House struck it out after a fight led by Representative Frear, Republican, Wisconsin. The Senate Finance Committee majority, after long discussion, reinstated the provision in a much modified form.

After disposing of the dye question, the Senate returned to consideration of the cotton schedule approving a minimum duty of 20 per cent ad valorem and a maximum duty of 35 per cent ad valorem on cotton sewing thread. Originally the committee majority proposed 25 per cent and 45 per cent, respectively, but receded from those figures.

Opposing the duties approved, Senator Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, charged that English and American manufacturers of cotton thread had the "most perfect monopoly" of the world trade in sewing cotton known in history. He said the domestic manufacturers were making huge profits and that the Senate was not justified in approving any rate in excess of the 15 per cent ad valorem in the existing tariff law.

With Senators Lenroot, Republican, Wisconsin; Simmons, Democrat, North Carolina, and Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, leading a fight to that end, the committee majority agreed to and the Senate approved reductions in proposed duties on cotton cloths so as to keep them in line with the general reductions made by the Senate in the duties on yarns entering into such cloths.

Cotton cloth printed, dyed or woven figured, containing yarns not in excess of number 80, would bear a minimum of 15 per cent, and that containing yarns in excess of number 80 would bear a minimum of 40 per cent.

McCormick, in High Spirits, Sails for Europe

Former Harvester Company Head Forgets Passports and Nearly Misses Ship.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Harold F. McCormick, former president of the International Harvester Co. of Chicago, capitalist and clubman, sailed for Europe today on the Olympic of the White Star Line. His daughter, Mathilde, reported engaged to Max Oser, the Swiss riding master, did not sail and her father assured reporters that the girl was still in Chicago.

McCormick was a much perturbed individual up to five minutes before sailing time. In the hurry leaving Chicago he left his passports behind. The wires were made hot and the passports were shipped by special messenger on the Twentieth Century Limited, the carrier arriving just five minutes before the gangplanks of the Olympic were dropped. In case the passports had not arrived, arrangements had been made through the French consulate in this city to permit McCormick to land in Cherbourg and to remain there until the arrival of his passports on the steamship Kroonland, the next available ship. This would have meant his remaining in Cherbourg at least two days.

Poor Accommodations.

Booking at the last minute, McCormick had to be satisfied with one of the least desirable of first-class staterooms, E-64. It was said on shipboard, however, that an effort would be made after the ship sailed to secure better accommodations for the millionaire clubman and opera devotee.

There were several things he would not discuss, politely requesting the newspaper men to refrain from mentioning them. They were Ganna Walska, the Polish singer to whom he is reported engaged, and who is now in Europe; another his recent operation where he was given a new gland, and his daughter's reported engagement and his own matrimonial affairs.

He looked the picture of health, was rugged, with a lively springy step, and gripped the hands of the reporters with the energy of a longshoreman. He appeared to be in better physical shape than he has been for months.

Going on Pleasure Trip.

As to the purpose of his visit abroad at this time, he was reticent, saying he was going purely on a pleasure trip and would be away probably several months. He planned to disembark at Cherbourg.

While the capitalist was talking with reporters George McFadden of Philadelphia, an old friend, approached. Neither knew the other was sailing.

"Hello, Hal," said McFadden, "sailing?"

"Yes," replied McCormick, "If I ever get my passports."

"Don't you talk too much to those newspaper men," advised McFadden, laughing at McCormick. As the interview developed it became plain that the advice was unnecessary. Officers of the Olympic said that McCormick boarded the vessel very early in the morning, having breakfast on board. The financial backer of the Chicago Opera Co. assured reporters that he had not lost interest in opera.

MINERS REJECT GOVERNMENT PLAN OF ARBITRATION

had ever received the interpretations and th workers, of whom he is the leader "did not know of these interpretations," Lewis declined to say whether or not previous knowledge of the interpretations would have affected the decision of the policy committee.

Members of the committee, however, intimated strongly that advance knowledge would have had no effect because the President's interpretation distinctively states that "these definite interpretations do not in any way modify the original proposal, but will serve to clarify such doubts of construction as have been expressed, and leave no possibility of misunderstanding."

Declination of the mine workers to accept the proposal came just on the heels of a three hour conference between President Harding and Secretaries Hoover, Fall and Davis, devoted entirely, it was said, to a discussion of the coal situation and the probable Government attitude in the event of rejection of the arbitration plan.

Secretary Hoover had left the White House just a few minutes before the President was notified of the rejection by the mine workers to attend a conference at the Senate to explain to Senators from Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and Indiana the exact status of the coal strike. The conference had been in session only a few minutes when word of the action of the miners reached the conferees, and was immediately adjourned, the Senators expressing the opinion that President Harding had taken the right attitude in offering arbitration.

The primary reason of the Policy Committee for rejection of the proposal is that 'the combination of a scientific investigation commission with a wage arbitration board is bad" and the declaration that nearby 50 per cent of the operators in strike fields are not represented in Washington and that "these interests have no intention of coming within the purview of your plan of adjustment."

"Under such circumstances," continues the letter, "it is futile to believe that any general settlement can be made. It is manifestly unfair to attempt to exact from the mine workers' representatives commitment to an arbitration plan while at the same time powerful operating interests employing hundreds of thousands of men now on strike are left free to follow their own selfish impulses and escape responsibility in the premises."

It is insisted that the proposed plan would bring about only a partial settlement and that it would leave "the public to be embarrassed and industry further dislocated by a continuance of the strike situation in vast coal-producing areas."

View as to Investigation.

The letter goes fully into the alleged necessity for a thorough and scientific investigation of the whole coal mining industry; makes the charge that anthracite operators are mulcting the public; asserts that the completion of work by such a commission and application of reforms is an essential preliminary and necessary prerequisite to any attempt to adjust wages, points out that two years have passed since the last arbitration commission and none of the recommendations made have been put into effect.

"The mine workers," it continues, "are alive to the necessity of immediate resumption of operations," recognizes that coal stocks are so low there is danger of a serious coal shortage and declares that 'there is every moral and economic reason for a termination of the present strike."

"The only effective way, at the present time, to escape the industrial and domestic catastrophe which these operators have thus made imminent is for them to measure up to the requirements of honor and good faith by meeting with our representatives in interstate conference," the letter states.

The President was told that the mine workers represent the human factor in the coal industry, and "human consideration should take precedence over all others." It adds that "we submit, and feel confident that you will agree with us, that the mine workers should not be responsible for all the alleged ills and maladjustments of a diseased industry."

Concluding Declaration.

The letter concludes with the declaration that each year "2500 of our men die and countless numbers suffer injury in order that society might be provided with fuel," and nsists that the hazard of the calling should be given every consideration and compensation paid in accordance with skill as artisans, laboriousness of toil and the degree of personal danger encountered.

"For a period of 15 weeks," the President is told, "they have been deprived of their means of livelihood. They have suffered and have seen their wives and children suffer. Thousands have been evicted from their homes and they have bravely endured every discomfort and personal sacrifice.

"They cannot now lightly forego the fruits of their struggle and every dictate of humanity requires that they should be treated with that consideration due them. The public interest as well as that of the mine workers require that their material wants be provided, and their pride as citizens maintained."

Conference of Senators Broken Up.

A conference at the Capitol of Senators of the competitive coal fields with Secretary of Commerce Hoover was abruptly broken up by a telephone message from the White House announcing that the miners refused to arbitrate.

Senator Pepper, Republican, Pennsylvania, called the meeting following a visit to Hoover at his office. The original plan was to keep it secret. Only the States of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana were represented. Senator Pepper said the reason was that the situation seems to be most serious in the central competitive field. Some irritation and misunderstanding was experienced by Senators of other coal producing States until they were informed that the meeting was intended only that the Senators from the sections most concerned might be better advised.

When the message came from the White House the Senators present with virtual unanimity indorsed the position taken by the executive in behalf of arbitration and adjourned. It was stated that no further conferences, legislation or investigations are planned.

"The executive has had charge of this matter and our conference was simply sounding out sentiment as to whether we ould support the President," Senator Pepper said.

INTERPRETATION OF STRIKE ARBITRATION PLAN BY PRESIDENT

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—In a communication addressed to leaders of the operators and miners, President Harding placed interpretation on certain phases of the arbitration proposal which he offered last Monday as a means of terminating the coal strike. The interpretation, the President stated, "doesn't" in any way modify the original proposal but will serve to clarify such doubts of construction as have been expressed and leave no possibility of misunderstanding."

The President's communication follows:

"To A. M. Ogle, president of the National Coal Association:

"To John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America:

"Since I tendered to you in a joint session at the executixe office on Monday, July 10, certain proposals for the arbitration of the coal dispute and since there have been numerous inquiries and several informal conferences in the intervening time, aimed at clearer understanding, I have thought it desirable to place before you, in writing, such interpretation on the general proposal as I have sought informally and in verbal statements to convey. These definite interpretations do not in any way modify the original proposal but will serve to clarify such doubts of construction as have been expressed and leave no possibility of misunderstanding.

Three Stages Contemplated.

"The program contemplates three successive stages as follows:

"1. That the mine workers return to work under the same terms and conditions as those which governed each case on last March 31, this includes the check-off.

"2. It is the intent that the temporary arrangement above shall remain in force only during the shortest period that may be required for a determination of terms and conditions of labor for the period ending March 1, 1923. I have emphasized this by suggesting that the wage scale shall be determined by Aug. 10, 1922, with authority in the commission to extend that period by such number of days as may be required.

"3. That the commission in recommending an establishment for maintenance of industrial peace in the coal industry will be expected to bring in such recommendations in time to allow for their use in the settlement of relations after the first of March, 1923. They are to be recommendatory and not binding.

"The President will ask of Congress as soon as the House is reconvened in August for a grant to the commission of the necessary legal powers to make an exhaustive inquiry into the coal industry in order to acquire the needed information upon which to formulate plans to avoid future suspension of production.

Commitment to Plan Explained.

"In order to clarify what shall constitute a commitment to the plan I have proposed, let it be understood that, as to the bituminous fields, the basis of agreement in national disputes has hitherto been agreements between the United Mine Workers with operators in the central competitive fields. Therefore the acceptance of this offer by the United Mine Workers and by the operators shall be deemed complete and binding when United Mine Workers and the operators, parties to the central competitive field agreement, which expired on March 31, have accepted it. The other bituminous mines, which are now idle because of strike or suspended operation are expected to adhere to the plan and comply with the decisions of the commission, but their action in no way affects the validity of the agreement to the plan.

"In the anthracite fields the acceptance of this offer by the United Mine Workers on one side and the Anthracite Operators' Association on the other, shall render it effective. If the mine workers and operators agree there shall be a separate commission.

"It is understood that all decisions by the commission must be reached by a majority vote thereof and all decisions shall be binding to all parties to the agreement until March 1, 1923."

RECRUITING DEPUTIES HARD, "KATY" SAYS

Road Tells Hyde There Is Fear at Hannibal Strikers Will Attack From Bluffs.

The Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad telegraphed Gov. Hyde yesterday that difficulty was being experienced in recruiting deputy marshals for its property at Hannibal and that "troops would relieve the situation." The "Katy" has no employes at Hannibal now, except a few guards, as all Hannibal trains were discontinued last week. Fear that strike sympathtizers could attack them from the high bluffs overlooking the M.-K.-T. tracks at Hannibal is making it difficult to get guards, officials say. A mixed train, put on to run between Moberly and New Franklin, is now the only service on the Hannibal-New Franklin division.

Clerks of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad, members of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, yesterday entered into a new agreement with the company that provides for an average wage slightly higher than that fixed by the Railroad Labor Board, which went into effect July 1. The new agreement makes more remote a strike of clerks on the "Katy" system, as the new contract requires 30 days' notice for termination. About 2700 clerks are affected.

Clerks on some railroads throughout the country, including those employed in East St. Louis, have been voting on a question of striking in protest against the cut authorized by the Railroad Labor Board, but the "Katy" clerks entered negotiations for an adjusted wage scale instead. A. J. Pickett, chairman of the union, and W. E. Williams, general manager of the railroad, had been in conference for a week.

Certain adjustments in salaries were agreed on, some being reduced to the level authorized by the Railroad Labor Board and others increased on the basis of length of service and the degree of skill required, bringing the average wage to 55 cents an hour, as compared with 40 cents before the war and the 62 cents an hour maximum that was reduced by the Labor Board.

Rail Union Head Gives Harding Strike Data

Action Against Road Under Missouri Law Against Importing Strike Guards

HANNIBAL, Mo., July 15.

WHAT is said to be the first action in Missouri under the State law prohibiting importation of men from another state for strike duty was brought here today when Prosecuting Attorney Roy Hamlin filed an information against the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, charging the bringing of six men from Iowa to guard the company's shops and property here.

This action followed the arrest of S. J. Chesman of Keokuk, Ia., this morning after he had drawn a revolver on a police officer.

Attorneys for the railroad company represented the man in court today and will fight both cases.

ROADS REFUSE TO MEET UNIONS WHILE STRIKE CONTINUES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 15.—The third week of the railway shopmen's strike opened today with peace negotiations practically at a standstill following yesterday's separate conference between rail executives, union heads and Railroad Labor Board members, when the differences were described as "fundamental." Western carriers tonight issued a virtual ultimatum to the strikers, asserting that they would not agree to any plan inconsistent with decisions of the Labor Board and would not confer with the strikers while the walkout continues.

The statement issued by the Western Presidents' Committee on Public Relations placed responsibility for the continuance of the strike on strike leaders and apparently left but one course open for a settlement.

The executives, the statement said, "are perfectly willing to attend any meeting or participate in any hearing called by the Labor Board with a view to effecting a settlement that would not nullify but uphold and carry out the board's decisions."

Plan to Reopen Shops.

Virtually abandoning hope of an early settlement, many roads, according to a Labor Board official, are prepared to make a determined effort to reopen their shops the first of the week with nonunion employes.

With the carriers apparently determined to maintain traffic as nearly normal as possible, the ranks of the strikers are expected to be augmented Monday by a walkout of stationary firemen and oilers, while at Cleveland several hundred members of American Federation of Railroad Workers have voted to walk out the first of the week.

After a conference with President Harding today, E. F. Grable, head of the maintenance of way organization, said there was no prospect of an immediate authorization of a strike of his 400,000 men, but added that 48 hours might change the situation.

Chicago, the hub of the strike, was quiet today.

Other Developments.

B. M. Jewell announced he would have nothing to say over the weekend, while labor mediators apparently were nonplussed by the fundamental differences developed at yesterday's conferences.

More Federal Court orders restraining strikers from interfering with the petitioners have been granted.

Troops have been requested at San Bernardino, Cal., to protect railroad property, and representatives of Secretary of War Weeks and Gov. Neff of Texas are investigating the need for troops at Denison, Tex. Disorders occurred at Scranton, Pa., where one man was shot, and at Ennis, Tex.

The effect of the strike on crops was seen in statements from Fresno, Cal., that $200,000,000 worth of fruit is endangered, and from Macon, Ga., that railroads have begun to withdraw their solicitors from the peach and melon districts.

A statement by rail executives here today said that reports from railways in all parts of the country showed gains in the number of men in the shops since the strike started. The situation, the statement said, was better in Eastern territory than elsewhere.

"Developments show," the statement continued, "that the main thing needed to insure the return of normal conditions is protection of men who want to work from violence by strict enforcement of the laws."

Prison Terms for Injunction Violators

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 15.—Federal Judge Jacob Trieber, in granting temporary injunctions to the Missouri Pacific and Rock Island Railroads against illegal picketing by striking shopmen, yesterday declared that any violations of the injunctions would result in penitentiary sentences.

"There will be no fines and there will be no short jail sentences," declared Judge Trieber to the big throng of union men who had attended the meeting.

Judge Trieber publicly declared that statements by Chief of Police James A. Tittle of North Little Rock were false.

An affidavit presented declared that a special agent who had been arrested was dragged from the jail door, in the presence of the turnkey and two patrolmen, by union men, and taken to the country and severely beaten. The affidavit said that the victim cried for help, but that the officers ignored him.

"Have you heard of any of these disturbances in North Little Rock?" Judge Trieber asked Tittle.

"No, sir," was the reply.

"Well, you are the only man who hasn't," replied the Judge. "If it were within the power of this court I would remove you from office. You evidently are deaf, dumb and blind.

"I understand why you officers across the river neglect your duty. You hold your jobs by virtue of the union vote. But hereafter you will be bound by this injunction, and if you violate it you will go to the penitentiary. Towns like North Little Rock make injunctions necessary. In towns where officers are controlled like you are, the persons assaulted are arrested and those making the assaults are not molested."

Judge Trieber said that labor unions were necessary, and that if they did not exist labor would be "in a bad fix."

"I have found most union men to be intelligent and law abiding. But they permit radicals to get within their ranks and commit law violations contrary to orders from their officers. They make injunctions necessary. If you obey the advice of your national officers not to resort to violence and law violations you will not get into trouble."

200 Armed Guards for Mail in New York District.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 15.—First reports of sabotage on railroads in the New York district today caused Federal authorities to deputize 200 guards for the mails and prepare to arm 1000 others.

United States Marshals in New York and Northern New Jersey were authorized by Attorney-General Daugherty to "go as far as necessary" in keeping interstate traffic running. Reports of attempts to damage locomotives on the Lackawanna, and instances where whole freight trains were held up by slashed air brake connections, spurred Government officials to recruit deputies for strategic points on all of the 11 mail-carrying lines entering the city.

Fifty deputies were sent to Jersey City, where Erie road executives demanded protection on the plea that Mayor Hague was "interfering with attempt to guard railroad property with private police." Fifteen were placed in the yards of the Lackawanna; 25 were distributed in the immediate vicinity of the city and 100 at outlying "key" points.

Tonight the situation was reported well in hand, but executives of the roads most seriously threatened by the strike urged United States Marshals to have deputies on hand for any emergency.

A steady stream of deputies passed through the examination rooms at Federal building here. Each man accepted was put in a uniform and armed.

Their instructions when entraining for duty were:

"Remember, you are not supposed to protect railroad property all along the lines. Your job is to see that United States mail and interstate trains are not interferred with."

Charging the United States Railway Labor Board with "trickery" and with trying to disrupt the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Men by paying foremen and supervisors "enough to keep them from striking," General Chairman Parker of the joint protective board of the organization declared tonight that President Grable of the organization would be "compelled to call a strike."

"If we had gone on strike with shop crafts men July 1 it would be all over now, and everyone would be back at their jobs," he asserted.

Demands that a strike be called are pouring into the Chicago headquarters from all eastern locals, he said.

As a forerunner of a walkout, 50 trackmen on the Erie quit at Jersey City today, it was reported at strike headquarters here. Railroad officials denied the report.

The Lehigh Valley, however, admitted that 18 of its men left, asserting they were dissatisfied, when they received their pay, two weeks' earnings at the United States Labor Board's scale of 25 cents an hour.

Official statements covering the two weeks' strike were issued today by the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Lackawanna and New Haven roads. Each set forth that the roads, handling more traffic than during the same period last year, were maintaining service, without delays to passengers, mail or freight.

For several days the Boston Express on the New Haven has reached the New York terminal several minutes late. Today, in a fit of pique, the engineer drove into the station two minutes early.

"I'll show them who's late," he said.

He was due at 6:02 a. m. He pulled in at just 6 o'clock.

RAIL UNION HEAD GIVES THE PRESIDENT DATA ON SITUATION

EDWARD F. GRABLE.

Head of Chairmen's Association Favors Strike Call.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, July 15.—"There will be no convention of the National Association of General Chairmen of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way and Railroad Shop Laborers at this time to decide on whether a strike call will be issued by this organization of 400,000 workers," T. C. Carroll, president of the organization, announced tonight on his return here from Louisville.

"In view of the reported call of a conference by the international president, E. F. Grable, of the grand and general officers of the brotherhood, for next week, it will hold in abeyance my decision on the request of the general chairmen throughout the country that I call a convention of them and decide on a strike," Carroll said.

Speaking of the report that Grable, after his interview in Washington with President Harding, had sent out notices for a meeting in Detroit of general officers of the brotherhood, Carroll said:

"I believe my disclosure that a majority of the general chairmen throughout the nation believe a strike should be called has lighted a fire under International President Grable and accounts for his hurried conference Friday with the United States Labor Board and his interview today with President Harding. It has also prompted his call for a convention on the grand and general officers of the brotherhood.

"I share the opinion of the great majority of the brotherhood that we should strike now. If we make a settlement it would be blood money, solely because of the strike of the shopmen. And a cettlement thus obtained would melt away so soon as the shopmen might be whipped, because they would then turn around and whip us, and so on through the railroad organizations. They would take us singly by the strategy of divide and conquer.

"Not only have the members in the most solemn manner expressed desire for a strike, but Mr. Grable in writing his pledged word that if a strike vote carried, he would issue a sanction. I hold he should live up to his word and obey the membership."

Hyde Refuses to Order State Troops Home.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 15.—Gov. Hyde has refused to demobilize the Missouri National Guard, for which a demand was made by officials of union labor

From the beginning the unionists have protested against use of the guardsmen in this State, promising to maintain peace and assuring the Governor that nothing would happen which could require the use of extraordinary means to preserve law and order. In return they asked Hyde not to call out the troops.

The guardsmen were called, however. Yesterday R. T. Wood, president of the State Federation of Labor, and William Turbett, president of the Jefferson City Federation of Railway Shopcrafts, called on Hyde and asked that the guard units at New Franklin and Poplar Bluff be withdrawn and that all troops in their armories be dispensed with. Hyde refused and Wood and Turbett withdrew, declaring afterward that their interview had been heated and more or less personal, though declining to be quoted as to the exchanges.

"This has been the most peaceful strike in the history of the nation," Wood asserted, "and why the State of Missouri should be put to all this expense at the behalf of a lot of scared railroad officials is more than I can understand."

4000 Clerks and Freight Handlers of Southern Taking Strike Vote.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, July 15.—Clerks, freight handlers and station employes on the Southern Railroad numbering approximately 4,000, are taking a strike ballot, it was learned unofficially at headquarters of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Station and Express Employes, here today.

Injunction "Straitly Enjoining" Strikers Issues at Houston.

HOUSTON, Tex., July 15.—A temporary injunction was signed by Federal Judge Hutcheson Saturday "straitly enjoining" the striking railway shop crafts and their members from intimidating workers, from interfering with the handling of the mails and interstate commerce, from congregating on the streets or in front of homes of employes, from trespassing on railroad premises, and from conspiring to do any of these things. To "straitly enjoin" is to "narrowly restrict," it is explained.

7500 Clerks and Freight Handlers on Southern Taking Strike Vote.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Seventy-five hundred members of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Station and Express Employes of the Southern Railway and its affiliated lines are taking a strike vote against the labor board's decision reducing their wages, it was made known here tonight by Claude E. Pullian, vice chairman of the union for the Southern System.

The ballots, which have just been mailed, are returnable July 20 at the brotherhood division headquarters in Chattanooga, Tenn., and it was emphasized that the result will involve only employes of the Southern System.

Says Eastern Railroads Stand in Way of Settlement.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 15.—Only the refusal of Eastern railroads to reinstate striking shop crafts workers with their full seniority rights is preventing a settlement of the strike as far as the Northwest roads are concerned, declared R. A. Henning, general chairman of the Federated Shop Crafts of the Northwest, in a statement tonight.

Henning said an agreement virtually had been concluded with the Northwest roads to return to work pending adjustment of certain disputed points, including wages, but that there could be no settlement except on a national basis.

"The men in this district will stick to the finish," said Henning.

Two White Workers and Two Negroes Beaten at Savannah, Ga.

By the Associated Press.

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 15.—First disorders here in connection with the railroad strike were reported today when two white men and two negroes told the police they had been manhandled.

G. C. Hyman, foreman in the car shops of the Atlantic Coast Line Railway, who did not go out on strike, said he was attacked by two men as he was leaving his home and beaten and cut.

F. H. Covert, Atlantic Coast Line, non-striking carpenter, said he was abducted by a number of men who carried him eight miles into the country in an automobile and severely whiped after being gagged with a handkerchief.

Two negro employes of the Seaboard Air Line were dragged from a bus when returning from work and whipped.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 15.—A wage reduction of one and one-fourth cents an hour for all clerks on the Central of Georgia Railroad became operative today, it was announced by E. U. Page, general committeeman of the clerks' organization of the system, which is not affiliated with the clerks' union of any other railroad.

The clerks will work 10 hours before overtime pay starts, Page said, in appreciation of a smaller reduction in pay than proposed for clerks of other roads. The general wage reduction for clerks under the Labor Board decision was fixed at three cents an hour, with overtime starting after the eighth hour. Page said the one and one-fourth cents cut on the Central of Georgia was proposed by his organization.

PRIMARY ROAD PLAN OBJECTED TO BY JEFFERSON CITY

State Capital Feels Slighted Because Main East and West Highway Does Not Pass Through There.

COMMERCE CHAMBER TAKES MATTER UP

Another Protest Comes From Mansfield in Wright County—Proposal Approved by 27 Towns and Cities.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 15.—Twenty-seven towns and cities so far have telegraphed to the State Highway Commission commending the system of primary highways recommended by its engineers and tentatively accepted by the commission last Wednesday. Only two protests have been made, one from Mansfield, a town in Wright County in the Ozark Mountains, with a population of 757 persons, and the other from Jefferson City.

Jefferson City residents who have been partisans of the Capitol highway, a route promoted by A. C. McKibben and which would have connected Kansas City and St. Louis by road entirely south of the Missouri River, are bitterly disappointed that their route was not selected. All manner of harsh things have been said of the Highway Commissioners and their engineers by Jefferson Cityans since report of the projected system were made public. The Daily Post, a Jefferson City newspaper which during the road session of the Legislature last year lent itself to the activities of the Donlin-Kelso coalition, even went so far as to charge the existence of a "cowardly plot" supposedly against Jefferson City.

Proposals for Jefferson City.

Under the projected primary system, Jefferson City would have a primary of high type construction feeder to the main east and west highway, which would pass several miles north of it, and would have a primary connection with the St. Louis-Springfield primary road, at Rolla. In addition to this it would have a general primary road on the route of the Capitol highway which would be built out of the $30,000,000 and Federal aid which will be apportioned among the counties on a mileage basis.

The Jefferson City Chamber of Commerce, however, desires to register a public protest, in the nature of an open letter to the St. Louis and Kansas Ciey newspapers, which in part follows: "Some of the newspapers of St. Louis and Kansas City have commended the recommendations of the highway engineers for a system of higher type roads, thus creating the impression that the highways as proposed are satisfactory. Since nearly all of them terminate in either St. Louis or Kansas City it is reasonable to suppose from your view-point that such is the case. Jefferson City rejoices with all the towns which have been remembered in the preparation of the tentative map, and wishes to be as broad and liberal as possible in the acceptance of it. We realize that it is not possible to designate roads to all parts of the State, but we do not consider that the provision which has been made for your capital city is in any way satisfactory and we shall protest the same when the hearings take place. In our protest we will be joined by all those towns lying between Jefferson City and the population centers from which it has been cut off.

Arguments Against Plain.

"If those who are located on the chosen highways will take a moment to consider they will see how vital it is to the road proposition that the Capital be made accessible to all parts of the State. A necessary element in the completion of the program will be the attitude of future legislatures. In voting $60,000,000 for roads the people did nothing more nor less than give to that body authority to issue bonds and provide for future expenditures. The legislature can still make or unmake the program because the bonds must be sold piecemeal over a period of ten years. Road facilities for getting in and out of Jefferson City are certain to have a psychological effect on the members.

"If the Highway Commission approves the present outlay of roads to and from this place by such a circuitous route as proposed, we fear for the effect that it will have upon the mental state of the legislators, because of so obvious a fault in that part of the system which comes under their immediate observation. If a state commission had laid out railroads to Jefferson City to be paid at state expense and made it necessary for the members to come here over one jerk-water spur 25 to 50 miles in length they would hardly be in a receptive mood toward subsequent appeals from the same commission.

Doesn't Want to Be Buried.

"For half a century this city has been struggling with inadequate railroad connections. The State had no voice in the location of the railroads. It does not want to be forever buried in the construction of the highways which are to have the people for all future generations.

"St. Louis and Kansas City are interested in transcontinental travel through Missouri. Space is short to discuss that subject here, but we feel that a fatal mistake will be made by overlooking the greatest drawing card in the Mississippi Valley by cutting out the magnificent scenic beauties of the road between here and St. Louis by way of the Gasconade, Osage and Meramec rivers.

"We have no criticism to offer of the engineers nor the commission, nor do we wish to be classified as fault-finders, but we would not be true to our convictions if we failed to raise our voices against the great injustice which would be done the Capitol and all those who have reason to come here if we fail to protest emphatically against the way in which it has been neglected in the higher-type roads by the engineers."

Cole County, in which Jefferson City is located, gave a negative majority against the bonds by sale of which it is hoped to build these roads.

MT. EVEREST CLIMB GIVEN UP AFTER AVALANCHE KILLS SEVEN

Porters Hurled Over Precipice and Buried in Chasm by Snow Slide That Carries Three of Scientists Almost to Brink—Most of Bodies Recovered and Two Men Are Dug Out Alive in Abyss.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, July 15.—A delayed dispatch from the Mount Everest Expedition received in London last night reports that the expedition has been abandoned as a result of an avalanche in which seven porters were killed. In the avalanche, which occurred during the attempt to scale the last 1700 feet of the mountain, C. L. Mallory, T. H. Somervell and C. A. Crawford had narrow escapes from death.

The dispatch said the final attempt to scale Mount Everest had been made on June 7.

RONGBUK GLACIER BASE CAMP, June 11.—June seventh saw the final try for Everest. I regret to have to chronicle a disaster and terrible ending to what, up to the time when my last dispatch was written had been an exceptionally successful expedition.

I can only say that as bad as the disaster was, it as nearly as possible was a much greater tragedy. Mount Everest is a terrible enemy and the chances against those attacking it are very great. It visits the smallest error of judgment with the most terrible punishments. Like the rest of nature it has no pity.

The Monsoon was approaching and little time was left. Unfortunately already some of the party, namely Strutt, Longstaff and Morshead had been obliged to return to Darjeeling, Morshead needing special treatment for his frost bites while Norton and Capt. Bruce were also obliged by the state of their health to go to a lower altitude in the Kharta Valley and therefore were not available. There were still, however, six men left for a final effort. Therefore the party was organized with two motives. So little time was left because of the Monsoon and consequent bad weather that it was necessary to arrange to evacuate the camps on the East Rongbuk Glacier and also the camps on the slopes of Mount Everest itself during the time an effort to make the climb was being made. It was quite clearly understood this effort should only be undertaken if the weather was really fine and the party was warned to exercise the greatest care.

Heavy Snowstorm Encountered.

The party consisted of Mallory, Somervell and Finch, with their assistants, Wakefield and Crawford, with Morris in charge of the evacuation. It had left the main base on June 3 in threatening weather. During the night the weather got worse and a heavy snowstorm continued for 36 hours, most unluckily Finch was feeling the results of his great exertions in the attack on Everest. On arriving at Camp 1 he was unable to continue and returned to the base camp to join the first party returning to Darjeeling. The remainder of the party arrived at Camp 3 June 5. On June 6 the weather cleared and the party had a day of rest in the glorious sunshine. Up to this time the monsoon conditions were prevalent; that is to say, it was warm with a comparatively warm south wind accompanied by snow, but that day a freezing northwester again set in. There are no better conditions for getting fresh fallen snow in trustworthy condition than first a good melting in the hot sun, then at night a tremendous drop in temperature, especially if assisted by such dry and inconceivably cold wind as a northwester at Mount Everest.

Planned to Try for Peak.

This was the condition that gave the party confidence next morning, after a night during which the thermometer registered 10 below zero, that the slopes leading up to North Col and Changle were in trustworthy condition. So confident were they of this that they not only determined not to evacuate the Col, but planned further to try for the mountain. The caravan left camp at 8, and at 8 o'clock Mallory, Somervell and Crawford were helping with pathmaking to North Col, thus hoping to relieve the others and save them for still greater exertions on the upper part of the mountain. There followed 14 coolies laden with oxygen apparatus.

This time oxygen was to be used only at the later stages of the climb as it was thought better to climb as far as possible without it, and then before distress overcame them to continue from the highest camps already established using oxygen. The lower slopes leading to North Col were in good condition, the snow adhering to the ice beneath in the firmest way. This gave every hope that this condition would be maintained right up to the Col itself.

Snow Began to Slip.

However, while they were traversing the slopes half way up to North Col at a rather gentler angle suddenly an ominous crack was heard and, running across the face of the Col immediately the snow began to slip. The leading party on one rope, Mallory, Somervell, Crawford and one porter were carried down, sliding about 150 feet. By the greatest luck the slide was checked and all four were able to extricate themselves unhurt at the edge of the main slip. Looking around for the rest of the caravan they saw some of the men on the snow still further below. They got down as quickly as possible and found that the second rope party, consisting of porters, had also stopped, but on the edge of a small ice cliff some 60 feet high, with a great crevasse at its foot. It was evident that the other two rope loads had been swept over the cliff into the crevasse. Getting down as quickly as possible, they were able to rescue three men, two of whom were buried deep in the snow, and were dug up just in time.

Buried Deep in Avalanche.

The remainder of the porters were buried beyond hope of recovery alive, deep in the crevasse with the main fall of the avalanche on top. All hands worked for some hours, but were finally obliged to relinquish their efforts after recovering all but one man of the six. Those recovered were all dead. It is terrible to think that no fewer than seven splendid porters lost their lives in this tragedy. No expedition which ever traveled in the Himalayas, or for that matter in any part of the world, was better served by its subordinates than we have been. The work done by the porters was prodigious and quite unparelleled. Thus ends the second try to conquer the greatest mountain in the world. From experience gained this year there is no reason to believe that a future effort will be unsuccessful, but Mount Everest has two great allies, the extreme shortness of time in which weather is fine enough and the condition of the mountain suitable and those terrible westerly winds.

The weather has broken. Southerly winds prevail and the whole condition of the north face of Everest and glaciers at its foot are rapidly changing. Where once we walked on dry ice to Camp 3, now are torrents of water and the mountain sides are in melting and unstable condition. We were lucky in completing the evacuation as we did.

The main expedition is leaving for Kharta Valley for a much-needed rest at a much lower altitude before returning to Darjeeling and breaking up the expedition.

BREWSTER REVIEWS G. O. P. RECORD IN CAMPAIGN SPEECH

URGES NATIONAL PARK FOR OZARKS

Predicts That Southwest Missouri Will Become World's Largest Dairy and Poultry Producing Section.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GREENFIELD, Mo., July 15.—Speaking in the courthouse here tonight, R. R. Brewster, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, suggested the establishment of a large national park in the Ozarks, predicted that Southwest Missouri will become the largest dairy and poultry producing section of the world and reviewed the accomplishments of the Harding administration.

He said, in part:

"During my campaign in the Ozarks I have been more than ever impressed with the beauties and wonders of this vast Ozark empire. This part of Missouri is destined soon to become the greatest dairy and poultry country in the world. Its resources properly and intelligently developed are limitless.

Need of Roads Emphasized.

"All that is needed to attract millions of visitors to this Ozark country are good hard surfaced roads. Because of the natural beauty of the Ozarks, their geographical location, their easy accessibility to almost every part of the country and climatic conditions, it seems to me that here is an ideal place for a great national park.

"The Republican national administration challenges the admiration of every thoughtful man. No administration has ever faced more difficult problems. The demand of the hour was for restoration and deliverrance of our people from the oppression and despotism of war.

"When the Harding administration went into power fighting had ceased and our army had been disbanded for more than two years. War measures and war taxes were still in force. The nation had been for the last year and a half without leadership.

"Found Swarms of Employs."

"We found every Government office swarming with useless and unnecessary employes. No adequate provision had been made for the relief of our disabled veterans or their dependents. Governmental affairs were disorganized; we found waste and extravagance on every hand.

Railroads Facing Bankruptcy.

"The inevitable reaction from the inflation and speculation of war was setting in. We found the great transportation system of three country broken down, many of the railroads facing bankruptcy. Agriculture was prostrate. Millions of men were out of employment. The vaunted prosperity of the Wilson administration, with the end of the war disappeared as the mists before the sun.

"Within the first year of the Harding administration, by joint resolutions of Congress, the state of war existing between the United States and Germany and Austria was ended. War-time measures and war taxes were repealed. The budget system was put into effect, resulting in a saving the first year of more than a billion and a half dollars.

60,000 Employes Discharged.

"More than 60,000 unnecessary employes were discharged and returned to the useful pursuits of private life. While the expenses of Government have been decreased, Government efficiency has been correspondingly increased. Through these economics readjustment and reduction of taxation has been made possible.

"The excess profits tax has been repealed, and properly so. It is estimated that the new law will reduce taxes $728,000,000.

"Pending the passage of a general protective tariff law, a temporary law for the benefit and relief of the farmer and manufacturer was passed. A temporary law restricting immigration was passed. The purpose of this law was to decrease as far as possible the number of unemployed Americans.

"The temporary tariff law prevented the flooding of American markets with foreign merchandise and also restored the American market to the American farmer. The permanent tariff law bill has been passed by the House and is now under consideration by the Senate.

"Congress passed the maternity bill which provides for co-operation with the States for the care of maternity and infancy.

"Fifty millions of dollars were advanced by Government influence through banks for the assistance of cattle raisers. The packing industry has been regulated by legislation in an effort to prevent abuses. A revolving fund of a billion dollars has been created in order to provide credit for the transportation and export of farm products.

Relief for Veterans.

"The administration has bent every effort to provide relief for our war veterans, and their dependents. A billion five hundred million dollars has already been paid to them. Nearly a million and a quarter dollars is paid out every day of the year. The Government now has 28,500 hospital beds available for use and 7500 more are being constructed.

"Twenty-nine thousand men are in Government hospitals. Besides the hospital services they receive from $80 to $150 each month. There are 105,000 men receiving vocational training and most of them under pay at a cost of approximately $160 per month.

"The transportation system, so important to the prosperity of the nation, has been relieved in every possible way. Loans have been made to weakened railroads and credit extended to others into hundreds of millions of dollars in the settlement of claims arising out of Government control.

"Wages have been adjusted, rules of employment revised and rates reduced.

"These are but a few of the accomplishments of the Harding administration. Slowly but surely the business of the country is being brought back to normalcy."

(Copyright, 1922.)

ROME, July 15.

IMPORTANT archeological discoveries have been made by Castello Deporte near Rome. The hull of an enormous barge has been excavated near a small lake. It is presumably a relic of the mercantile fleet which was used to ship wheat from Sicily to Rome before the Bastello di Porto shipped by the Tiber River. The hull is like similar relics of Nero's fleet.

Excavations are proceeding and other discoveries are expected.

CARRIERS AND POSTOFFICE CLERKS GET HALF HOLIDAY

Part of St. Louis Force Will Have Each Saturday Afternoon Off During Summer.

An order by Postmaster-General Work, permitting postmasters at their discretion to give employes that can be spared a half holiday on Saturday during the summer, was put into effect yesterday by Postmaster Alt. The new rule gave approximately 550 carriers and 300 clerks of the local postoffice a summer half holiday for the first time in the history of the office.

Postmaster Alt decided to give the half holiday each Saturday to one-third the employes in the clerical and distributing departments and to one-half the employes of the cashier and bookkeeping departments.

This means that those in the clerical and distributing departments will have every third Saturday afternoon off, and those in other departments a half holiday every other Saturday. One delivery only will be made in the downtown district and two deliveries in the residence and outlying districts. The carriers will work through the noon hour under this plan. The order is to remain in effect until Sept. 15.

JAPAN TO HOLD RUSSIAN END OF ISLAND TEMPORARILLY

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15. — The text of the Foreign Office statement in Tokio yesterday announcing Japan's purpose to withdraw her troops from the mainland of the province of Saghalien, Siberia, shows that, coupled with previous announcements on the intended withdrawal by October from the Vladivostok region, it is Japan's purpose to hold the northern or Russian end of the island Saghalien only pending adjustment with some Russian Government of Japanese claims arising out of the massacre of Japanese troops at Nikoleivsk.

"Dramatic Workshop" Planned.

A "dramatic workshop" is to be opened by the Young Women's Christian Association Training School in September, and, for preliminary training, a class in expression and development will open tomorrow evening at 6:30 as a feature of the summer session of the school. The dramatic workshop will prepare girls and women who wish to direct plays in schools, churches and small communities.

DEMOCRACY OF REED VOUCHED FOR BY 3 SENATORS

Shields of Tennessee, Simmons of North Carolina and King of Utah, Say He Has Defended Party.

MISSED DURING DEBATE ON TARIFF

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
No. 20 Wyatt Building,
Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON, July 15. — "The ability, industry and militant democracy" of Senator Reed was indorsed today by Democratic Senators Shields (Tenn.), Simmons (N. C.) and King (Utah) in the Senate. They expressed regret that his enforced absence deprived the Democratic party of his assistance on the tariff bill.

"There has been necessarily absent during this long discussion one of the ablest members of this body," Senator Shields said. "He is a Senator who has always been in the forefront of the battle lines of his party, whose absence all good and true Democrats desiring the success of their party regret and which rejoices all Republicans who, when the principles of democracy were at stake, have heard his fierce war cry and felt the force of his logic and eloquence."

Occasion of Shields' Remarks.

Senator Shields spoke regarding Senator Spencer's announcement that Reed was doomed for defeat.

"I am not surprised," he said, "that the Republicans should desire his defeat. For the 10 years I have known him in this body he has ably and fearlessly upheld and defended the great principles of democracy."

Senator Simmons, after expressing his regret that Senator Reed could not be present to assist in the tariff debate, said:

"No man who has been in the United States Senate since I have been here is better capable of discussing this question than the senior Senator from Missouri. His analytical powers, his tireless energy, his great abilities, would have been a great help if he could have been here. Senator Reed has asked me to express his great regret and asked me to let his colleagues know how deeply he regretted his inability to be present during consideration of the pending tariff bill."

Opinion of Senator King.

Referring to the previous utterances of Senators Shields and Simmons, Senator King, Democrat, Utah, said:

"Perhaps there are few men in this body better qualified to discuss the schedules and fundamental principles of the tariff question than the Senator from Missouri, Mr. Reed. The Democratic party and the country are indebted to the Senator from North Carolina, Mr. Simmons, for the magnificent fight and the splendid leadership he has exhibited in the fight against the bill.

"But I regret the Senator from Missouri has been unable to be present, because he would have been a most powerful advocate of the cause of the people and his efforts in discussion of this measure would have been of inestimable advantage to the Senate and great profit to the people of the United States.

Good Word for Long.

"I agree with the Senator from Tennesse, Mr. Shields, that in controversies between Democrats we have no right to take part. Mr. Long is a personal friend of mine, for whom I entertain high regard, but I do say that Senator Reed, if he could be here, would be of great strength to his party. His services in the Senate whenever fundamental questions involving the Constitution of the United States and the fundamental principles of the Democratic party are involved, have been of immeasurable advantage. No man more clearly interprets the Constitution and its limitations and the Democratic attitude upon those questions than the able Senator from Missouri."

REED OPPONENTS HOLD MEETING AT SALISBURY

Gathering, Sponsored by Circuit Judge Lamb, Who Was Attacked by Senator, Most Unusual.

F. M. CURLEE, ST. LOUIS, ONE OF THE SPEAKERS

Jurist Asserts Senator's Campaign Is Now One of Vilification of Those Who Oppose Him.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SALISBURY, Mo., July 15.—It was an unusual meeting for a primary campaign in Missouri that was held in Salisbury tonight. There never was one like it before in the State. It was Circuit Judge Lamb's anti-Reed meeting to reply to attacks made upon him because he was a Long supporter, by Senator Reed and James A. Collett, a Reed supporter of Salisbury, at the Reed meeting here 10 days ago.

The occasion for the meeting dates back to the campaign of two years ago, when, according to Judge Lamb, newspaper reports at the time and many Salisbury citizens Reed in an anti-League of Nations speech in Salisbury referred to Woodrow Wilson as "that long-eared animal that goes braying about the country."

Lamb made mention of this language in introducing Breckinridge Long to an audience in Brookfield more than a month ago. Reed promptly denied he had used the language, and Judge Lamb soon afterward produced affidavits of a number of citizens that they had heard him say it. Reed said in speeches that anybody who said he said it was a liar.

Details of Controversy.

When Reed spoke in Salisbury he admitted using the language, but insisted he was referring to an aggregation of men who had been saying bitter things about him and not to Wilson. Reed also attacked Judge Lamb and former State Senator Taylor of Chariton County, declaring they were political bosses, and accused Judge Lamb of having been a party bolter, unworthy of the confidence of Democrats.

So Judge Lamb decided to have an anti-Reed meeting of his own, and invited Col. Francis M. Curlee of St. Louis address it. Judge Lamb made his speech in introducing Curlee.

The audience was about half again as large as that which attended Reed's meeting and fully half those in the audience were women. When Curlee and Mrs. Curlee stepped from the train they were met by a Reception Committee of 60 women and more than 20 men. When Reed arrived 10 days ago, seven women and half dozen men comprised his Reception Committee.

The audience was demonstrative and applauded both Lamb and Curlee vigorously.

Meeting Opened by Lamb.

Lamb in opening the meeting, said there had been a big change in the Reed campaign since its opening in Moberly, more than two months ago. Then he said it appeared to be a 12-cylinder Rolls-Royce taking a 20 per cent grade at 20 miles an hour. Now the engine is sputtering and back-firing, there is water in the gas, the tires are flat, the radiator leaks and the engine heats. It looks like the vintage of 1906 and before the campaign is over, it will be in the ditch.

He said the Reed campaign was now a campaign of villification and denunciation, of individuals, who dared oppose the Senator. He has been driven from every issue he sought to make, Lamb said, and he dares not raise them again. So he is engaged in denouncing local citizens where he speaks.

Judge Lamb explained Reed's charge that he was a bolter, by saying that when he cast his first vote, when a mere boy, he voted for a Republican for a local county office. A man who had been his school teacher.

He denounced Tom Pendergast, political boss of Kansas City, who he said is the head of the most disreputable political machine in the State and who will deliver all the votes of his machine to Reed.

"Jim Reed has done Woodrow Wilson all the harm he can do," Lamb said. "I saw him do his war-dance over the prostrate form of the man, who is destined to go down in history as the world's greatest man. I heard him refer to him as a 'long-eared animal' and many of you heard him say it.

There were many shouts from the audience. "I heard it."

Says Reed Falsified.

He referred to Reed's Hoover speech, charging that Reed had deliberately made false statements. After telling the facts about the fixing of the price of wheat, Judge Lamb said that Reed said in his Moberly speech that Hoover fixed the price of livestock and Lamb then called upon the farmer to prove that no livestock price ever had been fixed. He said Reed has said that Hoover forced down the price of livestock and the farmers lost money.

"You farmers know that is not true," Lamb said. "You know that livestock prices fluctuated and that no price was fixed. You know that you did not lose money on livestock during the war. If those statements were not true, why did he make them?"

He denied Reed's statement that the farmer was denied a reasonable price for wheat and was forced to pay war prices for everything he bought.

"The farmer got two and one-half times the pre-war price for the wheat," Lamb said, "and not one of you was forced to pay two and one-half times the pre-war price for your harness, your plow, your clutivator or anything else you bought."

"The trouble now is," Lamb said, "that Jim Reed and the Republicans played politics when they ought to have been trying to solve the problems of the country.

"Jim Reed can talk about Hyde and high taxes, but every one of you knows that Jim Reed is more responsible for the election of Hyde, a Republican, than Hyde himself or anybody else."

Curlee's Speech in Part.

Curlee spoke in part as follows:

"I assert that no man is entitled to a Democratic nomination who is not a Democrat. Reed has attempted some definitions elastic enough to include himself. For the present purpose we do not need to deal in nebulous political abstractions. A simple definition will suffice. A Democrat may be defined as a man who supports the Democratic platform, sustains the Democratic administration, measured by this definition Reed may be a Republican, a Bull Moose, a Mugwump, or merely a renegade, but he is no Democrat.

"Let's test his party record. You will remember his guerilla warfare in the early years of the Democratic administration; his opposition to an administration measure proposing changes in the interstate commerce law; his obstruction of the Federal Reserve act; his opposition to an administration measure proposing certain amendments to the anti-trust laws; his obstructive tactics with regard to presidential appointments. Do these things outlaw a man as a Democrat. Not one or several of them would do so; but when a long and unremitting train of assaults evinces a design to discredit and humble a Democratic administration, and no solitary act or utterance occurs to contradict the uniform tenor of the rest, it is difficult longer to consider such a man as a Democrat.

"Destructive as he was and is, his assaults are always launched against Democrats and never against Republicans. In boasting of his prowess he links his name with Republicans—Borah, Johnson, La Follette and Reed are the saviors of the republic. Among Democrats only Vardaman and Gore, those late lamented kindred spirits, enjoy his approbation.

Attitude Toward Hoover.

"When Hoover was appointed by Wilson, he was villified with all the invective genius of a resourceful villifier. When the same Hoover was appointed by Harding to a more important post no syllable of objection escaped the lips of our doughty Democrat. Harding's appointment of E. Mont Reilly was perfectly satisfactory to him so far as we can gather from any speeches of his. When Democratic Senators were making an effective attack on the confirmation of Nat Goldstein of St. Louis as Collector of Internal Revenue of the Eastern District of Missouri, Reed remained silent. When pressed for a statement of his position he said he would take no sides. He was the only Democratic Senator to vote for the confirmation of Harding's appointment of George Harvey as Ambassador to England. Harvey was and is the bitterest enemy of Woodrow Wilson in this country, excepting only James A. Reed, George Sylvester Vierick and William Randolph Hearst.

"Toward all administration measures his course has been consistent. He has assailed them all without discrimination. Conscription, Food Control, the Naval Program, the Interstate Commerce act, the Anti-trust Law, the Export Trade Bill, the Fuel Administration, the National Council of Defense, the Air Service, the Federal Reserve Act, and countless other administration measures and agencies were the objects of his venomous assaults. He now selects a few of his acts he thinks he can justify. Let him make the most of them. The evidence is piled mountain high, that if he had any slight allegiance to the Democratic party, it was not proof against his blind and savage hatred of Woodrow Wilson.

"The Crowning Infamy."

"The crowning infamy of this record of party perfidy is his open appeal to Republicans to invade the Democratic primary and control it. In his speeches he has commented on the letters to negro and white Republicans broadcasted by his headquarters, but he has not repudiated them. Prominent Republicans throughout the State are openly organizing for him. Obscure Republicans have their coats off working for him."

Change in Boundary Designation Sought in State Constitution

JEFFERSON CITY, July 15.

WHETHER the eastern boundary of Missouri shall continue to be the "River Mississippi," as written in the present State Constitution, or whether it should be the "Mississippi River," as some delegates to the constitutional convention demand, is a matter which has caused furious debate in the Bill of Rights Committee.

Dr. W. H. Black of Marshall, president of Missouri Valley College, has sought to have the two words reversed, on the ground that the phraseology in the Constitution now is archaic. A number of members of the committee are said to oppose a change.

GOULD'S BRIDE WEPT AT WEDDING, JUDGE RELATES

COUPLE SAID TO PLAN TO LIVE IN ENGLAND

Marriage Took Place May 1; Judge Newman, Who Officiated, Says He Agreed Not to Tell Until Asked.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Detailed news today of the marriage of George J. Gould and Guinevere Jeanne Sinclair, May 1, at 10 a. m. at Lakewood, N. J., revealed that it was a tearful bride Gould kissed at the end of the ceremony, and that the ring he produced was too small.

A cablegram from London today says it is understood Gould and his bride are to make their permanent home in England after they have returned to America long enough for him to put his affairs in order. If he becomes an expartriate he will follow the example of his two younger brothers, Howard, who spends the greater part of his time in England, and Frank J., who lives in Paris.

The marriage took place at 227 River avenue, Lakewood, the home of Judge Harry E. Newman of the Common Pleas Court of Ocean County. Judge Newman performed the ceremony. It is said that members of the Gould family have known of the marriage from the first, though none was present at the ceremony, nor were any of the bride's relatives there.

Arrangements for the wedding had been made two days previously and on the day of the ceremony the Gould limousine rolled up to the Newman home as the Judge was sitting on his porch. Gould, the bride-to-be and Beatrice Hoskan, an employe in the Sinclair home at 323 West Seventy-fourth street, got out.

Three Witnesses Present.

Gould and the Judge, who have been friends for more than a quarter of a century, exchanged greetings and the party went into the parlor. Judge Newman went upstairs and called his wife, and J. Scudder Fisher, Town Registrar and Assessor of Lakewood and also a personal friend of Gould, was summoned as one of the witnesses, the others being Mrs. Newman and Miss Hosken.

Judge Newman freely admitted that all were a little nervous. While the formalities necessary in filling out various documents lasted almost an hour, the marriage itself required only a few minutes, though two forms were used.

The only explanation of the two ceremonies was that Judge Newman has two prescribed forms, one of which he uses at his office and the other at his home. He was not certain which to use, so he used both.

The single ring ceremony was employed. When Gould attempted to place the wedding circlet on the finger of his bride it proved to be so small it went no further than the middle joint of the finger, but it answered all purposes of the occasion.

Gould Kissed Bride.

At the conclusion of the ceremony Gould kissed the bride on the cheek. Judge Newman said the bride's eyes filled with tears. Mrs. Newman then kissed the bride, but the Judge waived his privilege, after which the couple received the congratulations of those present. Waving adieu, they left in their automobile.

The bride wore a corsage bouquet of orchids and carried a bunch of roses. Judge Newman couldn't recall exactly what she wore.

"It was brown, I think, or maybe it was something blue," he said. "Perhaps it was purple. Anyway, I believe it was what they call a traveling dress—whatever that is," Judge Newman continued.

In the certificate it is recorded that Mrs. Sinclair gave her age as 29; residence, Lakewood and 323 West Seventy-fourth street, New York. It is further recorded that she is the daughter of Alexander Campbell Sinclair of Dakota, and that her mother's maiden name was Litia E. Moell Atkins.

Register Fisher explained that the reason he did not recall much about the marriage was that "he didn't consider it was very important." When asked if Gould "slipped him anything," he said if anything more than the legal fee of $1 was meant, no.

Pays $35,000 Taxes a Year.

"I should have considered it an insult for him to have offered me anything extra," he explained. The Register continued: "But I want you and everyone else to understand that we in Lakewood think a great deal of Mr. Gould. I have known him for 25 or 30 years. He pays the township $35,000 in taxes every year, and he is a great man.

"When he first came here there was no road to the south. And do you know what he did? Everybody says that he paid half the cost of a one-mile road out of his own pocket. Whenever a big project for Lakewood is talked about Mr. Gould wants to help. He is a great man.

"I remember him when he was a boy. He used to ride his bicycle on the sidewalks and the sidewalks in those days were full of mudholes. And do you know what he used to do? He used to get off his bicycle whenever he saw a woman coming and he would stand by his wheel with his hat in his hand until the woman went by. That's the kind of man Mr. Gould is."

Sent Records to Trenton May 6.

Of the ceremony itself, Fisher said:

"All weddings look alike to me and it would not make any difference to me in my official position whether it was Mr. Gould who was going to be married or some ditch digger out of the cranberry bog. I comply with the State law right down to the letter. I sent the records to Trenton on May 6, and I don't have them or even a duplicate. If it was my own brother I couldn't remember the details.

"Mr. Gould and the present Mrs. Gould, came to me at my office on May 1. He made out the application, but I don't remember the name of the bride except that I think it was 'Guinevere,' or something like that. 'Sinclair'; I don't remember whether it was 'Miss' or 'Mrs.'"

Fisher was asked if he could remember how the bride looked and said:

"She was a tall, handsome woman—a stunner, I guess you would say. Yes, sir-ee, she was a beautiful woman. What did she wear? Well, you got me. I never pay any attention to those trings. Somebody told me that it was a traveling dress; that's all I know about it."

Miss Ethel Sickles, Judge Newman's secretary, looked as if she had known the secret a long time.

CARRIES OUT PLAN TO END OWN LIFE MADE 20 YEARS AGO

Gustavus Pauls, Gardener at Altenheim, Had Filed Declaration That He Would Never Become Burden to Others.

OBTAINED POSITION ON OPENING OF HOME

Man Who Pronounced Own Death Sentence Thought to Have Had Family and Eight Children.

Twenty years ago, when Gustavus Pauls went to work at the Altenheim, 5408 South Broadway, he filed in the office of the institution a declaration that when life became a burden and he ceased to be useful, he would end his existence. Yesterday morning he ended it.

Pauls, who was 87 years old, was found dead in his bed. Ardent botanist always, he had swallowed the poison which he felt himself no longer capable of using in the care of his flowers.

When the Altenheim was opened in June, 1902, Pauls was employed as gardener. The Altenheim is a home for the aged, but Pauls wanted it understood that he, then 67 years old, would never be a burden to the institution.

Files Declaration.

To whom it may concern: When life becomes a burden and I cease to be useful, I deem it my duty to end my existence, so as not to become a burden to my fellow-man. Cremate me, and then as soon as you can, scatter my ashes among my plantings. Make no fuss or expense. Notify no one. Have no so-called religious ceremony. When all is over you may send the few packages in my closet as directed. GUSTAVUS.

Flowers and vegetables had equal honor in the garden which he created on the slope above the river. The care of this was his one interest. He brought to his work the equipment of a well qualified botanist, florist and arboriculturist. For years he was a member of the Engelmann Botanical Club at Shaw's Garden.

Referred to Intention.

Sometimes he spoke of the declaration in the office files, just to show that, although he still tarried and toiled, he had not forgotten, and he always reiterated that when the time came he would take the right kind of "medicine" and be on his way.

Of late, increasing feebleness has made more difficult the care of his garden, and those who knew of the sentence of death which he had pronounced upon himself 20 years ago were not surprised when word came yesterday morning that "The Botanist," as he was known, had kept his vow.

Pauls was brought to this country from Germany when he was 5 years old. Before going to the institution he lived on a farm near Eureka, Mo.

Otto Pauls, a son, lives at 4220A Shaw avenue. He said yesterday that his father had specialized in lilies and had had paintings made of every known type of lily, which are supposed to be locked in his room with his library on plant life. Of the other seven children, a daughter resides at Quincy, Ill., and the others are in Colorado and California.

The body will be cremated tomorrow afternoon and his ashes will be scattered over his flowers on the slope behind the Altenheim.

FAVORABLE REPORT ON SHOALS PLANS REFUSED BY COMMITTEE

Senate Agriculture Body's Denial Now Leaves Question of Development of Federal Holding in Alabama to Decision on Floor.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The Senate Committee on Agriculture today refused to report favorably a plan for developing the Government's $106,000,000 project at Muscle Shoals, Ala., and left the question to be settled on the floor of the Senate. All proposals submitted to the committee, including those of Henry Ford, the Alabama Power Co. and that offered by Senator Norris, committee chairman, for Government development and operation were rejected by a majority of the committee.

Ford's tender came the nearest to receiving a favorable report. It was rejected, 9 to 7, while the Norris proposal was voted down, 9 to 5. The other offers were disposed of without a record vote.

The plans of Senator Norris and Ford, however, will be submitted to the Senate by their proponents in the form of minority recommendations from the committee. Senator Norris will make a report urging acceptance of the Government ownership bill, while Senator Ladd, Republican, North Dakota, will present the bill he has introduced already providing for unconditional acceptance of the Ford offer.

Failure of the committee to favorably report one of the proposals was interpreted by some Senate leaders as tending to bear out their predictions that the Senate would not take final action before adjournment of this Congress. Had the committee approved one of the plans and a majority of its members supported it for early consideration in the Senate, it was said, there would have been more reason to expect the Senate to act quckly.

Senators Norris and Ladd said they would offer their reports at an early date. Senator Norris expected to conclude work on his draft tomorrow and Senator Ladd said the preparation of his report would require only a few days. It was suggested that both opinions would be placed before the Senate for its information next week and made available for publication at the same time.

REED MET BY BRASS BAND AT MARSHALL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARSHALL, Mo., July 15.—The Reed adherents in the State Democratic senatorial contest in Saline County had their first inning at Marshall today. The demonstration was staged in a specially prepared pavilion which was filled to capacity by both Reed and anti-Reed Democrats from Saline and adjoining counties. Several notables from Kansas City were here.

Senator Reed arrived from Kansas City on the morning train and was met at the depot and escorted to the hotel by a delegation headed by a brass band and a number of prominent citizens.

Members of Reception Committee.

Reed supporters active in the demonstration from here and Saline County were: Dr. G. A. Richart, Hudnel Harvey, G. N. Orear, John M. Robertson, H. C. Duncan, Joseph Johnson, G. W. Bradshaw, William Meschede, Mrs. Minnie Campbell, Mrs. J. B. McFadden, Mrs. J. M. Robertson, Mrs. A. T. Allison, Mrs. G. W. Garrell, and a number of others. Many women were on the rostrum.

T. H. Harvey and Mrs. Minnie Campbell presided at the meeting. Harvey introduced Reed, comparing him to Benton, Vest and Cockrell and upheld him for defending the Democratic party against the attacks made by the press and the Republican party, closing his address by saying that Long was not Reed's equal and that the people wanted him for six years more to help in the fight against Newberryism and Hooverism, high tariffs and one who could formidably cross swords with Lodge, Borah and Johnson.

Senator Reed commenced his address by disclaiming equality with either Benton, Vest, Cockrell or Stone, but said it would be necessary to fight Newberryism, Hooverism, Lodge, Borah, Johnson and millionairism in Congress and agreed with Harvey, who warned the voters not to send a boy, but a man to mill.

Reed was in poor voice and after comparing his voice with a buzz saw going through a pine knot and referring again to Benton, Vest, Stone and Cockrell said he should not be mentioned in the same breath with them, but that he believed he could run Spencer a good second.

He defended his former stand on woman suffrange, but said in some particulars maybe he was wrong, but now that it was a law he hoped all women would take advantage of their franchise. He referred to the length of time he had been coming to Saline making Democratic speeches, not to save the Democratic party but to help it win.

He said the Joplin convention had denounced him, but it took more than a Joplin convention to cast him out of the Democratic party. "Some say I opposed Wilson on everything," he said. "Who believes that lie?"

Reed then shed his coat and commenced defending his attitude against Wilson's administration, saying:

"Out of 1200 measures brought before the Senate, I only opposed six or seven." He said that during the war, when Hitchcock of Nebraska and the Republican party tried to take the management of the war out of President Wilson's hands that he fought it, spoke against it and was largely responsible for the measure being killed.

Defends Stand on League.

He defended his attitude on the League of Nations, on the draft, the tariff, the standing army and navy and many other prominent measures before the Senate and said that he was sent to the Senate as spokesman for Missouri, not to ask the other man who you wanted me to do.

"I have but two bosses, my wife and Missouri," he said. He took a number of flings at Long and closed his address by making a number of remarks about Hoover and Creel.

KIEL INDORSES KOELN FOR COLLECTORSHIP

Incumbent Should Be Re-elected on Grounds of Efficiency, Mayor Says.

Mayor Kiel last evening issued a statement indorsing the candidacy of Edmond Koeln, City Collector, for renomination.

Koeln, who has held the office of Collector since the spring of 1909, is opposed in the Republican primary Aug. 1 by Harry L. Salisbury and Gustavus E. Wetzel. An active campaign is being made in behalf of Salisbury, who is backed by Victor J. Miller, treasurer of the Police Board, and by Frank M. Slater and William Hubele, members of the Republican City Committee.

Koeln fought Mayor Kiel's candidate for Sheriff, John Schmoll, in the primary of two years ago, and he fought Kiel himself in the primary of March, 1921, when he supported Robert Burkham for the nomination for the Mayoralty. Koeln's fight on Schmoll was successful, but he was unable to prevent the renomination of Kiel. Kiel was renominated and re-elected for a third term, and Koeln is now seeking a fourth term.

Statement of the Mayor.

Because of Koeln's past opposition to the Mayor, there have been some attempts to get the Mayor to join in the fight on him, or at least to remain neutral. Mayor Kiel's decision in this matter is shown in his statement, which is:

"While it is not my desire to be placed in the attitude of telling the voters at the coming primary election just whom they should or should not nominate for public office, yet I feel that I have a right to express my opinion concerning certain candidates, and I owe it to the taxpayers to give them my best judgment, which judgment I have gathered from experience and official contact with men who are now running for office.

"The office of collector is one of the most important offices in our city government. The collector comes in close contact with all of the taxpayers of the City of St. Louis, and I speak knowingly when I say that the record of that office, under the control of Edmond Koeln, is a source of pride to me, and ought to be a source of pride to the whole city. I am sure that the Comptroller will agree with me when I say that no department under our administration has a more efficient and business-like office than the Collector's office.

Object of the Statement.

"I make this statement because it might be misunderstood as to what degree factional party differences extend. No man has a right, because of factional differences, to decline to support the most efficient and competent man to serve the people. If we are sincere when we say we want to serve the people in their best interest, then it is our duty to support the best candidate, regardless of what factional differences there might have been.

"When I announced my candidacy for the third term for the office of Mayor I made the statement that it wasn't the length of time a man served in any particular office, or the number of terms that he had been elected, but it was the knowledge he gained by the close association with the office, and the efficiency shown, that would make it desirable for the people that he be retained in office.

"Therefore, I am but following my firm convictions, as expressed at that time when I say that irrespective of any past political differences I believe that Edmond Koein should be re-elected collector upon the grounds of efficiency."

BARRETT DISCUSSES NEEDS OF VETERANS

Republican Senatorial Aspirant Addresses Members of Legion at Picnic.

Holding solely to the bonus problem and the needs of disabled war veterans, Attorney-General Jesse W. Barrett, candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate, yesterday addressed an American Legion picnic at Normandy Grove and pledged his efforts to a better system of rehabilitation.

Barrett spoke under the auspices of Thomas-Boothe Post No. 238, which gave the picnic with disabled soldiers from United States Hospital No. 35 as guests.

Slight mention of his candidacy was made by Barrett other than a pledge that if elected Senator from Missouri he would work for greater efficiency in governmental agencies caring for veterans. Criticism was directed at some of the present methods of housing disabled soldiers. "It is an outrage to send a victim of shell-shock to a municipal crazy house," Barrett said. "There must be a national system of hospitalization and a comprehensive plan for health reconstruction. It is a crime to permit this work to be left to haphazard methods."

Activity for Bonus.

He pointed out his part in procuring a bonus for Missouri soldiers. Barrett said he drafted the plank in the Republican State platform which promised recognition to the service men and, as a member of the Platform Committee worked for its adoption. Later, he said, he drafted the House measure providing for the bond issue, and defended the measure when a test case was taken to the Supreme Court to determine the validity of the bonds.

As to the national bonus question, Barrett said he did not profess to have a ready solution of the question which is worrying Republican leaders in the Senate. "That is a matter," Barrett said, "which is engaging the best minds in Washington." His views, he explained, were in sympathy with the rights of the soldiers and the best interests of the whole country.

Enlisted in Artillery.

Barrett, who enlisted in the artillery, said he did not boast of his own war record, as he still was at Camp Taylor when overseas operations ceased.

Barrett was introduced to the audience of about 150 persons by W. S. Bedall, former chairman of the City Executive Committee of the American Legion, who commended highly the work of Barrett as a member of St. Louis Post No. 4 of the legion. He declared that the legion was not entering politics, but that its members desired information on all candidates and campaign issues.

Congressman Newton of the Tenth District spoke briefly on the national bonus, which, he said, was justly due former service men since the Government had voted to recompense railroads and other interests for losses during the war.

Barrett and Newton Give Talks at Republican Women's Club.

Attorney-General Barrett and Congressman Cleveland A. Newton of the Tenth District were the principal speakers at yesterday's luncheon of the Republican Women's Club at the American Hotel Annex.

Barrett said that, as a senatorial candidate, he was appearing without a chaperon, this being apparently an allusion to the political sponsors who have attended R. R. Brewster and D. M. Proctor in their appearances here. He said a Barrett club had been formed in the Fourth Ward of Kansas City, in which Proctor and Brewster, as well as Brewster's backer, Walter S. Dickey, reside. This club, he said, is headed by Raymond G. Barnett, and has issued a statement to the effect that the interests of the party demand the selection of a candidate from outside Kansas City.

Barrett called attention to the vote, to be taken in November, on the State Senate redistricting, and said that the State had been districted so that one Democrat had as much representation in the State Senate as four Republicans, and that the State Supreme Court, in which Democrats were in the majority, had sustained this arrangement. The redistricting proposal has been submitted under the initiative.

Mrs. Sylvia Wells of Kansas City spoke in behalf of Brewster. Mrs. Frank P. Hays presided.

FAVORS CONSTITUTION PREAMBLE UNCHANGED

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 15.—That committee of the constitutional convention of which former Congressman M. E. Benton of Neosho is chairman has voted to leave the preamlbe tof the Constitution untouched, so it will continue to read that "we, the people of Missouri, with profound reverence for the Supreme Ruler of the Universe, and grateful for His goodness, do, for the better government of the State, establish this Constitution."

Committee Work Shaping.

Work of the 18 committees which are considering parts of the Constitution is slowly being hammered into definite shape to the end that within another week, or two at most, they can begin laying the results before the Committee of the Whole for debate and collective action.

One of the most heated discussions is anticipated over future of the State Public Service Commission. Members of that body have felt that they are unduly hampered in an impartial administration of their duties in determining utility matters by selfish efforts of legislators to force either favorable action by the commission in cases before it or to enforce legislative abolition of that body.

During the last Legislature several concerted efforts were made by various municipalities to have the commission abolished without regard to the right or wrong of their grievances, which usually arise from decisions in utility rate cases. This went so far that while the commission was allowed to exist drastic cuts were made in its appropriations which seriously handicapped its work.

Permanent Body Sought.

Soon after the constitutional convention opened the members of the present commission went before its Corporations Committee for two or three sessions and later before a joint hearing by two committees urging that the commission be made a constitutional body. A number of extremely long speeches were made, some of which did not rest well with the delegates who were present.

As a result some sentiment has developed for complete abolition of the cowmission, so while more conservative members who are not aggrieved because of rate decisions are inclined to favor stabilizing the commission, they are pessimistic as to the prospect.

As to the St. Louis problems, there appears to be little opposition to a section authorizing city zoning, and strong sentiment has been found in favor of police home rule with power vested in the Governor to remove commissioners for malfeasance. There is little support for home rule as to utilities or elections among the rural delegates. What the outcome will be as to expansion is still very much a question.

Talk on Traffic Problems.

Philip H. Brockman, president of the Police Board, will talk on "Police and Traffic Problems" at a public dinner meeting of the St. Louis Safety Council at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Melbourne Hotel.

BROWNS BLANKED; CARDS NOSE OUT GIANTS, 4-3

Heavy-Hitting St. Louis Stars Unable to Swat Mogridge's Curves Solidly, Although They Outbat Foe 8 to 6.

By J. Roy Stockton,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 15.—If any pitcher with big league ambitions wishes to gain temporary glory and bask for the nonce in the effulgent rays reflected by sport page headlines, let him step forward now and let him make it snappy. The Browns are ripe. They are "easy pickin's," as they say in some corners. Let the ambitious one hurl against the Fohlmen and his reputation will be made. It may be ruined immediately on that hurler's second trip to the mound, unless he hustles and makes his second appearance against the same Browns, and that before they change their ways; but right now the Browns can make any flinger, right-hander or southpaw, to look a champion.

This afternoon it was George Mogridge's happy turn. The slim southpaw tossed the ball over the plate for nine innings and walked leisurely away, victor by a score of 2 to 0. It made 19 consecutive innings in which the men of Fohl, the leaders of the American League, the famous sluggers from the Mound City, had gone scoreless.

It was the same old story. The pitching was excellent. Wayne Wright hurled effectively enough to deserve victory in any man's league. The fielding was good enough. McManus did make one wild throw and before the Senators were retired two runs crossed the plate. But two runs should not be enough to beat the Browns. But in these days two runs look like a mountain, when they are on the other fellow's string.

Browns Make Three Real Hits.

According to the box score, the Browns made eight hits off Mogridge. According to fact they made three clean hits and five of the infield or scratch variety. McManus singled on a line to right in the fourth; Tobin slammed a clean one-bagger to the same field in the sixth; and Ellerbe punched a Texas Leaguer to center in the eighth. Here were the other St. Louis safeties:

Tobin bunted in the first inning and was given a single, when Mogridge fumbled and fell fielding the ball.

Jacobson foozled a grounder toward third in the second inning, and beat Bush's throw to first.

Sisler barely beat out a grounder to Harris in the fourth.

Jacobson was given a hit in the seventh, when Bush failed to cling to his hot grounder. This was the hardest hit of all the "flukes" of the day.

McManus was credited with a single in the ninth when Peckinpaugh fumbled his grounder and then let it fall out of his hand, as he started a belated throw.

Thus, with clean fielding Mogridge would have had a three-hit or four-hit game. Now that's not the Browns' normal stride.

Good fortune was with the Fohlmen in other fields, however, as the White Sox managed to trim the Yankees in extra innings, and thus the Brownies clung to their narrow first-place margin of half a game.

This hitting slump story is not being told in St. Louis alone. The New York writers are singing the same blues, and it appears to be a question of which team can throw off the shackles of batting weakness first.

Brilliant Fielding by the Senators Assists in the Defeat of the Browns

To aid Mogridge today, the Senators came through with several sparkling plays in pinches to make up for loose fielding, which enabled the Browns to show eight hits in their side of the box score. Shanks in left made a spectacular running catch of a drive off Ellerbe's bat and Bush started a pretty double play to check an incipient St. Louis rally in the eighth, which Ellerbe started with a single.

Both Washington runs came in the second inning. One was out, when McManus fielded Brower's hot grounder and pulled Sisler off first, with a high throw. It appeared that Sisler had dropped back to the bag before Brower reached it; but Hildebrand was the umpire. Hildebrand is the only umpire who can tell his grandchildren that his nose has been bumped by the good left fist of George Harold Sisler.

Shanks followed McManus' error with a single to center. Brower was out trying to reach third, but Shanks took second on Jacobson's throw to Ellerbe and scored when Harris looped a double to right, near the foul line. Picinich walked and Mogridge scored Harris with a single to center. That was the only hitting the Senators did until the sixth, when Rice lined a one-bagger to center. Wright yielded four hits in all.

Dave Danforth pitched the eighth and prevented scoring despite two singles and a base on balls, striking out Brower, with the bases filled.

There were many occasions, when a timely hit would have put the Browns in the game. After Tobin had started with a safe bunt, he was forced by Gerber, who in turn was forced by Sisler. George then was picked off first.

In the second inning, Jacobson singled, only to be forced by Williams, who in turn was forced by Severeid. The Browns did not get the ball out of the field until the fourth inning when, with one down and Sisler on first through an infield hit, McManus lined to right for a base, George stopping at second. This looked promising, but Jacobson forced McManus and, with Sisler on third, Kenneth Williams let a third strike glide over the plate, unheeded.

Once More the Pinch Fails.

Again in the sixth, John Tobin gave the boys a chance to knock him around, starting with a single to right. But Gerber flied to Shanks, Sisler forced Tobin and McManus sent a polite grounder to Harris.

Ellerbe started the eighth with a single, but Pat Collins, pinch-hitting for Wright, slammed into a double play. You can't hit like that and lead the league long. And that sort of batting impotence can't continue, so help us law of averages.

Since the Browns took the road, July 4, many hurlers have enjoyed them. Charley Robertson beat them in Chicago, 5 to 3. Allen Russell made them take a 5 to 4 beating in 31 innings at Boston. Rip Collins beat them, 2 to 1, though Vangilder gave only four hits. Russell again beat them in Boston, 4 to 3, and then Joe Bush, aided by four base accidents, gave Shocker a 1—0 beating. Bob Shawkey then pitched a six-hit game in New York and beat Shocker, 4 to 0, and today it was Mogridge's party.

It's a shame to waste all this fine pitching. The Browns hurlers have pitched championship ball on the trip, yet seven of 12 games have been lost. Oh, tempora! Oh, Sisler! Oh, slump! Oh—well, let it go at that.

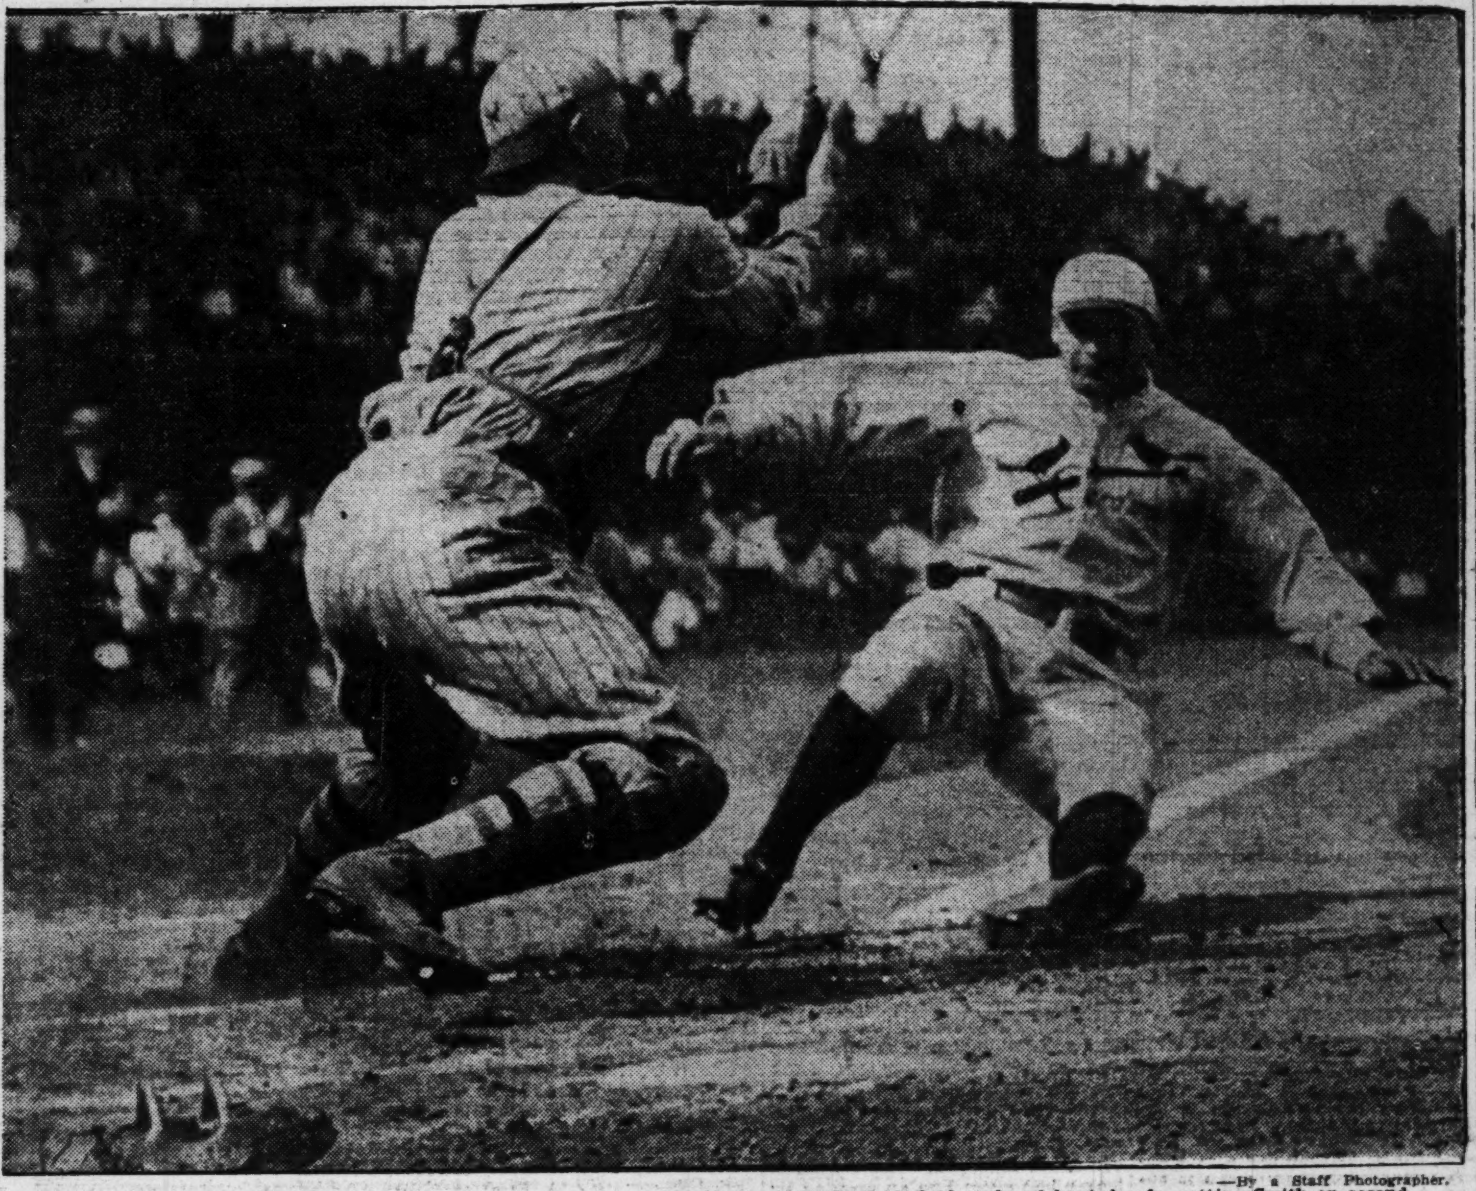
Smith Out Sliding Into the Plate, in the First Inning of Giants' Game



—By a Staff Photographer.

With one out in the first and Smith on the initial sack, Hornsby caught the field flatfooted and bunted safe, putting Smith on second. Mueller then singled and the fleet Smith beat it for home, determined to put his team in front. Catcher Earl Smith got the ball the fraction of a second ahead of him and Jack was out.

Hurlers Tamed Hitters In Yesterday's Games; First Time This Year

FOR the first time in many a day, pitchers had the edge over the batters in major league ball games yesterday. In these days of heavy clubbing, yesterday's work of the various moundmen used by the 16 clubs stands out prominently.

Statistics of yesterday's battles in the big leagues show the following: That only 31 runs were scored, which is an average of 3.9 a game or less than two for each club. It's the first time this season that anything like this has happened, with all teams engaged.

But that's not all. Each club was held to an average of a little better than seven hits. The swats in the eight games totaled 122, or 15.3 a contest.

Three of the conflicts in the American League resulted in shutouts, while the four runs scored by the Cardinals was high for the day.

By the Associated Press.

STOKIE COUNTRY CLUB, GLENCOE, Ill., July 15.—Gene Sarazen, a little 21-year-old native-born American of Italian descent, today pushed his way out in front of the world's greatest golfers, many of them old enough to be his father, and won the national open golf championship with a score of 288 for 72 holes of play, lasting two days.

A hooked drive out of bounds on the 71st hole, followed a moment later by a wild spoon shot, cost John Black, Oakland, Cal., veteran professional a tie for first, and these strokes with a missed putt, a few greens earlier, kept him from winning the title. He finished a stroke behind Sarazen in a tie with Bobby Jones, youthful Atlanta, Ga., amateur for second. William Mehlhorn of Shreveport, La., was fourth with 290, and Walter Hagen of Detroit, British open champion, fifth with 291.

Only one of the three Britains finished among the first 12, George Duncan tying for sixth with Leo Diegel of New Orleans. Jones was the only amatuer in this list.

Sarazen was hardly considered a possibility at the start of today's play, and had to fight his way through from a place in the rear. He did it with an exhibition of golf that has seldom been approached in a titular contest, for his final 18 holes were made in 33—35—68, two strokes under par and one of the only two scores to break par in the two days of play. This 68 equaled the course record in competition and tied Hagen's low mark of yesterday.

Battle to Beat Sarazen.

When Sarazen turned in this card it seemed reasonably sure that he would be the winner, but the championship crown did not settle firmly to his head until many hours later, for, out on the links, playing desperately, were three golfers, two of them listed among the world's best shooters, striving to cut a stroke off the 288-mark and snatch the victory out of Sarazen's hands.

First Bobby Jones threatened the Pittsburg player, for Bobby had a par 70 in the morning, a 36 on the first afternoon round and needed only a par 36 on the last nine to tie. Bobby had a fine chance to do this until he reached his seventy-first hole. This hole, later to prove Black's Nemesis was too much for the young Southerner and his five against par four, put him out. A short approach followed by a short run-up was Bobby's trouble.

Then the statisticians figured that Walter Hagen could tie with a 69 for the afternoon. He took 35 on the first nine and then fell down completely.

With only John Black between him and the title, little Sarazen sat on a bench in the locker room insisting to his friends that he could not win.

When a 33 against par 34 was reported for Black's first afternoon round—meaning that he could shoot 38 on the par 36 final nine and tie Sarazen—it began to look as if the Pittsburg player was right in being modest. But Black, 44 years old, Southern, Northern and Central California champion, low yesterday with 142 and reputed to be at his best when under fire, failed in the pinch, where the little fellow from Pennsylvania had improved in the crisis.

Gives $150 to His Caddy.

When the California man put himself out of the running at the seventy-first, a newspaper man rushed to the locker room and told Sarazen he had won.

He jumped from the bench, turned a hand-spring and let out a yell. A few moments later he was carried out on the shoulders of some of the thousands who gathered round and gave cheer after cheer.

Reaching down in his pocket Sarazen pulled out a roll and took off $150.

"This is for the kid who helped me win," he said, and handed it to his caddy.

The tournament produced record-breaking golf. All of the prize winners—the first 12—finished with scores of 300 or less. This is two strokes less than the 302 score with which Hagen won the British open championship.

The tournament also brought a new era in professional golf, for it found all of the old guard—Hagen, Barnes, Hutchison, Mitchell, Duncan and the many others, whose names are by-words in the golf world—swept out of the running. A boy triumphed over age and experience, while another boy was tied for second and only one veteran—Black—really pressed the winner. And Black is comparatively unknown except on the Pacific Coast.

Champion Was Born at Rye, N. Y.

Sarazen is only 21 years old. He was born in Rye, N. Y., and it was around that vicinity that, earning a little pocket money as a caddie, he picked up his golf knowledge. George Sparling, an Eastern player, was the only real teacher he ever had. He formerly caddied for Sparling. Sarazen is scarcely 5 feet 5 inches tall and weighs only about 145 pounds.

Walter Hagen, when he won the open title some years ago, was only 21 years old—Sarazen's age in years—but the present champion is a few months younger than Hagen was when he captured the title.

Black's collapse was truly heart breaking to his admires. The silent Scotchman had given a great exhibition in his first afternoon nine after rather indifferent play in the morning. He played six of the first seven holes in the afternoon in par and had a "birdie" on the other. Then he placed a 190-yard mid iron approach three feet from the pin on the eighth green—the 26th in the day's play, and sank a "birdie" 3.

The short 27th brought trouble, for Black sent his tee shot into the sand pit at the left and barely pitched on for his second. Two putts made it one over par 3, but he was still one under for the nine.

Black Falters at Finish.

Then came the 28th with its three putts and the 33rd with the first two shots in the pit and a putt just missing with a result of five against par 4. This left Black in a position

Haines Pitches Fine Game, Drives in Two Runs and Scores One

Rickey's Slugging Corps Pounds Ryan, Jinx Twirler, From the Mound—New York 1½ Games in Front.

By Joseph F. Holland.

Jess Haines, the masterful pitcher, and Jess Haines, the hitter, stepped into the teeth of the world's championship New York attack yesterday, extracted the enemy fangs and won the first game of the crucial series for the Cardinals, 4 to 3.

The victory cut the Giants' lead to one and one-half games and brought the Cardinals closer to first place than they have been at any time since April 16, four days after the season opened.

Haines, a towering giant with a burning fast ball, was the focus of 20,000 pairs of eyes as he sent the Giants down to the fifth straight defeat they have suffered at the hands of Rickey's men. He was not alone an insurmountable obstacle to the Giant artillery forces, but he was a high-class cyclonic attack all by himself.

He drove in the first two runs of the game and scored the third. It was his timely punch that broke the spirit of the Giants' "million dollar defense" and sent it careening on to defeat.

There were two real tests that Jess encountered. The first appeared in the second inning when he advanced to the plate with men on second and third base and one out. His line single to center brought him through that emergency a hero.

His second acid test came in the ninth inning, when the Giants filled the bases with one out and Frisch and Meusel coming up.

A Close Call for Haines.

New York was two runs behind, and single by either of its premier batsmen would have tied the score. But Jess escaped with a single run and got Meusel on a pop fly to Toporcer to terminate the game.

There were times when Jess was walloped; times when his fast ball was lambasted and slammed for fair. But in those instances the Cardinal defense rushed to his aid with sparkling catches or machine-like double plays that choked the threatening Giants in their tracks.

The game was no departure from any of the other contests between New York and St. Louis teams in these feverish pennant days. Every decision was gained by straining to the breaking point. The game was at white heat before the first inning was fairly under way and Johnny Lavan, Cardinal shortstop, was banished from the field with two out in the Giants' inaugural appearance at the plate. Emotions bubbled at the surface every frame thereafter and did not subside until the final out brought the victory home.

New York's Rally in the Ninth Inning Forced Haines to Give His Last Ounce

The ninth inning was almost too much for weak hearts. Earl Smith opened it with a long line drive to deep right center, a certain triple. But Jack Smith, the fleet center fielder, raced with the speeding ball and crashed against the fence just as his glove closed over it. That saved the game.

Frank Snyder, late Cardinal, then batted for Phil Douglas, McGraw's second pitcher. Frank worked Haines to 3 balls and 2 strikes and then doubled to right. That unsteadied the Cardinal and he walked Bancroft. When Rawlings beat out a tap to Torpercer, it filled the bases with one out and Frisch and Meusel coming up. Disaster threatened from every side. Frisch had already made two hits and Meusel was overdue with four failures in four attempts.

Meusel Misses His Chance.

But Frisch rolled to Torporcer and Rawlings was forced at second, Torporcer to Hornsby, Shinners, who ran for Snyder, scoring on the out. Bancroft took third just as Meusel came to the plate. A long hit would give New York the lead and a single would tie the score. But Haines put everything he had in his last effort and Meusel popped a high fly to Torporcer.

The Cardinals built up their decisive lead in the second and third innings off Bill Ryan, the "jinx" supreme. With one out in the second Ainsmith walked. Torporcer, who had replaced Lavan, doubled to right and Eddie stopped at third. Opportunity No. 1 for Hero Haines. He swung vainly twice and then lined a clean single to center, scoring Ainsmith and Torporcer. Jess took second on a wild pitch and went to third when Smith beat out a tap to Rawlings. He scored when Bancroft fumbled Hornsby's roller long enough to lose a force play on Smith at second.

The fourth and decisive run was as clean as the much-discussed hound's tooth. Fournier opened the third with a single to center and Stock sacrificed him to second. Ainsmith came through with a single to right center and Jacques easily beat Robertson's hurried throw to the plate. There the Cardinal scoring stopped. They made only two hits after that. But they had given Haines a lead that he could hold.

Giants Runs Earned.

All New York's runs were clean, untarnished scores. They smashed through Haines' defense first in the fifth. One out and Bancroft doubled over first base. He scored on Frisch's single to left. With one out in the seventh Bancroft started it again. He singled to center and took third on Rawlings' single to right. While Torporcer and Hornsby were forcing Rawlings on Frisch's bounder, Banny scored. Then in the ninth, a force-out by Frisch scored Shinners with the final run.

CARDS TO FACE BARNES; SHERDEL OR PERTICA TO OPPOSE GIANTS TODAY

This afternoon the Cardinals will face Jess Barnes, hero of the National League's only 1922 no-hit game. Jess shut out the Cubs with five hits four days ago and has been pitching like a composite of Mathewson, Walsh and Brown.

The Cardinals will counter with Bill Sherdel, the mite southpaw, or Bill Pertica, who owns one victory over the Giants. Either will have a real battle on his hands. But he will have the support of what promises to be the largest crowd of the season.

The iGants won the first two games played with the Cardinals this season. Then, as in the case of Finnegan, they turned right around and lost the next five. If the Cardinals can lengthen their run of victories by taking the next three they will dislodge the Giants from first place.

In seven games each club has scored 24 runs. But the Cardinals have conserved their scores to represent an advantage in five instances. Exactly one month ago, June 16, the Cardinals were six and one half games out of first place. Today they are one and one half. Going up.

Washington University Player Slight Favorite Over Valley Champion.

Singles 10:30 a. m., Wray Brown, St. Louis vs. Ted Drewes, St. Louis.

Doubles, 3 p. m., Kammann and Brown, St. Louis vs. Josties and Drewes, St. Louis.

By Davison Obear.

The three remaining matches in the semifinal round of the Central Triple A Club were completed yesterday and the play is now in the final round. All of the visiting players have been eliminated and the final matches will be between local stars.

In the singles final this morning Wray Brown will oppose Ted Drewes for the second time this season. Brown defeated the Missouri Valley champion in the St. Louis district elimination event, last month. The Washington University captain has improved his playing since he met Drewes and is favored to win again today although the contest will be hard fought.

An interesting doubles match is on in the Central States program this afternoon. Fred Josties and Ted Drewes will oppose Wray Brown and Karl Kamman in the final round. Brown and Kamman have been playing together on the Washington University tennis team and today's meeting with Josties and Drewes will be the first between these two teams.

Wray Brown Beats Parks.

Wray Brown surprised with an apparently easy victory over Ben Parks, the Oklahoma University champion yesterday. The Washington University star won the first set by brilliant play. Parks took the lead in the second set, but after it went to deuce Brown won the next two games and the set. Brown took six games in a row in the third set. Parks seemed unable to control his strokes and netted the ball many times.

The final score of the match between Brown and Parks was 6—2, 7—5, 6—0. Brown won 96 points to his opponent's 59, showing his superiority in yesterday's contest. Parks won 25 placements to 14 for Brown, but the Oklahoma star netted the ball 41 times as against only 11 for Brown.

Speice Easy for Drewes.

In the other singles match yesterday Ted Drewes defeated Charles Speice of Kingfisher, Ok. The score was 7—5, 6—1, 6—0. In the first set the Oklahoma star led Drewes at 5 to 3, but the Missouri Valley champion braced and pulled out the set. In the other two sets Drewes had matters his own way.

The doubles match was very exciting. Josties and Drewes defeated Speice and Parks in a five-set contest. In the first set Josties and Drewes exhibited their usual good form and won the set at 6—3. They went to pieces in the second set, however. The Oklahoma players covered the court well and gained the winning points by good net play.

Josties and Drewes played very steadily in the third set while the visitors struck a slump. The local players won this set at 6—2. Josties was mainly responsible for winning the third set. In the fourth set Speice and Parks took the lead and ran the score up to 5—2. Josties and Drewes won the next game and had the advantage point in the ninth game. Drewes made a number of errors at this stage of the match and the set went to the visitors by a 6—3 score.

The final set in the doubles was very close. Josties and Drewes would gain a one-game lead only to lose the next game for a tie score. This kept up until the score reached 4-all. Drewes seemed to find himself and with the aid of Josties' steady playing won the next two games and the set. The final score was 6—3, 0—6, 6—2, 3—6, 6—4.

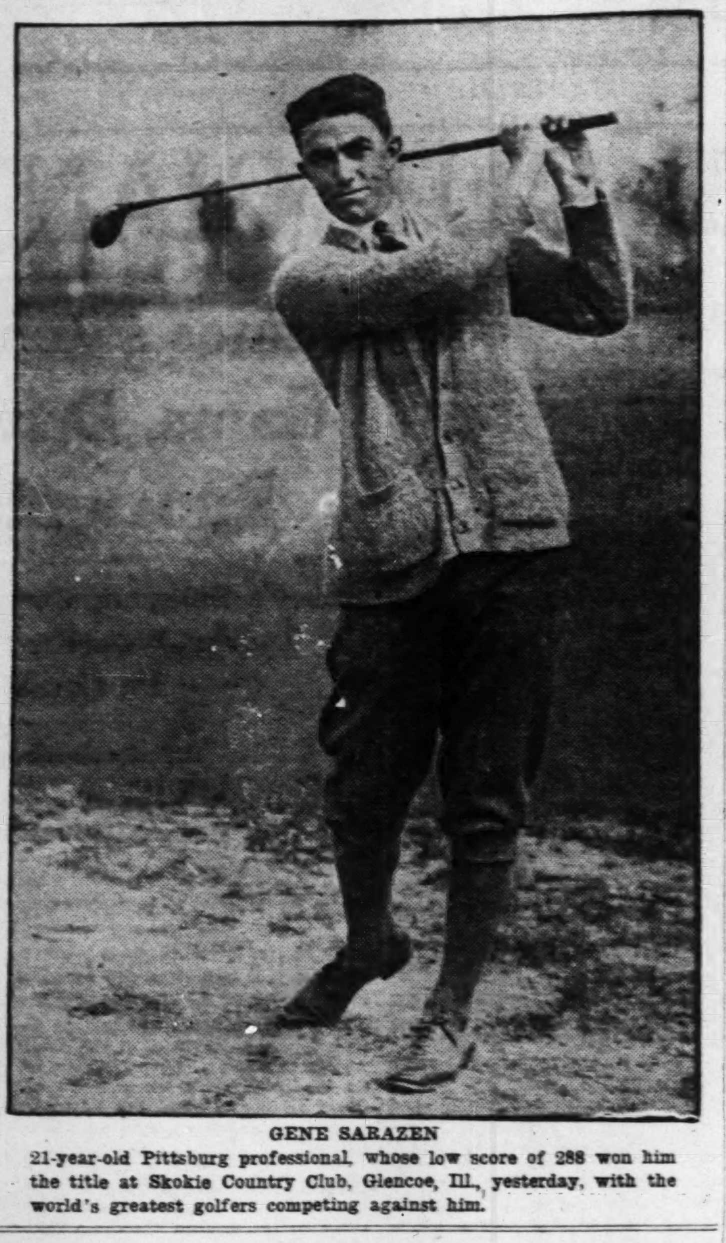
The New U. S. Open Champion



GENE SARAZEN

Sarazen, American Home-Bred, Wins National Open Golf Title

where he had to play the remaining holes in par to tie Sarazen, but it seemed certain that he could do it. The Western star had generally made this par 5 hole in 4, for his long woods always enabled him to reach the 470-yard green in two strokes, so he could afford to waste a stroke on the preceding one—35th—and still tie, or play the 35th in par and then win with a "birdie."

Black carefully adjusted himself for his tee shot on the 35th—the 71st in total play—and then let go with a terrific swing of the type that had been giving him 300 yard drives all day. Down through the air sailed the ball, but suddenly it took a hook and as it hit the fairway rolled towards the boundary fence and woods to the left. For many seconds it was doubtful whether the ball wos out for no word came back from down the course.

A youngster rushed over to the fence while the gallery stood breathless, for it seemed to flash simultaneously through the mind of every spectator that Bliack's chances to be national open golf champion hung in the balance.

"'Out of bounds;" came the cry.

Even then Black still had a bare chance for his second tee shot was a beauty. About 190 yards from the green which was guarded closely by bunkers lay the ball and Black tried to make it with a spoon. The ball started straight for the pin and the gallery started yelling, but suddenly the cross wind caught the ball and carried it just to the left of the green, in the rough and against a vertical bank 3 feet high. The six which resulted really put Black out, although he still could have tied with an eagle on the final hole.

Sarazen's Game Was Steady.

Sarazen's game throughout the tournament was remarkably steady and brilliant. Of the eight sections of nine holes each, he played three in less than par, two in par, and the rest slightly over. He had only one bad nine, his first out this morning when he took a 40 against the figures of 34 which signify perfection. He narrowly missed some putts and several times barely got into traps—always with a bad lie. Twice he was bunkered. It was the fact that he went out and won by shooting less than par for the rest of the day that made his victory all the more sensational.

He hung up seven birdies today, despite the 40 round which had none, and sank a 40-foot putt on the 315-yard thirty-second for an eagle 2. The drive was on the edge of the green and the putt fairly in. On his second out round today his 33 was made through the finest shooting ever seen on the Skokie course.

Only once did he get any real luck on a hole and that was through a 20-foot putt, and once he got a bad break when two shots in succession on the 590-yard twenty-fifth barely rolled into traps, being a 6 against par 5. The rest of that one under par total was just plain golf ability, every shot going absolutely true.

The incoming nine of this round, 35 for the 68, was even better. A bad shot on the twenty-seventh gave a 5 where par is 4, but the rest of the card was made up of six 4s and two 3s—two of the eight being birdies—and he ended with a total for the nine of 1 under par.

Paid Attendance Was 12,000.

The title winner did not excel with any one club in his play. He swung them all nicely at all times and throughout his 72 holes he did not really dub a single attempt. Once or twice he pushed or pulled a little too much to one side or the other, but the figures which were too big usually were made more through bar breaks than through any error in his technique.

This 68 is believed to be the first time that any player has beaten 70 in his final round of a national tournament.

Oddly, only a very few of the 12,000 persons who paid to watch the play during the two days saw the new champpion shoot. The galleries all followed Bobby Jones, Hagen, Evans, Black, Duncan and such well-known stars, especially when it became known exactly what Jones, Hagen and Black had to shoot to win.

Bobby and Black both fought bravely, but they could not quite make it. They faced tremendous mental handicaps in knowing they had to shoot virtually perfect figures when they still had nine or more holes to go. After Sarazeni's 33 card he drew a fairly large gallery, but at no time did it approach in size some of the crowds drawn by the others. It was hard to convince the public that favorites would lose and even when it was known they had to shoot par to win, many offers of bets tht they would, were made.

Playing Conditions Perfect.

The paid attendance yesterday was more than 6000 and slightly less than that today, although today's play decided the title. The weather and playing conditions were perfect. Not a cloud marred the sky either day and the greens were perfect, although the fairways were a little hard. No compaints from the players were heard, however.

It was announced tonight that arrangements had been made for a British team to come over here in August and play an international match with an American team. The latter undoubtedly will number Sarazen among its members.

Knepper Defeats Von Elm, 5-4, in T. M. Golf Final

Mediocre Playing Marks Title Match Over Omaha Country Club Course.

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., July 15.—Rudolph Knepper, Sioux City, lifted the Trans-Mississippi golf crown from the head of George von Elm, Salt Lake City, here this afternoon when he defeated the champion, 5 up and 4 to play.

Throughout the morning round, which left Von Elm 7 down to the challenger, neither man had risen to the golf worthy of a champion. After five days of waiting through overwhelming defeats and easy victories for the match that has been three years in the making, the largest gallery that ever trod the billowy fair greens or stumbled through the rough, saw mediocre golf, with only an occasional shot that thrilled.

Seven down going to the first tee in the afternoon round, Von Elm faced his task as silent as the desert that surrounds his home and wearing a smile, the faintness of which reminded one of the mirages which dot that desert.

The champion shot golf of a brand as totally different from the morning round. He won the first in par and only lost the second because of Knepper's birdie that came as a result of dropping a 25-foot putt. Then three holes fell to Von Elm in succession, as on the third, fourth and fifth, his every shot was played with precision, the pin the objective. The third and fourth were played in par, at the fifth he went one under par when he dropped his drive less than three feet from the pin. The champion dropped the sixth when he had an easy chance to halve it.

Knepper Comes Back Strong.

Again on the seventh Knepper appeared to be slipping when he missed a putt of a foot for a win in par. Von Elm had overplayed his downhill approach putt and lost the line on the second.

Knepper, however, proved that his nerves were unrattled by the comeback of the champion and the cries of the gallery that overran the field and broke around each putting green as a wave laps the side of the pier pile.

The loss of the eighth took the starch out of Von Elm, who failed to hold his iron tee shot to the course on the ninth after the challenger had given him an opening by slicing out of bounds.

Six down and nine to play, it became a question only of how soon the champion would be dethroned by halved holes. This came on the fourteenth when Knepper, over the green with his second, chipped up perfectly and halved the hole with Von Elm, who lay in position for an eagle, but missed a putt of nine feet.

Bob Millard of the Omaha Country Club won the consolation trophy by defeating Emerson Carey of Hutchinson, Kan., 2 and 1, in the 36-hole final match.

BONER BY KAUFMAN IS CAUSE OF CUBS' DEFEAT

CHICAGO, July 15.—An error of omission by Tony Kaufmann cost him his own game today when the Phils staged a ninth-inning rally and defeated the Cubs, 2 to 1 in the first game of the series.

With one out and a man on first and second Wrightstone grounded to Kaufmann, who had plenty of time to start a double play via third base but instead threw to second which left Lee reach tihrd and Wrightstone first. Henline followed with a single sending the tying run home and Weinert's double sent Wrightstone home with the winning run. Score:

Hornsby Has No Real Rival for Batting Honors

Leads National by Safe Margin—Cobb Is Crowding Sisler.

Rogers Hornsby has no real challenger for batting honors in the National League, while George Sisler, who is hitting 25 points in advance of the Cardinal star, is being threatened by the veteran Ty Cobb, whose steady climb has been the feature of the past week's play.

Sisler is batting .420 and Cobb .399. But Ty has come from a very mediocre mark to one that threatens to overtake George unless the Brownie star steps out of his temporary slump.

The Cardinals are second in batting in the National League with a .302 average, but they are tied with Boston for last in fielding. The world's champion Giants are leading both leagues in batting with a percentage of .310.

SARAZEN RECEIVES $500 FOR CAPTURING TITLE; JONES GETS THIRD PRIZE

By the Associated Press.

GLENCOE, ILL., July 15.—Gene Sarazen, by winning the National Open Golf Tournament received a cash prize of $500, the championship cup and a golf medal in addition to the glory that goes to a title holder. When he was presented with his prizes and asked to make a speech, the little player stepped up on a chair and said:

"I can't say anything, fellows; it's all in my heart and nothing in my head—I'm just like all the youngsters that way."

Bobby Jones, while officially tied for second place, goes into third place in the prize list. He waived his claim to second so that John Black, a professional, could take all the second place money. Jones will receive a silver plate as third prize, since as an amateur, he cannot accept a cash award.

Black Lost Title by Hooking Drive on 17th, Hagen Writes

Bobby Jones, Atlanta Amateur, Fell Down on Same Hole—British Champion Asserts He Did His Best, but Failed.

By Walter Hagen,
British Open Golf Champion.

GLENCOE, Ill., July 15.—Gene Sarazen, a 21-year-old American home-bred professional, is the new Open Golf Champion of America, and I congratulate him. He played fine golf, and in the pinch he finished strong. He played the last two holes, difficult two shot distances, in perfect fours.

Sarazen has the proper temperament. He has stood out for the past two years as one of the best of the younger home-breds.

I finished fifth. I made the best fight I could. I never lost heart, not even when I needed threes on the long seventeenth and eighteenth to tie Gene. I was well on the seventeenth green and made a bold putt for it, so bold that it over-ran fully four feet and I missed coming back. I did the home hole in four and my final round was 72. But Gene did a 68 on his last 18, and it was good enough to win.

John Black, of California, looked like a certain winner, until the seventeenth hole of his last round. All he needed was a four and five or five and four to win, but he took a six at the seventeenth, where he pushed his tee shot out of bounds. He did the home hole in four and tied with Bobby Jones for second, a stroke behind.

Jones Misses Great Chance.

Jones had a chance. The Atlanta amateur came to the seventeenth tee needing two fours to tie Sarazen, but he hooked his drive off the seventeenth tee and found his ball on the hard clay bottom of a shallow trap. He had to play under the branches of a tree and although he made a fine shot, it was just short of the green. His third was weak and left him a 12-foot putt, which he failed to hole.

It was a great championship. There were 327 starters from all parts of America and with strong entries from Great Britain. It was a great championship to win. I wanted to win it and did my best but could not put it over. So the feat of winning the British and American titles in the same year is still open for competition. The first golfer to do it will accomplish something.

Black played great golf here. I can realize how badly he must feel to have lost that precious shot by hooking out of bounds at the next to last hole and thus spending the shot that would have given him a tie and an opportunity to play off. And Bobby Jones made such a grand struggle for it; and then was forced to take a five at the seventeenth when he wanted a four.

Sarazen There in Pinch.

It was Gene Sarazen, however, who had the big wallop in the pinch. His two fours at the seventeenth and eighteenth and his round of 68 was wonderful golf and we must all give him credit.

I started my last round in a position to win and got out in 35. I needed 34 coming in to tie. I got my 4s at the tenth and eleventh and twelfth and my par 3 at the thirteenth. This made me smile, for in the morning I had gotten "birdie" 3s at the fourteenth and fifteenth and figured I had a good chance for that 34.

I figured I might get a 3 and do the other holes in 4s. I had a par 4 at the fourteenth and drove well to the fifteenth, but my second shot, instead of finishing within putting distance of the hole, where I wanted it, trickled into a trap. The answer to that was a 5.

After that my task was more difficult, in fact, it was too much. That 5 made me even 4s for that nine and in need of two 3s out of three par 4 holes, two of the long ones. I couldn't do it.

My putt for 3s at the sixteenth and seventeenth were both over the hole, so I gave the ball a chance.

Joe Kirkwood and I depart for Louisville tonight on our tour.

35 Women Enter W. G. A. Tourney

Present Champion and Three-Time Former Champion Among Those to Send Names.

The stymie rule as adopted by the National and Western Golf Associations will be employed in the annual women's western golf championship which will be held over the Glen Echo Country Club course from Sept. 11 to 16 inclusive, it was announced by Mrs. Hathaway Watson, president of the western women's organization, recently.

In spite of the fact that many local women golfers have left the city on vacations, those who are still here are not permitting interest already injected in the big classic here to sag.

Local women and high officials of the Western Women's Golf Association hope this year's event will surpass in interest and enthusiasm any tournament yet held. Already 35 entries have been received.

Among these are Mrs. Melvin Jones and Mrs. F. C. Letts of Chicago. Mrs. Jones is the present champion, while Mrs. Letts held the title three years. She first won it in 1916, defended it successfully the following year and then came back to win it three years later. Last fall Mrs. Letts gained international fame by defeating Miss Cecil Leitch, British champion, in the National Women's titular tournament at Hollywood in Deal, N. J.

As Rickard Sees It, Whoever Promotes the Wills-Dempsey Bout This Year Will Go Broke or Crazy

Instead of Slipping, Benny Will Be Better Than Ever on July 27.

THE WILLS-DEMPSEY BOUT

Articles to Meet Have Been Signed, but When and Where Are Undetermined.

By John E. Wray.

Signor Rocco Tozze, battle-name "Rocky Kansas," through battered lips mumbled out the answer to the question often asked recently: "Has Benny Leonard gone back?"

"I fought Leonard four times," quoth Rocky, sorrowfully. "Three times I gave him a good fight. He hit me in all of them. But last July 4, oh, my, how he did hurt! Leonard hit me much harder than in our previous fights, and he beat me because he was a better boxer and hitter. I think Leonard is better now than ever."

All of which will be bad news for Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia challenger who is to meet Leonard in a title bout at Boyle's Thirty Acres, July 27. Lew himself has not improved much. It is not so many months past since Rocco Tozze rocked him hard and won a 15-round battle from the Philadelphian.

That Leonard flattened Kansas with such amazing ease will not contribute to Tendler's peace of mind or to any looseness of his backers' purse strings. It is practically certain now that Leonard will enter the ring a strong favorite over the challenger, in the next title bout on the calendar.

An effort is being made to prevent the fight from taking place in New Jersey. In that case, it will be all the worse for Tendler, since the contest will be shifted to New York, where it will have to be to a decision. For Leonard, whether as a boxer or fighter, stands out in the records as Tendler's superior.

Must Wait One Year.

The expected happened when Jack Dempsey and his manager refused to name a date for the fight with Wills. Dempsey signed to meet the brunette at an indefinite time, reserving for himself the right to make any interim matches he saw fit.

And he will see fit to make several, and to clean up all fields before submitted to the ordeal of Wills.

Recent pictures of Wills tell of one reason why the dusky person wants to mingle soon. Wills is within two or three weeks of condition. His photos show that he has no extra weight. His powerful muscles are sharply defined and his waist line is concave and ridged with muscles. In his pictures Wills shows himself to be an ideally built athlete—being even more symmetrical than Dempsey.

Dempsey has one feature of his physique in which he seems to outclass his foe—that is in his arm development. Dempsey's hand, forearm and upper arm are perfectly constructed for his profession. Speed and power are combined in his makeup. And the wonderful forearm is particularly adapted to short thrusts that carry knockout weight back of them. It was these blows that wore down Carpentier and made him ripe for the killing at Boyle's Thirty Acres a year ago.

When Dempsey and Wills meet it will be the champion's first engagement in four years wherein an opponent capable of giving him an argument has faced him. Dempsey had a time with Brennan their second engagement, but it was less because of Bill's merit than because of his own training shortcomings.

When he meets Wills there will be a lot of white money wagered on the black end of the argument.

Hard on the Dear Old Public.

No matter what happens, the D. O. P. digs down and gives up. New Jersey passed a law limiting the price of fight tickets to $15. It appeared a move in the interest of the fans. But it may turn out to be a strong move in the interest of the ticket scalpers.

If the Dempsey-Wills fight is held in Boyle's Thirty Acres, in order to pay the enormous guarantees that will be asked, the promoter will have to get the ante in some other way. The Carpentier-Dempsey fight limit was $55 and only a comparatively small number of seats were sold at that figure. Under the $15 limit it will be necessary to sell at least 20,000 seats at $15 each. This will send some of the ticket holders far into the background and will create an enormous demand for the nearer positions. Ticket scalpers invariably obtain a double Nelson on all desirable seats and the big fight will be no exception.

This means that the public will pay just as high for the choice seats as ever and that the Semitic money-changers, not the promoters, will reap the profits.

Whatever happens, they turn little old D. O. P. upside down and squeeze him till the change rolls out of his jeans.

Memphis Obtains Suggs.

By the Associated Press.

Huggins Expects 92 Victories To Win American League Flag

Thinks 1922 Race Is Two-Club Affair, With Yankees Better Than Browns — Fewer Successes Necessary This Year Because of Keener Competition.

NEW YORK, July 15.—"I want to win 44 more ball games to be sure of the 1922 pennant," said Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees during a breathing spell on Thursday afternoon, when the storm that wrecked the Giants' and Yanks' flag pole at the Polo Grounds, was raging, and it was certain that the American League champions would be unable to play the St. Louis Browns.

As the Yankees were rated as having won 48 games by the morning papers of Thursday, a moment's calculation was enough to show that the Yankee manager was figuring that 92 victories will be enough to carry off this year's gonfalon.

The fact that he had estimated 96 as his goal in 1921, was pointed out to him, also the fact that he won with 98 won and 55 lost for a percentage of .641. That did not cause him to change in the least his statement.

"Ninety two will be enough to win this year," he said. "This is a beautiful kind of a race."

A Two-Team Struggle.

Huggins, it would appear, is figuring on a two-club battle right down to the wire with the St. Louis Browns, with no third club in the running to give trouble as the Browns did last season in the memorable battle of the Yankees and the Cleveland Indians.

Very fine. Ninety-two games out of 154 seems a conservative sort of estimate. The Yanks MAY win the 92. But will 92 win the flag. That seems to be a question which the dope of yesteryear leaves away up in the air.

The National League has been running since 1876, and in all the years that old organization has rattled along there was only one year in which 92 games won and 62 games lost, for a percentage of .597, which is what Huggins is figuring on, have been enough to bring home the banner. That year was 1915, when the Phillies oozed through with .592.

The American circuit has been going since 1900, and in those 21 years the flag has only been won three times with a percentage of .597 or less. One of these was the curtailed "war" season of 1918, when the Red Sox took an unsatisfactory championship with .595. In 1917 Detroit Tigers under Hugh Jennings won a heart-breaking struggle with Cleveland and Chicago on the last day of the season and had .588, while the Red Sox went through the same sort of a trial in 1916 to win with .591.

Huggins an Optimist.

There are the facts, the "past performances" on which the work of all ball teams are judged by the careful, analytical mind of the fan. Sentiment doesn't sway this bird. He looks over the dope with a cold, fishy eye, figures what the Giants or the Yankees of today are doing when compared with what the Giants or the Cubs or the White Sox or Athletics of years ago did in similar circumstances and makes up his mind accordingly to this person at this stage of the proceedings the hope of Mr. Huggins, for it can hardly be called anything but a hope, reveals the leader of the Yankees as more or less of an optimist.

And yet you can't say on the form that competing teams have shown so far this year that he hasn't some ground for optimism. He is figuring on a pitching staff of undoubted ability coming through with a rush in the closing weeks of the season. And he is also figuring on a slump by the Browns, who have not yet had a setback the whole year through and have been favored by exceptional work by young pitchers that the "dope" doesn't figure as having a chance to show winning form in a big league year.

The Browns may fall back to help him, as the Pirates did to help the Giants last year. But the fact remains that to arrive at the goal of 92 games won, the Hug men must go a great deal faster than they have been going of late—about as fast as they went in the first six weeks of the year, when they mowed down all opposition with ridiculous ease. Then they won 20 games and lost only eight for a percentage of .714. A run like that is what they must put over now.

Yanks Must Put on Spurt.

The Yanks had played 84 games to Friday morning, having won 48 games and lost 36 for a percentage of .571. In order to come through with the 92 games which he has made his goal, Huggins will have to win 44 while losing only 26 of his remaining battle, for a percentage of .629.

There's nothing remarkable in a .629 percentage for a real pennant winning team, a team of real champions, but to the fan who has been watching things around the Polo Grounds the last week or so it is apparent that the star pitching staff must begin to pitch soon and the big hitters must begin to bat in some runs, or they will find themselves trailing the Browns around the first day of October.

Peewee Kaiser to Box Clever Billy Mascott at East St. Louis Aug. 8

JOHN PEEWEE KAISER, it was announced last night, has been matched to box Billy Mascott ten rounds at Polo Park, East St. Louis, Aug. 8. The event will be the feature of the second show under the auspices of the Majestic A. C.

Mascott appeared in one bout against Patsy Flanagan and made an excellent impression. He hit Flanagan with about everything at hand and was very clever and shifty. He pleased the spectators and shocked and pained our bantamweight pride, Mr. Flanagan. He is shifty enough to worry Peewee Kaiser as well.

Mascott is a Far West product who has been doing very well since transplanted to the Atlantic seaboard.

Nazzaro Sets New Record in Winning French Grand Prix

One Driver Is Killed, While Mechanician Suffers Fractured Arm and Leg.

By the Associated Press.

STRASBOURG, July 15.—All French automobile records were smashed today in the Grand Prix, won by Feliz Nazzaro of Italy in a Fiat car after two of his teammates, Biaggo Nazzaro was killed and his mechanician, Germano, had his leg and arm broken, when their car turned turtle going around the Entzheim hairpin curve.

Just before this accident Biaggo Nazzaro had passed the third Fiat driver, Bordino, who after leading to the 55th lap, was having motor trouble. Biaggo was sure of second position at only moderate speed, but did not slacken down and met with his accident in going after the lap record of 5 minutes, 53 seconds made by Bordino in his 52nd lap, for an average of 87.3 miles an hour.

Felix Nazzaro's time was the best ever made in a Grand Prix competition, averaging 79.4 miles and hour for the distance of a fraction under 500 miles.

While Bordino and his mechanic were working feverishly upon their motor they had to stand by and see Deviscava and Marco in French Bugatti cars, who had been several laps behind, go whirling around the track and snatch second and third places.

There remained only one entry on the track after Marco had finished and the judges stopped the race, owing to the poor time being made.

The day proved disastrous for famous drivers like Goux, Gouyot, Hermery, Wagner, Wagner and Chassagne, all falling by the wayside at various stages of the race. Goux went through the fence on the 33rd lap. He was uninjured.

The track was slippery.

"Poge" Lewis, the Triple A hurler, after holding the Muckerman's scoreless for six rounds, was the victim of a terrific batting attack which netted eight runs in the seventh.

Another feature of the league's play was the double victory of the McElroy-Sloan team over the Western Electric outfit, 9 to 6 and 18 to 7.

In the other game, the Butler Bros. team won from the Rapidayton outfit, 8 to 7. The Rapidayton outfit put five runs over in the first inning, but the Butlers tallied four times in each of the fourth and fifth inning, piling up a lead the losers were unable to overcome.

Big Three May Limit Preliminary Gridiron Practice to One Week

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 15.—Shortening of the preliminary season for football practice at Yale, Princeton and Harvard from one month to two weeks or even to a week, is quite probable, in view of impending action by President J. G. Hibbon of Princeton, President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard and President James Rowland Angell if Yale.

At San Francisco, a week ago, President Hibbon stated a committee had been named "To remove objectionable features from college athletics," and that the three university presidents were the committee.

A number of so-called evils to be eradicated, it was stated, were the termination of the practice of putting a transferred student into the same sport in which he may have starred in the college he left, to strengthen the team which he joins, and to end the practice of recruiting prospective stars from preparatory institutions.

FINAL ROUND OF DAVIS CUP NET SERIES MAY BE POSTPONED FOR A WEEK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Arrangements for at least three and possibly four rounds of international tennis play will be discussed by the Davis Cup Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Assiciation next Friday so that preparations will be complete when the French team arrives late this month.

The French team will play the semifinals match with the Australian players at the Longwood Cricket Club, Boston, the winner to meet in the final the team that is victorious in the Spain-British Isles semifinals. Whether the two latter teams will play in the United States is uncertain.

Postponement of the final round from Aug. 17, 18 and 19 to Aug. 24, 25 and 26 may be made to oblige the British team, providing neither of the other three semifinals object. The challenge round between the United States, holder of the cup, and the finalist winner will be held at Forest Hills, L. I.

An open week in the schedule was provided so that postponement would not seriously disarrange plans.

Bud Lerner, New 2-Year-Old Star Wins Whirl Stake

Of the two, chief interest centered in the Whirl Stakes, and Bud Lerner, which is rated by many the best 2-year-old shown so far this season, more than confirmed this opinion by taking up 122 pounds, conceding from seven to 10 pounds to his opponents and winning easily.

Earl Sande, who, by the way, rode the winner of both fixtures had Bud Lerner off with the leaders and rating him cleverly close to the pace set by R. T. Wilsons' Tall Timber, came on in the stretch, to win going away by a length and a half from Better Luck.

It was an impressive performance and one which leaves no doubt as to his quality and his right to a rating among the leaders. Tall Timber, a son of Campfire, once again showed high speed, but once again failed to carry it the full distance.

Hephaistos Runs Well.

Hephaistos ran a much better race for Sande in the Empire City Derby, worth $6550 to the winner, than he did for Frank Keogh on Thursday. In his last race he dropped so far out of it in the early part that he had to close a huge gap to finish third to Brainstorm and Prodigious. It was different today. He had enough foot so that Sande was able to rate him along in second place behind Firm Friend in good position to go to the front when the latter tired at the stretch turn. The rest was easy. He was only galloping through the last sixteenth to beat Letterman two lengths.

Firm Friend can be put down as a non-stayer. He had a world of speed today, and galloped along in front under some restraint to the home turn, where he began to shorten his stride. At this point he bore out sharply just as Hephaistos challenged on the outside and interfered slightly with the winner.

This cost "Chick" Lang a suspension of six days and Mrs. Louise Viau third money of $500. The stewards felt that Lang deliberately fouled Hephaistos and as a result disqualified Firm Friend and imposed the punishment on the boy. This moved Lally into third place.

WHITE ROSE TEAM PLAYS ALTON IN FEATURE TILT IN THE TROLLEY LEAGUE

The Missouri Illinois Trolley League starts today on its second leg of a split season with the White Rose Club of Belleville being awarded the first series by one full game over the Car Builders of Mount Vernon, Ill.

Today the four park owning teams will meet each other. In Belleville, the White Roses are scehduled to tackle the Alton Blues. The White Rose won in the other meeting, 3 to 2 in fifteen innings.

At Polo Park, East St. Louis, the Tricities entertain Mount Vernon. Manager Rogers of the Packers will depend upon Eddie Lambing or Leo Diehl to humble the visitors, while Elders will probably use big Lankenau.

Then Ben Millers and the Maroons, of Collinsville, will travel to Mount Vernon, Ill. Worden and O'Neil are the probably pitchers.

At Sportsmen's Park, Alton, the Wiles Chipmans and the Maxwell Motors battle. Fisher, the youngster who pitched a great game against the Packers last Sunday, will be sent against the champions, while Henderson is manager Moore's selection.

EVERYTHING IN READINESS FOR 1922 TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY BENEFIT GAME

Final details of the program for the big charity ball game at Sportsman's Park Wednesday have been completed, it was announced last night and everything points to the best day in the history of this annual event. The gates will open at 1 o'clock and the program will start at 1:15 with a band concert and parade of all the participants. Following this in close succession will come a vaudeville entertainment, a pitching and accurate throwing contest in which members of the two professional teams playing that day will take part; a girls' relay shuttle race, a preliminary ball game in which the Firemen of the city and the St. Louis Mail Carriers will cross bats, the finish of the sixth Junior Marathon which starts at 2:45 at Moolah Temple, and the final event of the day, the professional game between the Cardinals and Braves. This will be the first game played in the coming series between these two National League clubs.

Announcement was made yesterday by J. F. Oberwinder, general chairman of the committee, that rain checks are attached to the tickets for the event just as to the usual ball game ticket and that there is no war tax on the tickets sold for Wednesday. This ruling was made by the Internal Revenue Collector's office, Oberwinder said, because the game is for charity and is educational to a large extent.

KIRKWOOD-HAGEN GOLF EXHIBITION TOMORROW

Walter Hagen, British open champion, and Joe Kirkwood, Australian champion and the world's greatest trick shooter, will give an exhibition at North Hills Country Club, tomorrow, at 3:30 p. m.

The North Hills course is still in the making, with the exception of a driving tee.

Hagen will give an exhibition showing how he employs his various clubs and will express his views on various angles of the game. He will cover all features except putting.

Kirkwood will go through his repertroie of tricks. His exhibition lasts one hour and some features of his performance have excited considerable comment.

A bleacher seating several thousand persons will be provided for the accommodation of spectators, the management announced. North Hill Club is situated on the Old Florissant road. No admission will be charged and a 25-cent jitney service from Wellston will be provided for those who have no automobiles.

The exhibition originally was scheduled for Saturday, but the postponement of the Skokie tourney due to rain compelled a change of Hagen's plans.

IS GERMANY REALLY NEAR FINANCIAL COLLAPSE OR IS SHE STRIVING TO EVADE HER JUST DEBTS TO THE ALLIES

Read the Following Excerpts From the Address of the Late Dr. Walter Rathenau Before the Supreme Council at Cannes for an Understanding of the German Viewpoint of Difficulties That Beset the Country on Reparations.

In this speech delivered before the supreme council of the Allies at Cannes, Jan. 12, of this year, the late Dr. Walter Rathenau attempted an explanation of the great German anomaly. Here was a country of 60,000,000 people, known to be among the most industrious of mankind, with their hands full of work and, to all observers, teeming with prosperity, yet claiming to be on the verge of bankruptcy and unable to meet the demands for reparations to which she was obligated under the treaty of peace. Was Germany a dishonest creditor, scheming to evade her rightful duty, or did she suffer from an internal economic malady that justified the aid and patience of her creditors? Dr. Rathenau's address has been called a masterly piece of exposition and its reproduction here is to help toward an understanding of the present crisis.

By DR. WALTER RATHENAU

GERMANY is determined to fulfill its obligations to the utmost extreme limit of its ability. Germany was always a country of order, but it has passed through a lost war, heavy losses and a revolution. Germany's abnormal conditions of living and of its finances, which are the consequences of these happenings, are most severely felt by Germany itself, and it wants to relieve them. Germany does not wish to shake up the world market by underbidding.

Fulfillment toward the outside and balancing interior finances are the two problems facing Germany. But these contradict one another. To apply an example, may I suggest to you the analogy of a shipbuilder who is simultaneously requested to provide a craft having the highest possible power with a minimum consumption of coal? It is, therefore, difficult to say such and such payment represents sufficient and endurable fulfillment. However, a sum must be decided on, the burden of which is endurable and which simultaneously is agreeable to the economic situation of the receiving country. We know that figures have been mentioned in your circle for the year 1922. Five hundred million gold marks payment in cash and 1,450,000,000 for delivery in kind, including the exterior costs of occupation. I select these figures as a basis for my calculations. Should a higher sum be mentioned with 220,000,000 more, the problem would be made still more difficult and dangerous.

The following is the situation on which German payments will be based: Germany is a country of wage earners. It receives raw materials, changes these to products and finally sells the finished product. With the exception of coal, there remained only a negligible amount of other raw materials to Germany after the war. Even potash, about which there is so much talk, is not so very significant. In addition, there are minute amounts of copper and zinc. Everything else Germany needs for construction and equipment of homes, for clothing, food, etc., it must buy in foreign countries. Consequently, Germany must buy for cash everything it purchases. It can only pay, however, by its manual labor. It is, therefore, necessary that Germany's trade balance be in her favor. Our balance is burdened, however, from the very start with the necessary import of foodstuffs to the amount of two and one-half billions and raw materials to the extent of another two and one-half billions. This does not include the needed import of semi-finished products and luxuries which is not inconsiderable and which to a large extent at least Germany does not of her own free will buy merely for the sake of maintaining trade traffic with her neighbors.

Cites Three Alternatives.

Reversing our former position in which we annually received one and one-half billions interest on our capital invested abroad, we must now pay out some three-fourths billion marks annually to foreign investors in Germany.

Thus the negative side of our paying balance shows a minus of about five and three-fourths billions gold marks. In other words, there are two billion gold marks against us to start out with. This, without any calculations for reparations payments.

Replying to Mr. Lloyd George: It is quite correct that in view of the standing of the world index of 1.5, German exports ought now to amount to about fourteen to fifteen billions gold marks if they were actually to correspond to the pre-war standing. In other words, Germany's exports have decreased about one-fourth of the pre-war standing.

There are only three possible ways to cover the deficit of our payment balance:

1. Sell out national property—the substance of the country.
2. Large foreign loans.
3. Sell out the national currency—paper marks.

We were unable to interfere with the selling out of much national property. The selling out process took place on a large scale. Real estate, new enterprises, stocks, shares, bonds, obligations, even house furnishings and much other property was bought up by foreign capital far below its real value.

The raising of a foreign loan we have tried. It was impossible to carry out the plan because the general opinion in London banking circle was that the burdens resting on Germany were too great and left no space for a loan.

Mark Buyers on Strike.

The selling-out process of German paper currency went on up to the middle of the year 1921 without any sort of disturbance resembling a panic. It was not encouraged by Germany, but started from outside countries, which quite correctly estimated the interior value of the mark higher than its exterior notation. About the middle of the year 1921, however, something happened which might have been foreseen—the purchasers of the mark went on strike. In the very moment it was realized that we were forced to raise a billion gold marks, or thirty billion paper marks, on very short notice, the mark purchasers put their hands into their pocket and waited to see what would happen. Then followed the collapse of the mark and the dollars advanced from 55 to 300 paper marks for the dollar.

In Germany as well as abroad it has been said that this sudden depreciation was due to inflation and the overstimulation of the printing press in Germany. That is a mistake. Otherwise the collapse would not have come so sudden and within such a short time. Furthermore, the notation improved again considerably as soon as the slightest indication of a blue spot reappeared on the dark horizon. The blue spots on the horizon were the reports on the first negotiations between the French and the British Governments regarding a settlement as to our obligations for the year 1922.

"I now come to a very important point. As long as the currency of a country has been thrown out of balance on the international exchange market, it is impossible to regulate for any length of time any budget, with a feeling of certainty. Every new decline in the notation automatically brings about an increase of expenditures for salaries, wages, raw materials. The budget of the State, however, only consists of these three items.

At this moment our budget for 1922 balances. It even presents certain surpluses, but it does not include reparations. Every new decline of the mark, every interior advance in prices, however, will endanger this budget.

Menace of German Competition.

If it is assumed that the reparation burdens will become endurable, the mark can rise and the amount of state expenditures in paper marks can be decreased. On the other hand, the more the mark depreciates the greater and more dangerous becomes the competition of German products on foreign markets.

What, then, is the medicine for recovery? How can the restoration of the German exchange ever be achieved?

As a means of immediate relief, one could think of the reduction of consumption in general. This, however, is hardly achievable, for both the working men and the middle class live far below their pre-war standard. It can only be a question of increased production and in coal exports. Such an increase, however, is difficult, because other countries naturally will be antagonized by an increase of German imports. There remains one other means, and that is to raise the agricultural production, but that takes time, because of the unfavorable conditions of the soil as a result of the extreme intensity of farming carried on during and after the war.

I will not discuss in detail the burdens resting on Germany. The budget for 1922 amounts to 85,000,000,000, excluding reparations and other obligations resulting from the treaty. In order to balance this burden it was necessary to double the tax burdens.

I don't want to enter here upon the very important question of the comparative taxation burdens. We have prepared memorandums on this question which we will place at your disposal. It is proved that the average German will carry a more heavy tax burden in the future than any one citizen of any other country—especially either France or England.

In order to consolidate the State budget the first task must be to restore the rentability of all

MRS. PETER OLESEN CONCEDED CHANCE OF ELECTION

CLOQUET, Minn., July 15.

SINCE accompanying the news of the nomination for the first time of a woman candidate for the Senate, there comes the information that Mrs. Peter Olesen, running as a Democrat in a Republican stronghold such as Minnesota, has a fighting chance of being elected (and that she is a good fighter), people may well be curious as to what the situation is and what manner of woman it is upon whom suffragists and Democrats all over the country may be justified in basing fond hopes.

The candidacy of the second woman nominated for the Senate—Mrs. Ben F. Hooper of Wisconsin—must regretfully be acknowledged as more or less perfunctory. Running against the progressive incumbent, La Follette, there are too many odds against her to permit the hope that she may be able to do more than gracefully keep the Democratic emblem in the field—unless, indeed, the millenium really is at hand.

The home of Mrs. Olesen is in Cloquet, in the northern part of Minnesota, not far from Duluth. Enough to make Democratic hopes quail —though, having just visited the candidate in her home, I am in a position to reassure my less confident readers that never in the South have I encountered a purer brand of democracy nor a warmer hospitality. Early in the morning Mr. Peter Olesen met your correspondent at the train, her teeth chattering, her breath congealing in the atmosphere, readily crediting what the fellow said of how the coldest winter he ever spent was one summer in Duluth!

Husband Superintendent of Cloquet Schools for 15 Years.

A gaunt, tall, broad-shouldered, stalwart figure of a man is Peter Olesen, true to the type of the sturdy settlers of this region. At 15 he arrived in America from Denmark, penniless and in debt for his passage, since which time he has put himself through college, attaining two degrees, an M. A. and a Ph. D. For 15 years he has been superintendent of schools in Cloquet.

Right away the family, consisting of mother and father and daughter, Mary, 14 years old, are to be considered as a unit, so solely are the three of one heart and mind and impulse in regard to this candidacy. Already it has been decided that when Mrs. Olesen goes to Washington her husband shall accompany her as a sort of associate Senator, politics and patriotism having always been his most absorbing interest in the new land.

Just now he is attending to the publicity end of the campaign and making an occasional speech in Norse, the more familiar language in many sections of this State. While Mary is acting as chauffeur of the Ford sedan, already occupying a prominent place in any news of the campaign, since in it before the primaries, Mrs. Olesen traversed 80 of the 86 counties of the State. On its doors and spare tire cover is emblazoned the legend, "Anna D. Olesen for United States Senator." It was the gift of the Minneapolis Women's Olesen-for-Senator Club.

Cloquet is a lumber town of 7500 population. More white pine is planed at its several mills than anywhere else in the world. Before we got within sight of the town on the way from the railroad station at Carlton six miles away, we could hear the humming of the mills and later saw the St. Louis River filled solidly with logs. Four fine modern school buildings of excellent types of architecture were to be observed, achievements of the Olesen administration; and these are successors to five others, also built during the present incumbency, the others having been destroyed by fire, for Cloquet happens to be one of those towns which were swept off the map by forest fires that devastated 10,000 square miles in Minnesota some five years ago. The town rebuilt, is all new, but substantial in character.

"Bless your dear old Missouri heart!" exclaimed the candidate for Senator, emerging from the kitchen of the upstairs flat with a platter of ham and eggs. "I did my first campaigning in Missouri before the last presidential election and I learned all I know about it there." At which, the stains of travel having been removed and an appetite duly whetted, the correspondent felt moved to remark, "I think you learned to outdo even our candidates for office in hospitality.

She is a tiny slip of a woman, scarcely five feet tall, slender, but with a well-rounded figure. She passed her thirty-seventh birthday on the third of July and probably is the only woman anywhere who is treasuring a few years over 30, without which she wouldn't be entitled to sit in the upper house of Congress. Large, expressive eyes, with a mouth that smiles readily and broadly and a head that is almost top-heavy with hair were one's first impressions. Very soon it was to be observed that those eyes could flash fire in emphasis of some civic wrong. A trick of closing them tight at the close of the more earnest of her sentences adds to an impression of intense sincerity.

Was Jackson Day Dinner Speaker in Washington in 1920.

We remember her in St. Louis for a most impressive brand of eloquence upon the occasion of a League of Women Voters' banquet, when she debated the issues of the day with Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton of Ohio. This was not long after a Jackson day dinner in Washington in 1920, when she had addressed that assemblage of nationally prominent Democrats and taken them off their feet with what she had to say on Democratic principles and the way in which she said it. That first big speech was widely commented upon and she became at once a nationally known and recognized figure in the party. Afterward she went to San Francisco as a delegate at large, supporting McAdoo valiantly to the end. So it is not without prestige she comes to her present honor.

Enter Mary with a glass of milk in each hand. Seeing the stranger and no place within arm's reach upon which to deposit the glasses, she stops short, places them on the floor and advances with a greeting, shy but warm, and a girlish giggle. Not a bit of a flapper is Mary, with her sensible cotton stockings, her gingham apron and long hair in thick braids down her back.

At breakfast the talk turned politely first to the situation in Missouri. Was it possible that Senator Reed, after the repudiation in San Francisco and his record of party obstructionism, was having the effrontery to run again? Surely it would be a trick of the Republicans should he succeed—and against ex-Secretary Long with his worthy record! Such was the impression from their point of perspective.

Chautauqua Engagements to Precede Campaign Opening.

Out into the kitchen while mother and daughter washed and wiped the dishes, the visitor was invited, the time for talking being all too short, since the candidate would have to take a train soon after noon for South Dakota to fill some chautauqua engagements which must be got out of the way before the real campaign starts.

We talked of the comparative virtues of Walt Whitman and Emerson, of antique furniture, of clothes—but each subject would lead back to politics, with Mary not the least conversant one among us on the issues of the day.

"People may say—I hear them say, 'She's got a lot of nerve to run for the United States Senate,'" remarked Mrs. Olesen. "I have, if nothing less, two pioneer grandmothers for inspiration. My grandparents on both sides came to Minnesota in the fifties. Both my grandfathers went into the Civil War. They were with the First Minnesota, which regiment history will tell you, turned the tide at Gettysburg. My grandmothers remained at home and fought Indians and wild beasts. We need not exclaim about pioneers when we think of what they did. Let us hope we have no greater terrors than savages and wild beasts to fight in these civilized times."

Should she be elected, Mrs. Olesen will be the first native-born Senator Minnesota has had, it was remarked.

"I am the daughter of a farmer and the wife of a salaried man. I come from the plain people, representing that largest, least organized class," said she. "I favor a people's bloc in Congress as opposed to any other bloc whatsoever."

Judge One of Mrs. Olesen's Most Ardent Supporters.

Then we must take a drive about town and call upon many neighbors, among them Judge Schiebe, probably the most prominent Democrat, having been postmaster during Wilson's administration. He is a Lincolnian type and besides claiming to be the original Olesen-for-Senator man, claims also to be an infallible prognosticator, and that he predicted this nomination two years ago. Quite as insistently now he is predicting the election of his candidate.

"An old, unreconstructed Democrat refused to accept a ballot with a woman's name at the top at the primaries the other day," Judge Schiebe began one of his stories. "'Woman's place is in the kitchen,' he declared. I told him if we could prevail upon him to stump the State with that assertion and one other—that there are too many Scandinavian names in the Senate—our fortunes would be made.'

It was a great disappointment to Mrs. Olesen when the Attorney-General ruled she would have to appear as Anna Dickie—instead of Mrs. Peter Olesen—on the ticket, the Scandinavian name carrying much weight in this section.

It was from Judge Schiebe I got much of my information on the political situation and our heroine's chances.

The diminutive feminine candidate, as is well known, is running against the present incumbent, Senator Frank B. Kellogg, whose billboard advertisements proclaim him "A Big Man for a Big Job." Also he clings to the sobriquet, "Trust Buster," though the very same decision he won against Standard Oil which conferred upon him that title some years ago, now, they say, is being turned to good account by the steel trust, for which interest, with the lumber and other large interests flourishing in Minnesota, the Senator now is legal representative.

Minnesota Politics Enwrapped in Toils of Big Interests.

Minnesota politics more than the politics of any other state, not excepting Pennsylvania, are enwrapped in the toils of big interests, one was told, one tentacle of the octopus representing steel and iron, another lumber, in which products the State ranks high, if not highest among the States.

Kellogg is the popular, hand-shaking, back-slapping type of politician, and Republican patronage is liberally dispensed in the State.

"The opposition has a powerful machine, while I have only a Ford," commented Mrs. Olosen, with mock deprecation. Then, striking her more accustomed attitude, which is forceful, dauntless conviction, she added: "What I really mean to say is, the opposition has a cumbersome machine, while I have a Ford!"

People already are suggesting soon the Ford may supplant the donkey as a more modern and fitting emblem of democracy and progress.

While Senator Kellogg may be said to represent the interests mentioned, there is another great interest, agriculture, which he has not succeeded in representing to its entire saisfaction, one learns.

And from the car window, in gazing out over endless seas of waving grain which nestle at far intervals, great red barns, fat silos and spic and span farmhouses, one easily gets the impression that Minnesota must be pre-eminently an agricultural State.

Senator Kellogg always is promising to do something for the farmers, but the principal thing he has done, so far as one can discover in Cloquet, is to place 200 weed inspectors on the State payrolls.

For Giving Farmers Market for Products, Not Cutting Weeds.

He was the author of the bill which raised the national apropriation to fight the barberry bush to $500,000. Now weed inspectors ride about in State automobiles locating patches of the wrong kind of barberries. Having no power to enforce removal, they repair to hotel rooms and make plats.

"Why, my father used to enjoy, on a rainy day, when he couldn't do anything else, getting out with his scythe and his pipe and his dog and cutting the weeds as he gossiped with the passers by. Let them give the farmers a market for their goods and they'll take care of their own weeds."

This is an observation which always gets applause in Mrs. Olesen's speeches. "What we need is a real dirt farmer on the Federal Reserve Board to assure the farmers control of their own credits," she does not fail to add. "And speaking of barberry bushes, what about that Newberry bush they are cultivating in the Senate!"

Due to the independent agricultural interests, Minnesota has on occasion done some things which have disappointed and surprised the Re-

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Anathematizing Anatole France.

I WAS really astounded Saturday evening when I read in your columns a cablegram from Paris announcing that the Pope had placed all the works of Anatole France on the Index Expurgatorius, and had forbidden Catholics all over the world to read the famous French writer's books. This is a bad beginning for the new Pope, just when the French people were thought to have patched up their troubles with the Vatican. It is all the more deplorable when one knows, as I do from intimate acquaintance with the works in question, that nowhere in all modern literature can one find so many admirable portraits of the best types of the priest—the gentle, suave, helpful, profound, lovable cure who sees all without seeming to observe—somewhat skeptical, no doubt, as all really wise men are—whether lay or cleric—and pondering over all the events of life without passing judgment upon them.

And the painter of such priestly portraits and thousands others equally beautiful besides, is placed on the index and banned from the bookshelf of millions of Catholics. One effect of the papal ban no doubt will be, as is usually the case, that thousands of people—and many of them Catholics—will procure the works of Anatole France and read them for themselves, to their great edification and enlightenment.

A Klansman Defines Citizenship.

I BELIEVE in the Ku Klux for the reason that they stick for American people and for American rights in his own country. They are not against Catholics, but they do hate foreigners, just the same as lots of other Americans.

The foreigners come over here and get work, where Americans can't. That's what the Ku Klux is for—to get such trash out of a good country.

Teach Peace in the Schools.

ONLY a few words about the end of wars: I think it is not wise to engage somebody to write a novel about the horrors of wars, as Philip Enzinger suggested in this column. It would not help the cause. And why engage somebody, when we have already well-known men who wrote good books about the late war? These men were not engaged to write. They wrote from their own convictions. They suffered directly by the war in the trenches or behind and they know what they write about. Here are three of them: Andreas Latzko, Henry Barbusse and Romain Rolland. I recommend everybody read their works. There is only truth in them and no hypocrisy, as, I believe, would be plenty in a book written by a man who was engaged, or, worse, paid to write it. It is amazing how everybody wants the end of wars; but I don't see any enthusiasm about it.

Do you remember the beginning of the last war—and do you see now the beginning of the peace? How different! It takes books to explain the causes of this phenomenon, but I am sure not mistaken if I tell you in short the fundamental cause. It is wrong education. No propaganda for peace will help if it does not go to the schools; educate the children for peace and not for wars. Take out of their heads the wrong meaning of patriotism and other bunk. Give them Prof. Van Loon's history as text book. Don't teach them that Pershing, Hindenburg, Foch, etc., are heroes. Their ambition will be to become a Pershing, etc., and not real men. Catch the thing by the right end. It is in vain to hold a snake by the tail.

Voting by Mail.

A FEW hundred votes are miscounted at an election and there is an outcry. A half million registered voters fail to record their preferences and there is scarcely a groan. Which evil defeats more the ends of good government? In large cities, as a rule, only half the eligible citizens are even registered. Therefore in important municipal elections sometimes only one-tenth the eligibles vote. The average citizen likes to vote, is proud to vote. Then why don't the total eligibles register and vote in each election? The polling place is the trouble, "too much trouble." Voting should be a pleasure, not a task.

The success in some states of "absent voting" by mail, in spite of its obstructive formula, may have helped inspire the recent spurt of interest in "entire elections by mail." But its real impetus will be found in two very divergent sources: (1) Enfranchised women's dislike of the polling place; (2) exasperated "wets" casting about for a referendum medium. There is much in favor of a scientific mail method. It would make voting a pleasant, home affair, with no loss of work or time, weather of no account, and election costs cut in half. More effectively than compulsory voting it would bring into action the total eligibles and thus "bury" evil candidates and all likely frauds.

AN INDEFENSIBLE POSITION.

The report of Chairman Hooper with regard to his effort to settle the shopmen's strike is informing on the situation, but it puts the carriers in the better and the shopmen in the worse light than they seemed to be from the statements of the two.

The carriers agreed to undertake to have the contract system wiped out on all roads, in accordance with the ruling of the Labor Board, and to establish regional boards of adjustment. They agreed to a rehearing on all disputed points before the board; in short to a review of the case in which both sides would submit their arguments for another decision.

On the other hand, while the shopmen agreed to another hearing, they demanded that certain concessions be made by the carriers before the hearing was reopened—as a condition precedent to calling the strike off and the decisions of the board. The carriers must agree to changes in the wage and rule decisions. The shopmen also demanded that the strikers be reinstated in the positions and seniority of the men employed during the strike.

The shopmen's position is that they are willing to go before the Labor Board for a rehearing, but before the rehearing takes place the carriers must concede the principal points upon which they differ. In short, they insist upon getting the fruits of a favorable verdict before the case is tried.

So long as that spirit prevails among the striking shopmen we do not believe that fair arbitration is possible. The fundamental principle of arbitration is the submission of all differences, with the understanding that both sides will abide by the decision.

Both sides should drop technicality and evasion and agree to any reasonable method of settling their differences and averting the crisis confronting the country. But Chairman Hooper's statement shows conclusively that the carriers show the better spirit and the sounder attitude. They not only accept the decisions of the board and agree to conform to them, but are willing to have the decisions reviewed in another hearing.

In this crisis the major responsibility rests upon the striking shopmen. They refuse to accept the board's decisions and to submit their grievances to a rehearing or to call off the strike without direct and immediate concession in advance of the rehearing. Men who stand in this unreasonable position may cause the country hardship and suffering, but cannot win their case at the bar of public opinion. They declare war, not only against the railroad managements, but against the Government's Arbitration Board and the country.

HOW HENRY FORD DOES IT.

Pointing out that Henry Ford pays his coal miners at Banner Fork $3 a day more than any other operator in the district, and sells the coal for 50 cents a ton less, an editor asks: "How does he do it?" It is just possible that Ford accomplishes this curious result through the quaint, old-fashioned policy of operating efficiently and being satisfied with a decent profit per ton.

THE PRESIDENT'S PET.

The minority members of the House Merchant Marine Committee, in recommending the defeat of the ship subsidy bill, which is the particular legislative apple of the President's eye, find that, on top of the enormous cost of war inflation in ship building and post-war deflation, the item of "promotion deflation" would be added to the burden of the people. The loss of $2,800,000,000 already taken by the people would be increased by loans and subsidies, the latter of which is a burden that would be carried indefinitely.

Even these charges the public might resign itself to endure if it were known that anything would be gained by the transaction. But what use have we for ships when Congress and the executive, both by omission and commission, are contriving to strangle American trade with all countries that lie over the seas? We have refused to participate in the rehabilitation of Europe or to send representatives to its councils. Now to make our isolation positive and complete Congress is about to enact a tariff bill that would make the sale of nearly all foreign goods in this country prohibitive. We cannot sell abroad unless we buy, and Mr. McCumber and Mr. Fordney propose to prohibit us from buying.

Why sell our Government ships at a price which makes them almost a gift, give millions for subsidies and then shut off their reason for existence? If Mr. Harding were appealing to the people and not to his own party majority in Congress he would be a long time ringing the bell on that issue.

SHELLEY AND THE WORLD.

The most interesting thing, possibly, in connection with the centenary of Shelley's death is the contrast between the ferment of the present and the tranquility of 1892, when the centenary of the poet's birth was celebrated. The quiet Victorian world of 30 years ago had resolved all doubts as to Shelley's place among the poets. As Andrew Lang had written it a few years before, the verdict was "Well done," and the sentence passed was "Immortality of fame." To be sure, as Lang acknowledges, there were dissenters still, and the departures from the conventions and his feud with society dating from the Oxford expulsion could still cause prudish heads to shake. Nevertheless, the world fared eagerly and gratefully on the "fairy bread and enchanted wine" of the matchless lyricist.

Such of the world today as reads Shelley reads his poetry, particularly his philosophy and raging fury, more intelligently and more sympathetically. The impassioned lines "Of a Republican on the Fall of Bonaparte," for example, are more than the emotion of impetuous youth; they are the considered judgment of history as interpreted by H. G. Wells.

To understand Shelley, a biographer tells us, we must know the background of his life. One sentence from Van Loon's "Story of Mankind" gives us the necessary viewpoint—the stifling tyranny of the Holy Alliance that lay like a curse on the aspirations born of the tempest. Thought was enslaved. On this side of the Atlantic the dreams of Rousseau had been forged into a living instrument, though the Latin ideal had been tempered by Anglo-Saxon common sense. Shelley did not perceive this. He inveighed against the serfdom of his own environment.

If the world has a higher respect now for the brilliant revolutionary than it did when it observed the centenary of his birth, the shade of Shelley, it may be assumed, has a higher opinion of the world. For bourbonism has been smashed and the derivatives of feudalism either have passed or are passing. In a fanciful way, at least, the poet's splendid entreaty of the West Wind, by many believed to be his greatest poem, has been answered. The last stanza, concluding in a rare burst of faith, has a majestic beauty as well as prophetic vision:

> Drive my dead thoughts over the universe
> Like withered leaves to quicken a new birth!
> And, by the incantation of this verse,
> Scatter, as from an unextinguished hearth
> Ashes and sparks, my words among mankind!
> Be through my lips to unawakened earth
> The trumpet of a prophecy! O, wind,

FLAPPERS THERE AND HERE.

Fannie Hurst, back from Europe, tells a correspondent of the Post-Dispatch that they have a superior sense of values over there. For illustration, the flapper commands little attention; it is to the woman of 60 that Europe pays homage.

With our abasement at the flapper's twinkling feet Miss Hurst has little patience. But the implication that we are wanting in respect for age can easily be refuted. If the American woman of 60 has no crowded salon it is explained by the fact that there are no women of 60 in America. Blithely defiant of the calendar and the machinations of Anno Domini, the American woman of 60 is as svelte and nimble as Miss Sixteen. Her "endearing young charms" persist. Her eyebrow would doubtless inspire sonnets, too, if sonnets had not been jazzed out of romance's technique.

And as for the flapper on her pedestal, where else, pray, should she be perched? That is her prerogative. And brief is her sparkling dominion. At most, "a lovely apparition sent to be a moment's ornament." If Europe, doddering or swaggering along, can't see the flapper, as Fannie Hurst says, then Europe's case is hopeless.

MR. ANTWINE'S OPINION.

"IT has been some time since the Democrats felt like laughing, but I think they can laugh now without any fear that the time hasn't come," Mr. Antwine said.

"I want you to read a statement made the other day by Mr. Adams, chairman of the Republican National Committee. He said: 'The complete resumption of prosperity is halted while a tariff measure fulfilling Republican pledges is delayed by a Democratic filibuster in the Senate which violates the principle of majority rule in this government of public opinion.'

"Some of these Democrats are Senators Borah, Lenroot, Norris, Edge, Moses, Brandegee and Johnson, all of whom voted against cloture and left the tariff bill open to debate on the floor. Some of these Senators have declared their inability to vote for the bill.

"So much for that. Now let us be sure that nobody has a cracked lip before we analyze the statement that prosperity is being delayed by failure of the tariff bill to pass. It is estimated by opponents of the bill that it will add one and one-half billion dollars annually to the cost of living in the United States if it is adopted.

"It looks as if prosperity is being spared something by the failure of the bill, rather than being delayed. At any rate, the time for Democrats to feel better about everything than they have felt for a few years cannot be very far distant. If the Democrats in the Senate are, as Mr. Adams intimates, unpatriotic, the feeling against them upon the part of Republican leaders cannot be any more intense than the feeling against Republicans in the Senate when the peace treaty was under consideration. The Republicans were dreadfully unpatriotic upon that occasion.

"It will make people like Senator Lodge smile dryly to read that the Republicans have a majority on the tariff issue. If they could be sure that they have they would feel much more comfortable.

"Mr. Adams is evidently our leading comedian. I wish he would get himself in the newspapers oftener," Mr. Antwine said.

THE CASE AGAINST WILSON.

(Monroe County, Mo., Appeal.)

Impartial history will record George Washington, Abraham Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson as the outstanding figures in American affairs. All three of them were commanders-in-chief of forces which triumphed on land and sea. All three of them revolutionized the thinking of the world and lifted it by their Christian ideals to higher planes of living. All three of them were models to whom any parent could point his child because their influence was along lines which made for a noble destiny. All three of them were harassed, persecuted and misrepresented by relentless political foes, and all of them piloted the old ship of state safely into port against the opposition of organized greed and the venom of interests that were out of sympathy with their Government when its very life was at stake. Washington and Lincoln have been vindicated long since, but Missouri Democrats are now confronted with the problem of vindicating or repudiating Wilson and his mighty achievements. And the only argument thus far submitted to Missouri farmers against him is that under his administration Congress made it a felony for anybody to pay them less than $2 a bushel for wheat. Great God!

THE BOOTLEGGER.

It is astonishing to note the contortions of the Anti-Saloon League as to the activities of their product, the bootlegger. Before prohibition there were bootleggers in existence and it is a well-known and self-evident fact that the illicit manufacture and selling of intoxicants are the direct result of the enactment of the Volstead act. Hence it is an indisputable fact that the Anti-Saloon League is both father and mother of the bootlegger and responsible for his being. I have wondered if the prohibitionists are not like the preachers in that, notwithstanding their constant rifle practice at the devil, they are careful not to deal his satanic majesty a death blow, for a religion without the orthodox devil would be like the stars without stripes—incomplete.

Hence, may it not be so with the Anti-Saloon League? Is it not to their interest that the bootlegger flourish, and would not the Anti-Saloon League vanish into thin air were it not for the activities of the bootlegging fraternity? By the same token one can scarcely find a bootlegger who would vote against prohibition, for with the return of the saloon the bootlegger would have to hunt another job.

As long as the bootlegger exists, there will be his creator, the Anti-Saloon League; and just as long as the Rev. W. C. Shupp and his co-workers thrive in their agitation the bootlegger will be found catering to a long-felt want. As long as our people live a large percentage will have their favorite beverages, legal or crooked, it does not matter, and what the public wants it will always secure.

We shudder to think what will become of Shupp, Wheeler, Baker et al. when the last bootlegger is put under the sod. O. C. G.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

LYNCHING BARS EXTRADITION.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

GEORGIA had a Governor in Hugh Dorsey who had the courage and the common sense to demand equal legal protection for blacks and whites and to antagonize lynching. To her disgrace Georgia retired Dorsey and took a man who was apologist for the lynchers. She stands then, as a State where the majority sentiment supports mob murders. If Georgia pays the penalty of this in the refusal of the Governor of Ohio to extradite a negro accused of murder in the Cracker State, she has only herself to blame. It may be true, it probably is true, that in the election of next November Gov. Davis is anxious to hold for the Republican party the sympathy and allegiance of the negro voters of Ohio. But leaving that out of the question, his course is understandable, as plainly justifiable as that of the Canadian courts who recently refused under similar conditions to send a negro back to North Carolina. For if Davis were to grant extradition papers, and a Georgia negro merely accused, with the legal benefit of all doubt on his side, were to be murdered by a mob after his return, the conscience of the Ohio Governor would hurt him worse than any resentment on the part of the Ohio negroes. Georgians ought to perceive this. Their lawlessness has destroyed the presumption that a negro will be fairly tried down there. And that presumption can only be re-established by the infliction of capital punishment on mob murderers at any and every point within the State's jurisdiction.

OUR NATIONAL ANTHEM.

From the Detroit News.

OF late a good deal has been spoken and written about "The Star-Spangled Banner," and the propriety or impropriety of making it the national anthem. Representative Linthicum of Maryland has introduced a bill to confer this honor upon the song. Mr. Linthicum doubtless was influenced by the fact that Fort McHenry, where the original Star-Spangled Banner was seen to wave, is in Baltimore. It would be interesting to find out how far an act of Congress would avail to make this song truly a national anthem. Probably it would put official sanction upon the practice of standing up when the band plays the tune. This observance is general as it is. But not even all the power of the Government of the United States could make a crowd sing the Star-Spangled Banner well. Good Americans usually try, but they miss by just two counts—they don't know the words and they can't follow the tune. Aside from that their intentions are good. But when the arguments are all in and Representative Linthicum's bill in Congress has been passed or passed up as the case may be, the people of the United States will still stick to the idea that the Star-Spangled Banner is the one and only true national anthem. They can't sing it, but they like the title and they like to hear the bands play it. The point is settled so far as the folks are concerned, and that is what makes a national anthem anyway.

Events in the Social World

Charity Ball Game of Tuberculosis Society to Be Played at Sportsman's Park Wednesday, Is Occupying Attention of Those Who Have Not Joined Summer Colonies—Picnic of St. Louis Flying Club Will Be Held at Lambert Field Next Saturday.

QUIET affairs of an informal nature—an occasional bridge luncheon or tea, impromptu boating trips and swimming parties, golfing four-somes and tennis sets, followed by small luncheons and buffet suppers, and the regular Saturday night dinner dances at the various country clubs, make up, for the most part, the social calendar of mid-July for St. Louisans who have not left town. Many of those who can leave the heat of the city have already gone to mountain, lake and shore resorts, and each day additional names are written on the long list of vacationists.

With society's activities at their low ebb, the undivided attention of members of the small group still in town is engaged by preparations for the charity ball game of the Tuberculosis Society which will take place next Wednesday afternoon at Sportsman's Park, and plans for the picnic which the St. Louis Flying Club, headed by Albert Bond Lambert, will give next Saturday for officers and their wives from Scott Field. Details of the latter affair have not been announced, but it will be held at Lambert Field and promises to be an enjoyable gathering, since 61 officers and their families, including about 12 student officers, have arrived at Scott Field during the last week.

BETWEEN 200 and 300 matrons and girls will sell programs at the charity ball game of the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis next Wednesday afternoon at Sportsman's Park. The day is the annual Carnival of the Tuberculosis Society to raise funds for conducting its work of preventation of tuberculosis in St. Louis and St. Louis County and the general public interest in the cause always brings a capacity audience to the annual game.

The girls and matrons who will sell programs will hold a final meeting tomorrow to make arrangements and receive instructions for their work on Wednesday. A number of additional members of the corps have been enlisted during the week. Among them are the following teams:

Mrs. John Conrath, Mrs. W. M. Sherman, Misses Ruth Wright, Sue McFall, Marie and Lucy Maloney, Marguerite Serth, Mrs. E. W. Hoolcher and W. E. Dohlmer.

St. Louisans Active in Outdoor Fetes at Resorts

BOSTON, Mass., July 15.—The past week has seen the return of normal July weather and the summer visitors are once more enjoying the out-door fetes and sports long delayed because of rains.

The Eastern Yacht Club, delayed at Gloucester after its start from Marblehead, had perfect yatching conditions for its cruise to the Maine Coast. Many of the men of the summer colony were absent over the week-end as guests on the various yachts.

Mrs. Francis A. Lane and her daughter, Miss Isabel Lane of St. Louis, whose summer home is at Manchester, were guests at a dinner party given on Saturday evening at the Oceanside Hotel, Magnolia, by Mrs. Charles Warren of Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thompson of St. Louis have taken "Gray Cottage." at Beverly Cove, for the summer.

Miss Mary C. Hoyle of St. Louis and Washington motored from Washington to the North Shore last week and will spend the summer with her aunt, Mrs. John Hays Hammond, at Gloucester.

The North Shore bridle paths offer a constant source of enjoyment to those who ride. Among the enthusiasts often met in the shady byways along the Shore is Mrs. Gustavo di Rosa, daughter of Mrs. William H. Scudder of St. Louis. Signor and Mme. Di Rosa and small daughter are spending the summer at Magnolia with Mrs. Scudder.

Among those noted at the Oceanside dance on Saturday evening was Mrs. Eugene A. Perry Jr. of New York, who is occupying Stonehurst, the beautiful summer home of her mother, Mrs. Claude Kilpatrick, of St. Louis, at Magnolia. Mrs. Kilpatrick and her granddaughter, Miss Elizabeth Scudder, are expected at the Shore late in the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McKittrick Jones of St. Louis, are occupying the Crown cottage at Annisquam for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gordon and daughter, Virginia, of St. Louis, motored from their home to Annisquam, where they have a cottage for the summer. With them are Seymour, Evelyn and Floyd Stewart of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Hupp of Kansas City were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob L. Loose at their summer home at Eastern Point, East Gloucester

Mrs. E. M. Wetmore and Miss Isabel Wetmore of St. Louis are at the Vendome, Boston, for a stay of several weeks.

St. Louis guests at Boston hotels this week included Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Klander, Mrs. Robert Buckham and family; Messrs. H. F. Gardner, H. R. Pealey, H. A. Hull and J P. Downton, at the Touraine.

An interesting visitor to the North Shore recently was "Uncle Joe" Cannon, former Speaker of the House, who was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob L. Loose of Kansas City, at Sea Rocks, East Gloucester. Mr. Cannon has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Loose for several seasons.

Golf is by far the favorite pastime of those who seek recreation in the Berkshire region. The Stockbridge Golf and Tennis Club is a popular meeting place and among those often seen on the links is Nathaniel Week Has Been a Lively One for Cottages at Beverely, Mass.

BEVERLY, Mass., July 15.—With the Navy fleet of mine layers in rendezvous at Rockport, yatching at many of the Marblehead and Manchester Clubs, polo golf and tennis at the country clubs, and a continual round of entertaining at the cottages and country clubs, the week has been a lively one for St. Louis people on the North Shore.

Announcements have come to the North Shore of the wedding of Miss Minnie Finlay Richards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eben Richards and granddaughter of Henry Clay Pierce of St. Louis, to Stewart Berwin Kaiser of the Clifton Colony at St. Margaret's Chapel, London, June 28. Mr. Kaiser is a Harvard graduate of the class of 1918 and won the Croix de Guerre during the World War. The Richards have been abroad since early spring and are expected to come to Harborview, the Pierce cottage at Pride's Crossing, for the late season.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thompson of St. Louis have taken the Pickman Grey Cottage on the Lothrop boulevard at Beverly Cove. This is their first North Shore season.

Mrs. Francis Lane and Miss Isabel Lane of St. Louis were among the guests at a dinner party given by Mrs. Charles Warren at the Oceanside, Magnolia, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Perry Jr., this week occupied Mrs. Perry's mother's home, Stonehurst, at Magnolia. Mrs. Claud Kilpatrick and her granddaughter, Miss Elizabeth Scudder, are expected back from Europe early next month.

All Houses on Cliffs at Newport Open This Season.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 15.—For the first time in many years all the large houses along the Cliffs are open. It has been at least eight years since the shutters were taken off Marble House, the beautiful mansion of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, which was given to her by her first husband, William .K Vanderbilt. It is rumored that Mrs. Belmont anticipates a visit from Princess Anastasia of Greece, the former Mrs. William B. Leeds, who at one time came to Newport each summer.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt is at The Breakers on the Cliffs, and with her are her son-in-law and daughter, Count and Countess Laszlo Szechenyi and their three daughters. Count Szechenyi, who is the Hungarian ambassador to the United States, has established the embassy entourage at Newport for the summer, the first foreign embassy to center here since George Bakmeteff, the representative of the old regime in Russia, and Mrs. Bakmeteff spent several seasons at Stone Villa, the old James Gordon Bennett estate opposite the Casino.

of Detroit, was at Newport last week. He came on the yacht Halcyon, as the guest of Dutee W. Flint, of New York. Ford spent several days at the Middletown estate of Flint.

Mrs. Daniel Jones of St. Louis, who is spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Norman, at Brook Farm, Newport, has been on a short trip to New York.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHARLEVOIX, Mich., July 15.—Cruising is the order of the day among the wealthy summer residents of Northern Michigan, with Charlevoix, Mackinac Island, Harbor Point and Traverse City in the lead. There are more sailing craft than ever, but costly cruisers are being added, and trips by water to distant points of interest are replacing journeys by the now too-common automobile.

A group of St. Louisans, in the pleasure boat Jap, owned by Jack Plant, made a record catch of small-mouthed black bass at E'Poufette, on the northern shore of Lake Michigan. All were Charlevoix cottagers, and the other members of the party were Medford Fox, A. W. Goldsmith and William J. Schroder. Thirty-five bass were landed, ranging in weight from one and one-half to three pounds, and a Northern pike weighing 22 pounds also was taken.

George H. Plant and family of 29 Jefferson road, Webster Groves, Mo., have arrived and occupied their summer home on the Belvedere grounds. Miss Elizabeth Burford of St. Louis is at the Belvedere Hotel, and Joseph Rosenbaum of the same city is guest of Charlevoix friends.

Mr. and Mrs. K. N. Horwitz of St. Louis have taken and will occupy the Marshall residence for the summer.

St. Louisans Continue to Arrive on Maine Coast.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MAINE COAST, July 15.—Mrs. Joseph Pultizer of New York has arrived at "Chatwold," her cottage on the Schooner Head road, Bar Harbor, where she will be joined during the summer by the other members of her family.

On Friday evening Mrs. Lawrence Eastman of Portland gave a bridge party for about a dozen guests in honor of Miss Marjorie Abbott of St. Louis, who is visiting her. A variety of flowers made an attractive decoration and after the cards tea was served.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. D'Arcy Paul and two children of St. Louis are spending their first season at the Samoset, Rockland Breakwater.

Mrs. Marion C. Blossom of St. Louis is also a newcomer to the Samoset, one of the loveliest spots on the Maine coast, in which to spend the summer.

Mrs. Arthur B. Shepley with a party of friends has arrived at the Samoset, Rockland Breakwater, for a short stay.

How to Have a Beautiful Complexion

By Enid Bennett

Los Angeles, Cal.—I am often asked "How can I have a beautiful complexion like yours," and what I use to keep my complexion at its best all the time. I guess I have tried about everything for the complexion, but the very best beautifier I have found is Derwillo in combination with Liska cold cream. I use Liska cold cream to cleanse and soften the skin, and Derwillo for the instant beauty it imparts.

It's a combination hard to beat, and has become more popular with actresses than anything else I know of. If you would have a beautiful complexion, just try Derwillo and Liska cold cream, and I think you will become as enthusiastic over these toilet preparations as I am.

Derwillo instantly gives your complexion a youthful, rosy-white appearance. It softens and stimulates the skin, making it glow with natural beauty. A single application will surprise you. The combination is wonderful for sallow skin, tan, sunburn and discolorations of all kinds.

Derwillo comes in three shades—flesh, white and brunette. Try flesh or brunette on your face and white on your neck, hands and arms. Derwillo stays on until you wash it off. Therefore perspiration does not affect it.

Over a million discriminating girls and women use it in preference to face powder or other beautifiers. Add it to your daily toilet and you will agree with Miss Bennett that there is "nothing better," "just as good" or "just like it." Sold at the toilet counters of all up-to-date drug or department stores, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and the Enderle Drug Co.

Missourians in Social Affairs at Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Although it has not been announced yet in the News, the President's yacht Mayflower is preparing for a two weeks' cruise to the New England shore when the President and Mrs. Harding will enjoy a brief vacation from official cares in Washington. That is, if the strike permits.

A congenial party will accompany the President not the least of whom will be the three interesting children of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beale McLean. McLean is owner of the Washington Post and the Cincinnati Enquirer. These children, John, Edward and Baby Emily, are great favorites of the presidential couple and the baby has distinction of having the President and his wife as God parents.

On the Mayflower is a brown eyed sailor boy who is more than usually interested in the Chief Executive because he was born only six houses away from the Harding's in Marion, Ohio. The President does not know his town fellow is on the ship because the blue jacket is too shy to introduce himself and navy regulations would prevent as well. But one can be certain that a certain lad's letters are read with keen interest and that back in Marion, a certain proud family in whose window floats the service flag is proudest of all that their boy is helping to run the presidential ship, as it were.

It is of interest to Missourians to learn that Mrs. W. J. Calvert, daughter of Col. John H. ("Gatlin Gun") Parker of Jefferson Barracks, now the wife of an army major, has been capturing blue ribbons galore in swimming bouts in and around Washington as well as leading in the social events of the younger set. Mrs. Calvert's prowess is of a high order.

Mrs. John B. Henderson and her granddaughter, Miss Beatrice Henderson, have gone to Bar Harbor, Me., where they will spend the remainder of the summer at Mrs. Henderson's cottage, Glen Eyrie. In their absence, Boundary Castle will be kept open by John B. Henderson, who will entertain a number of stag parties there.

The ladies of the Senate, the exclusive organization of Senators' wives, have been taking their summer outings and holding their weekly meetings on the various yachts owned by members of the club. This week Mrs. T. Coleman Dupont, wife of the Senator from Delaware, entertained in honor of Mrs. Coolidge on the Dupont yacht, Tech. Instead of the usual luncheon, a picnic tea was served, but in all other particulars the meeting was of the usual order, each of the ladies contributing her share of the entertainment. The Tech returned by moonlight to her station in the Potomac.

Missouri Society Meets.

Despite the hot weather, the Missouri Society is holding regular meetings every month. A drive will be inaugurated early in September to enlist into this society, of which Senator Spencer is the president, every Missourian in Washington, particularly those in Government service. Even now the membership is over 500 and is constantly growing, but it is thought that a determined drive will rapidly raise the membership mark to a point where it will be one of the largest state societies in Washington.

Mrs. Joseph W. Folk has gone to Missouri for a visit of three weeks, but the former Governor is remaining in Washington.

Representative Frank Millspaugh has gone to Missouri for a short visit, but Mrs. Millspaugh and her two daughters are to remain in Washington during the summer except for short vacation trips. Miss Nelle Millspaugh, her daughter, who was graduated from George Washington University last month, entertained a number of viisting graduates at luncheon last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Davis, who have been in New York, entertained a number of distinguished guests at dinner there.

Mrs. Spencer and her youngest son, Oliver Spencer, will leave Washington the latter part of the month for California, to say good-by to Selden Spencer Jr., who is going to Vancouver, Canada, to teach.

Senator Spencer will leave early next month for the inter-parliamentary conferenec to be held in Europe.

Representative and Mrs. Edgar Ellis are now at their home in Missouri, but will return to Washington in a few weeks.

CAMP FOR BUSINESS GIRLS

St. Stephens-in-the-Hills to Be Used in August.

St. Stephens-in-the-Hills, the summer camp of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church of the city, near Allenton, Mo., is to be turned over to business girls of the city for the last two weeks of August, with the camp in charge of the Girls' Friendly Society of which Mrs. James A. Seddon is state president. Girls who are not members of the society will also be admitted for the two weeks and a recreation leader will have charge of the entertainment program. Reservations may be made with Miss Doud, 5587 Cabanne avenue.

The Girls' Friendly Society will erect a Holiday House, one of a series of national vacation camps for members, this fall. Five thousand dollars has already been contributed to the fund of which Mrs. Vincent L. Price is chairman, and a location near St. Louis will be selected.

TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY CARNIVAL WEDNESDAY

Varied Program of Ball Games, Races, Concerts and Vaudeville to Be Given.

The Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis has more contributors than any charity organization in the city according to Homer Hall, president of the Society. Twenty-five thousand contributors are on its list and in an analysis recently made it was found that only 25 of these donated more than $25 each and only one contributed more than $100.

"These facts," said Hall, "constitute one of the best evidences that the Tuberculosis Society of this city really has the community back of it."

The total amount raised during the last year was $98,640 and the total amount expended in the campaign for the prevention of tuberculosis in the city and county was $102,464.32. The deficit was partly covered by surplus in the treasury the previous year and partly by contributions this year. The society's work is carried on through education, social service, and relief programs.

Annual Carnival Wednesday.

One of the sources of revenue of the organization is its ball game and carnival which take place every year in July. This year's event will be on Wednesday afternoon, at Sportsmans Park, and an interesting program has been planned. All the contributors have been invited to be present and hundreds of them already have bought their seats.

Each year hundreds of business houses take part in the annual benefit by donating goods to be given to those who attend. This year about 40,000 articles have been donated by more than 1000 firms and these articles all will be given away to purchasers of souvenir programs on the grounds the day of the game.

Tickets for Wednesday's game will have rain checks just as those for any other major league baseball game and in the event of rain these checks will be usable in the regular way. The major league game scheduled for the day is to be played by the Cardinals and Boston, and there will be a preliminary game between St. Louis firemen and the letter carriers.

Other events on the program are two races, one the sixth St. Louis Junior Marathon which will start at Moolah Temple and finish on the home plate at Sportsman's Park, and the other a novelty race in St. Louis, and a girls' relay shuttle race which will be run in the outfield. Girls and boys from 12 to 16 years old will be entered in these races, both of which will be directed by amateur sportsmen of the city. Verne R. C. Lacy is general chairman of the race committee, and in direct charge of the marathon. Fred Voss is chairman of the girls' relay shuttle race. Charles P. Pettus, who is treasurer of the general committee, is chairman of the program sales committee, comprising 28 well known women. Each woman will act as captain of a team of from eight to twelve girls who will do the actual selling. The programs will sell for 25 cents each.

Vaudeville on Program.

On the program also are a band concert and a vaudeville entertainment from a moving stage, a pitching contest by members of the two professional baseball teams, and the presentation of the trophies to the winners in the various contests. Officers of the army, navy and Marine Corps stationed in and around St. Louis have taken boxes and city and State officials also will occupy boxes.

President Hall of the Tuberculosis Society will have as guests in his box Gov. and Mrs. Hyde and Mayor and Mrs. Kiel and Archbishop Glennon. The Archbishop will present the trophies to the winners in the different events. The Governor and the Mayor will pitch and catch the first ball in the professional match. Society will be prominently represented in the boxes.

A final meeting of the committee will be held Tuesday to complete the plans. The gates will be opened at 1 o'clock, Chairman J. F. Oberwinder announces.

Outing at Orphans' Home.

The annual outing of the Men's and Ladies' Aid Societies of the Good Samaritan Altenheim will be held on the grounds of the Protestant Orphans' Home on the St. Charles rock road next Sunday afternoon and evening. Congressman C. A. Newton will speak in the late afternoon.

GIRLS! LEMONS BLEACH FRECKLES AND WHITEN SKIN

Recipe for a Lemon Lotion Which Does Not Irritate

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day, then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach because it doesn't irritate.

Hop Flavored Malt Extract Is Only As Rich As the Hops and the Malt

A SUIT of clothes is only as good as the cloth that goes into it. If the wool isn't there, the cloth isn't there. The cloth depends upon the wool and the tailor depends upon the cloth.

A Hop Flavored Malt extract is only as rich as the malt and the hops that go into it. And the malt is only as rich as the barley it is made out of. If the barley isn't there, the malt isn't there. And the hops must have been pressed when they were harvested or the hop flavor isn't there.

Puritan Hop Flavored Malt Sugar Syrup is the richest malt extract made anywhere in the world. This is so because it is made out of the choicest barley grown anywhere in the world and is flavored with fresh pressed Bohemian Hops. It is absolutely pure because it is not filled with moisture nor adulterated with cheap corn.

In buying Hop Flavored malt extract, it actually doesn't pay in either time or labor to use any but the best. So ask for and demand

Mother Why Do You Scold Us All the Time?

YOUR SHATTERED NERVES

For some time I had noticed that my two children a boy of seven and a girl of ten, were becoming highly nervous, irritable and very disobedient. I tried various punishments, even whipping, but they kept growing worse. My own nerves were all "on edge" the least thing would put me into a rage.

I was too weak to work or enjoy life, and too nervous and irritable to go anywhere. I often suffered from severe heart palpitation and indigestion. I could not sleep at night; I had an almost constant dull aching pain in the back of my neck and head, and frequently a very disagreeable sense of fullness in the front part of my head. I often had severe pains across my back which made me think I had kidney trouble. I could not begin to describe all the tortures and terrible pains which I endured. Finally I went to a doctor and told him my story. After studying my case he told me I was the cause of my children's condition. He told me how the system only manufactured so much nerve force and that this vital fluid of life was stored in the nerve cells, much like electricity is stored in a storage battery and is just as quickly exhausted.

He said my own highly nervous condition had been a constant drain on the nerve force of my children, and that the constant nervous strain to which I had subjected them had wrecked their highly sensitive nervous organizations. Later all this I found out to be true because after I regained my own nervous poise, and revitalized my worn out, exhausted nerve centers, and the same was done for my children, I found them to be the nicest, sweetest children in the world—their whole dispositions entirely changed.

The above is a hypothetical case, which a physician says may well illustrate thousands which exist today. Homes are wrecked, children ruined, all through exhausted nerve force. Very few people realize the terrible physical and mental tortures often caused by a depletion of the nervo-vital fluid.

In such cases, what you need is to put more force into your nerves, and more iron into your blood. This is best accomplished by the use of Nuxated Iron. This valuable product contains the principal chemical constituent of active living nerve force in a form which most nearly resembles that in the nerve and brain cells of man. It also contains a newer form of iron like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. This form of iron will not blacken or injure the teeth nor upset the stomach. It is an entirely different thing from metallic iron which people usually take. Nuxated iron may therefore be termed both a blood and a nerve food.

Over four million people are using Nuxated Iron annually, and from the remarkably beneficial results which it has produced, the manufacturers feel so certain of its efficacy that they guarantee satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. REED'S FALSITY CHARGE THROWN BACK BY HUME

Wisconsin Democratic Leader Reiterates Statement Regarding Republican Speech Senator Called Untrue.

The Post-Dispatch has received from John P. Hume of Milwaukee, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee of Wisconsin, a letter reiterating his statement to a Post-Dispatch staff correspondent that Senator James A. Reed, when he spoke in that State for a Republican candidate for the United States Senate, did not consult with the Democratic Committee.

Reed, in a speech July 5, at Salisbury, Mo., said that Hume's statement was false.

"Editor, Post-Dispatch:

Dear Sir: I note in your issue of July 6th a statement from Senator Reed that the interview given by me to Mr. Betts was false. I have no personal interest in the campaign that is being waged in Missouri, and am surprised that Mr. Reed would attempt to make any statement charging misrepresentation when he absolutely knows that he never consulted the State organization either personally or by letter as to its policy in the 1920 campaign, or as to the possibility of the Democratic candidate for United States Senator wining the election.

"If he was at all familiar with the political situation in Wisconsin, he would kno wthat both the La-Follete Republicans and the Stalwart Republicans have been doing all that they could to disrupt the Democratic organization, and that his appearing here as a Democrat in the interests of a LaFollette candidate contributed more to disorganize the party than any public man within my knowledge.

"The Hon. Paul Reinsch, who was selected as the candidate for United States Senator was the unanimous choice of the Democrats. We recognized the factional fight in the Republican ranks and we had reason to believe that if the bitterness apparent on the surface amounted to anything, the Democrats should have received the votes of the disgruntled element who were defeated in the primary.

"In view of the fact, that Mr. Reed did not consult the Democratic State Central Committee, and did not consult any of the county committees, in so far as my knowledge goes, it is firmly believed that Mr. Reed's appearance here was for the purpose of aiding to disrupt the Democratic party nationally and assist in organizing a new party under the Committee of 48. Whether this is true or not, Mr. Reed is in a better position to answer that than I am. Before Mr. Reed charges that the statements made in my interview are false, he should show some evidence that he consulted with the State Central Committe before taking up the campaign in this State for a Republican.

"Mr. Reed in his statement calls attention to the vote received by Mr. Lenroot, Mr. Thompson and Mr. Reinsch, and appears to point with pride to Mr. Reinsch's vote for Senator as evidence that the Democrats had no chance.

"What part Senator Reed played in reducing the Reinsch vote, he is in better position to explain than I am. Mr. Lenroot won the Republican primary. Mr. Thompson was beaten. Mr. Reinsch, the Democratic candidate, was recognized as a man of progressive thought, and one exceptionally well fitted for the position, and judging from the part that Mr. Reed played in this State, he was in a position to help beat Lenroot by supporting the Democratic candidate, instead of supporting a man who had been defeated in the Republican primary and then ran independent.

"Very truly yours,
(Signed) JOHN P. HUME,
"Chairman."

DELEGATES WILL GIVE JUSTICE TO ST. LOUIS, SECRETARY SAYS

Edgar Gengenbach Believes Convention Will Deal Firmly on City Limits Expansion.

Edgar Gengenbach, assistant general secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who has just returned from the constitutional convention at Jefferson City, thinks a big majority of the delegates will deal justly and fairly with St. Louis in the matter of provisions for expanding the city limits. He believes that the time-honored principles in the present Constitution will be retained and that whatever changes are made in these will be in the nature of simplification, and that new wrinkles and theories will be quashed.

"The so-called country lawyers attending as delegates," he said, "should command our outstanding respect. Their grasp of fundamental questions, their native ability and sincerity, are evident to a degree not generally appreciated.

"The attitude of the delegates toward St. Louis is cordial. More and moe it is being appreciated that the city of St. Louis belongs to the people of Missouri."

How I Got Rid of Burning Feet

Prof. F. T. McIntyre, well known world tourist and lecturer, says: "For years I was compelled to wear shoes two sizes too large, to be able to walk with any comfort at all. I tried soaking my feet in medicated baths, powders, plasters and foot-treatments galore, but the burning callouses and soreness refused to go, while the pains from corns and bunions continued to torture both mind and body, which upset my entire nervous system. One day, very fortunately, I met a lady from Egypt who gave me a little box of Gypsy Foot Relief, which she said was a secret from the desert. After using it a short time, the awful burning stopped, the callouses came off in chunks, leaving the skin of my feet clean and smooth, while the pains from corns and bunions seemed to disappear as if by magic. From that time, I said a joyful goodbye to over 20 years of indescribable foot misery. I would not take a hundred thousand dollars to again go through those years of agony. Now I feel like telling every foot sufferer to get a box of the wonderful Gypsy Foot Relief."

Note.—Gypsy Foot Relief, referred to by Mr. McIntyre, may be applied in a minute, without fuss or bother. Sure, quick relief comes three minutes later, or the makers give back the small amount you pay. It is sold in this city by

PARKING PERMITS ILLEGAL, POLICE COURT JUDGE SAYS

Mix Says If a Test Case on Taxicab Ordinance Comes Up He Will Declare It Void.

"St. Louis streets are public property and for that reason no person can be given exclusive right to a certain space on any street of the city," declared Judge Mix in Police Court yesterday, in discussing a peace disturbance case which grew out of parking privileges granted to taxicab companies and service car drivers by the Director of Streets and Sewers.

Judge Mix said that the issuance of parking permits to taxicab companies and service car drivers was illegal. He said that if a test case was made before him he would declare void the ordinance which gives the director the authority to issue the permits.

Judge Mix estimated that 72 feet of the public street was given to each taxicab company and service car driver to whom this right was granted.

Take MASTIN'S Vitamon Tablets To Put On "Stay There" Flesh

And Increase Your Energy, Quickly, Easily and Surely At Small Cost

If you want to put some firm, healthy, "stay-there" flesh on your bones, increase your energy, nerve force and power, clear your skin and complexion and feel far better, try this simple test: First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Next, take MASTIN'S Vitamon—two tablets with every meal. Then weigh and measure yourself again each week and continue taking MASTIN'S Vitamon Tablets regularly until you are satisfied with your gain in weight and energy.

MASTIN'S Vitamon Tablets contain not only the purest form of yeast vitamines, but all three vitamines, true organic iron, lime salts and other necessary elements which Nature provides for perfect vigor of body and mind, to build firm flesh, enrich the blood and strengthen the whole digestive and intestinal tract.

Only by making the test yourself can you fully realize how MASTIN'S Vitamon Tablets help to feed and nourish the shrunken tissues, build up renewed nerve force and help put on solid flesh in the places where it is most needed.

How Would You Look in a Bathing Suit?

Summer months are coming—start now to put on firm flesh, fill out your figure and be the strong, well-built fellow—with plenty of "pep" and energy—a clear skin glowing with ruddy health and vigor—instead of having a thin, undeveloped body that shows your lack of nerve force and physical power. Just take a little MASTIN'S Yeast Vitamon for a short time and watch the truly amazing results.

What Prominent New York Doctors Say About MASTIN'S Vitamon Tablets

"I have found Mastin's Vitamon Tablets to be especially valuable in putting on additional pounds of solid flesh and increasing energy."

"Containing as they do not only the three nourishing vitamines but also organic iron to make red blood, lime salts for bone and other vitalizing elements MASTIN'S Vitamon Tablets supply just what the body should have to produce weight, strength and keep you well."

CLAX Pelets may be taken with MASTIN'S Vitamon Tablets.

WARNING! You must INSIST upon the name MASTIN'S to get Real VITAMON Tablets as it is only in this way can you protect yourself against cheap imitations, substitutes and so-called "yeast vitamine tablets" which may often do more harm than good. You can get MASTIN'S Vitamon Tablets at all good druggists, such as all Enderle Drug Stores, Johnson Bros., Judge & Dolph, E. A. Medler, Pauley's, Wolff-Wilson, Huger's.

TWO HELD UNDER $5000 BONDS FOR DEATH OF YOUTH

Donald Bentrup, 18 years old, of 1235 Temple place, and Martin Schumacher, 18, of 4918 Spalding avenue, were held under bonds of $5000 yesterday by a Coroner's jury that returned a verdict of death from criminal carelessness after an inquest over Edward Harkins, 16, son of Mrs. Stella Harkins, a widow of 1220 Temple place. Harkins died from injuries suffered at 11 a. m. Friday, when an automobile operated by Bentrup and a truck operated by Schumacher collided at Maple and Belt avenues.

J. W. Grinfell, 8222 Church avenue, testified that Schumacher said a moment after the accident occurred he was going east on Maple avenue at the rate of about 25 miles an hour just before the accident occurred. Harkins was riding with Bentrup, who was driving south on Belt avenue, and was thrown from the car. He died from rupture of the kidneys and other internal injuries.

—Editorial—

A REALITY.

The shades of night were falling fast as through the street a lone outcast pursued his aimless way. (Anon.)

Friendless; homeless; a wanderer; shunned by passers-by; no word of cheer for his hungry soul. Who knows why? 'Tis not for us to judge; we only know he's human.

Should not that endear us with inseparable bonds to our loved ones, our HOMES, humble though they be, and create within us a feeling of charity for our fellow-man?

Pity the wanderer! Bless the ties that bind!

(Signed)

Harry Prufrock.

Branch Banking?

Has the Community-at-Large Nothing at Stake?

Independent Banking the American Principle

In the United States are more than thirty thousand banks. These banks are independent of each other, and are likewise independent of any privately-controlled central financial power.

Each bank succeeds only as it gains the confidence of the community and serves well the community interests. Each bank, therefore, is striving with all its means to promote local prosperity and foster local enterprise.

And this locally owned, locally controlled, locally directed system of banking has been one of the greatest factors in developing the resources of the United States.

In no other country of the world has the banking power been so localized and in no other country has private business initiative been so richly rewarded.

The Federal Reserve System Based Upon Independent Banking

It is true, indeed, that the Nation long felt the need of a sound currency plan and a strong financial reserve system. But both needs have been fully answered by the Federal Reserve System. Biased authorities to the contrary notwithstanding, the Federal Reserve System has given the independent banks of the country the desired unity and coherence—but without affecting their independence.

It is a matter of history, we believe, that the Federal Reserve System was adopted as a deliberately selected substitute for the branch-bank plan. The issue of branch banking was widely agitated for many years prior to 1913, but always met with general disfavor. In a speech delivered at Chicago in 1909, Senator Aldrich, Chairman of the National Monetary Commission, thus described the situation: "Whatever may be the advantages of a system of branch banking in other countries, I do not think it possible to adapt it to conditions existing in the United States. The twenty-five thousand banks now in existence are largely independent institutions whose managers are familiar with the wants and requirements of the communities in which they are created. The great mass of the people who use banking facilities, either as depositors or borrowers, would be unwilling to give up the advantages of that intimate personal knowledge of the local bank officers and managers which they believe to be essential to their interests."

Branch Banking Without Authority of Law

More than twenty-five years ago, the Supreme Court of the United States handed down a decision which has since been accepted by bankers and Government officials as prohibiting the establishment of branches by National Banks. (See Report of U. S. Comptroller of the Currency 1896 p. 103.) The present Comptroller, we are informed, has refused officially to sanction branches, saying that each bank which engages in branch banking does so at its peril. The State of Missouri is contesting the right of National Banks to establish branches within its domain, on the ground that such action is directly contrary to Missouri Law.

Yet, in the face of this utter lack of authority from State and Federal Governmental sources, a National Bank in Saint Louis has established one branch, and is making plans, so it has announced, to install branches in various other sections of the City. To the storm of protest based upon the illegality of the bank's course, officials of the institution have been quoted as saying that all such possibilities had been taken into consideration and would not deter the bank in its course.

It is this spirit, savoring of arrogance and oligarchical disdain, which, we think, constitutes the menace of branch banking. Branch banking tends to create monopolies and the monopolistic attitude. Banking monopolies, in turn, tend to foster business monopolies.

What Branch Banking Will Bring in the End

If the peril which the present situation offers is not apparent on its face, you have but to remember that the establishment of local branches by one National Bank is merely a beginning. If branches can be established throughout the City of Saint Louis in the face of the plainly-worded law which says that National Banks shall conduct their business "at an office or banking house located at the place specified in its organization certificate"—then, so far as the Law is concerned, there is equal authority for a bank in Saint Louis to establish branches throughout the State of Missouri. If the wording, "an office," means six or a dozen or twenty offices, and if "the place" means six or a dozen or twenty places, then there certainly is no reason for confining these offices and these places to the City of Saint Louis. Nor, in the case of a National Bank, is there any reason at all why State boundaries should not be crossed.

And other National Banks will follow suit. Eastern financial institutions, already grown to huge proportions, will be swollen still more by the deposits and profits of branches all over the United States. Bank consolidations will bring additional concentration of resources and power. Independent banks will gradually be absorbed. Few new ones will be established, because no sooner would they grow with their communities to prosperity than they would be confronted with branch-bank competition. So would perish our vaunted private initiative.

Voice of Union Leaders and the Radical Press

The Post Dispatch prints herewith extracts from editorials or articles in the organs of the labor unions and of the Socialist and Communist parties, showing the trend of thought on public questions among those bodies of citizens, and indicating causes of social unrest.

AMERICAN WORKERS WILL FIGHT.

(From Workers' Challenge, Communist.)

Many so-called revolutionists like to berate the native-born American worker, with the charge that he hasn't brains enough to fight against the oppression of the ruling class * * * American workers, like all others, will fight when forced to fight, as was proved at Herrin, Ill.

The capitalist press during the first days after the fighting at Herrin applied every vile epithet to the miners, trying to prepare the public mind for a blood bath of the strikers as reprisals for the deaths of the scabs. The chorus of condemnation included such labor fakers as John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and others * * *

Quite different was the reception the rank and file of labor accorded the news of the defeat of the scabs. Everywhere workers assembled there was nothing but praise for the mine strikers of Herrin and unrestrained joy as the first reports were confirmed to the effect that the strike breakers had been wiped out of existence * * *

The logical outcome of the oppression of labor, of the open-shop drives and the campaigns for "Americanism" in industry will be Herrin, magnified on a national scale. The ruling class of this coutnry will either recognize the fact that workers are human beings or the time will come when they will all be seeking a pair of overalls with which to disguise themselves as workingmen in order to escape the wrath of the aroused workers.

HERRIN, ILL., SYMPTOMATIC.

(From Industrial Solidarity, I. W. W. Organ.)

The deadly effectiveness with which the miners at Herrin, Ill., dealt with the murderous agreement and strike breaking mine corporation should prove a warning to the capitalist class. It reflects a deep resentment against duplicity and injustice, which tend to degrade the worker economically; and that may be more widespread than appears on an apparently apathetic surface. Such resentment, if at all existent, or in process of brooding, may flare up and overwhelm capitalism in a bloody deluge at any time. Who can tell?

THE AFFAIR AT HERRIN.

(From the Labor Review, Union Labor.)

The massacre, or horror, or whatever one cares to call it, which took place at Herrin, Ill., last week is a blot upon American history, just as is the cause which led to it.

The fear—the great fear—is that such affairs may become of altogether too common occurrence.

These people had convincing evidence that the money power was straining every nerve to crush them. Through sad experience they knew the courts were arrayed against them, even to the point of suspending constitutional guarantees. Blindly these two forces had driven forward until the Illinois victims, losing all hope of securing common justice through lawfully constituted means, allowed the primeval instinct to overcome them and they resorted to brute force. * * *

The affair at Herrin was the effect of a cause. The sudden murderous uprising cannot be ascribed to a passing whim. It was something deeper than that—something down deep in the vitals of our political system—and if what we have witnessed is only an effect, then a similar eruption may at any time break out on the body politic.

We must reach and destroy the cause before the cause destroys us.

"OUR IMMORTAL DEAD."

(From the Seattle Union Record, Labor.)

We cannot pass by the burial of the victims of the Herrin occurrence without calling attention to the fine and sympathetic treatment evidenced by the coal company in rendering homage to the deceased.

Press dispatches tell us that the strike breakers and gunmen found a last resting place in the potter's field.

That was the measure of appreciation expressed by the coal mine owners for the service rendered by the deluded pawns who had come into the field to break down the working and living conditions of the striking miners. * * *

A potter's field grave, a numbered headstone and then forgetfulness by those who were served—that is the portion of those who lend themselves to the exploiters in the doing of the murderous work which must needs be done in order that the workers may be kept in subjection.

STRIKES.

(From the St. Louis Labor.)

"The most disgraceful of economic evils is the strike," J. Harry Tregoe, secretary of the National Association of Credit Men, declared the other day, but he did not say who is being disgraced by that evil. He could not tell it to the men he was addressing, for they belonged to the class that profits by the present economic order which provokes strikes.

Workers do not like strikes, but what would be the condition of the masses of the workers if they did not possess the right and the power to strike and were hopelessly exposed to the mercy of capitalist employers? * * * The workers refuse to work when employers refuse to pay the price they are asking for their labor. If it is right for merchants to refuse to sell unless they get the price they demand for their goods, it cannot be wrong for the workers to do the same thing.

What would you do? Prohibit strikes and thus reduce the workers to a state of slavery, or compel the employers to pay the wages the workers demand? You can do neither under our present system of economics, which is based upon the private ownership of the things modern men are most in need of.

Strikes are evils undoubtedly; they are harmful, they are costly, they are dangerous. * * * It is society that is disgraced by strikes, because it allows employers to treat human beings as commodities and compels workers to risk their economic existence in order that they may ward off slavery.

"I have not said anything to you, but have been saying to others and have induced many to take your medicine and be convinced. Mayr's Wonderful Remedy is correctly named. It removed stuff from me I never thought could be in a human being and I feel like a different person. The pain in my right side disappeared at once, which four doctors said would require an operation; also the bloating and indigestion." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Mrs. Peter Olesen for Senate From Minnesota publicans. It has had a highly organized Nonpartisan League which the stigma of radicalism laid low at the last election. The rallying cry, "Save the State from radicalism," is said to have accounted in large measure for Minnesota's slip into the landslide.

Out of the wreck of the Nonpartisan League has come a Farmer-Labor organization whose candidate for Senator, Shipstead, polled almost as large a vote as Mrs. Olesen at the primaries. Some optimists believe he may be persuaded to withdraw in favor of the other progressive candidate.

"Wouldn't that be chivalrous!" commented wide-eyed Mary at some mention of this remote possibility.

Democrats Have Elected Two Governors in This Generation.

Besides these defections from the ranks of the Republicans, the State is able to boast two Democratic Governors within this generation. Gov. John A. Johnson at the time of his death was being hailed from many sources as a Democratic possibility for President. And then there was John Lind, whose ability to keep silent in several languages, including the Scandinavian, it will be remembered, helped President Wilson to avoid war with Mexico.

Further evidence that there are Democrats in Minnesota is the fact that, although the State gave Harding a majority of 400,000 in 1920, it gave Hughes a majority of less than 1000 in 1916.

And now these Democrats have nominated Mrs. Olesen, coming out to the primaries to indorse her with 100 per cent more votes than were polled by the Democratic nominee for Senator two years ago.

"The opposition has a big, well-oiled machine, but they have a heavy load to carry," Mrs. Olesen observed. "They have weed inspectors. They have their record on the tariff by which they are proceeding to make living prohibitive. The Republicans led many of their followers to believe we would enter some sort of association of nations for peace. Instead they are endeavoring to erect a tariff wall which will further alienate the nations.

"They have their record on the railroad subsidy, along with the present attempt of the railroads to cut wages; and the ship subsidy and inaction on the soldiers' bonus. They could find the money for the railroads and the ship owners, but not for the boys. Not that I would mention soldiers' compensation in the same breath with class subsidization. The theory of subsidization of any class is unsound. It is not subsidization but a debt we owe the soldiers. They fought for the freedom of untold generations; let untold generations pay them. It looks as if they were trying to ride the unpopular sales tax bill in on the popular bonus bill. A way should be found to reimburse the soldiers from an excess profit tax. I take McNider's word for it that is it Wall street which stands between the boys and the bonus.

Kellogg Has the Incubus of Newberryism to Carry.

"And then," she continued, "the opposition has that great incubus, Newberryism, to carry. Senator Kellogg voted to seat Newberry, and Newberryism is the greatest accelerator a Ford could have." (No Mrs. Casimir J. Lodyga, 4558 New erator a Ford could have." (No double entendre intended, it was remarked.)

"Everywhere I speak I ask my audience how many among them would have voted to seat Newberry. Never a hand is raised. Then I ask how many would vote for a Senator who voted to seat Newberry, and either they are ashamed to admit it or there isn't one who would.

"I tell them that, though their hands are clean thus far, the issue now is up to the people to decide whether or not they will become a party to the crime of letting seats be bought in the Senate. I remind them that it was when one Marcus purchased a seat in the Roman Senate, Rome was first acknowledged to be decadent.

"I recall to them the language of the Senators' apology at letting the vote pass—'This is dangerous to the perpetuity of free government,' they resolved. I remind them of how our soldiers, going to fight overseas, were told it would be dangerous to the perpetuity of free government to let the Germans pass. I ask what might have happened if, at Chateau-Thierry, our boys had not heeded that injunction, and had let the Germans pass. I ask what might have happened at Gettysburg if the First Minnesota had not heeded the same injunction? Our Senators heard these words spoken in the Senate—they spoke them themselves—and yet they let this danger to the perpetuity of free government pass over them.

"Why," she exclaimed wrathfully, her brows knitted to a straight line, "those Senators were confounded in their own wrongdoing. If lawlessness stalks unchecked in the Senate, where may it be expected to stop? With lawmakers disregarding the law, we can have no free government. It wasn't good political sagacity, the thing they did. The shade of Lincoln might have been invoked to remind them that 'A thing which is morally wrong, can never be politically right.'

Has Progressive Platform That Tries to Meet Needs of People.

"We have no Newberryism and no other cumbersome impediment," she went on. "Instead we have a progressive platform which tries to meet the needs of the people. It is practically the same platform which won recently for Brookhardt in Iowa, and much the same, with local applications, as those which have pulling one State after another, Indiana, Pennsylvania, North Dakota, Iowa, out from under the avalanche which befell in 1916 the divine purpose of which we are not yet wholly able to comprehend, though we believe we glimpse the resurrection morn!"

Mrs. Olesen's pre-primary campaign was financed entirely from small contributions collected from groups or individuals where she has spoken, those of one community volunteering to pay her railroad fare or buy her gasoline to the next speaking engagement. Not a cent has been spent in hotel bills. With her chaffeur daughter she has been taken into the homes of the people to lodge and to eat. In this fashion she has covered 80 of the 86 counties of the State. There can be no doubt she possesses the advantage over her opponent of being more widely and intimately known over the State.

As an example of the precariousness of the financial footing upon which she has traveled, one woman sold $18 worth of lilacs with which to pay expenses incident to a meeting. Another contributed $5 with which she was on the way to buy a sport hat. Similarly the candidate's wardrobe has been replenished at psychological moments. And many other small but timely contributions have been made by other would-be constituents.

McAdoo and Others to Come Out and Help Her.

Since the primaries, so hopefully do national Democratic leaders look upon the campaign that some of their most effective figures, notably William G. McAdoo, Senator Pat Harrison and Senator Caraway, have volunteered to come out to Minnesota and help. A three-page fatherly letter from Mr. Bryan offered to come and make speeches, at the same time begged to be told frankly if it was thought best that he do not come. Cordell Hull is being prevailed upon to open the miserly treasury of the National Committee in her behalf. Miss Emily Kneubuhl of Minnesota, noted organizer and money raiser of the National League of Women Voters, has been engaged to undertake the advance work for the speaking battalion.

A thick sheaf of telegrams and letters of congratulation, chiefly from women leaders and women's organizations over the country, indicate that at least many fervent prayers will be offered up in behalf of this long-striven-and-fought-for eventuality, a woman's voice in the higher councils of our nation.

The candidate, however, is being careful to keep her utterances free from sex appeal and discrimination. She indorses the entire legislatve program of the League of Women Voters, bearing down especially on the child labor and international peace planks. She will favor a constitutional amendment, if it is necsary, to "free the children." "Only a mother's heart can grasp the hideousness of child labor," she says.

The League of Nations is not now so immediate an issue as the lowering of the tariff so that Europe can pay her debts, she believes. The ruthlessness and greed of 11 millionaires now engaged upon increasing tariff schedules is building a higher wall between the nations, she declares. Prohibition is declared to be not an issue in Minnesota, no candidate on any ticket daring to admit a wet leaning.

Doesn't Believe States Will Ever Modify Prohibition.

"I realize that prohibition is an issue elsewhere and I believe it is a question shortly due for reckoning, but however Congress decides, I do not believe an act favoring modification of the Volstead law ever would get the required ratification by the States."

Yes, the earnest little nominee is trying hard to keep the feminine equation out of her campaign, but whether or no, it will creep in and who will say that, if it has no other virtue, it is not refreshing? Where other candidates speak pompously along well established lines this small person's voice and views bubble forth spontaneously like a spring of clear water. Undoubtedly dull debates in the Senate will no longer want for a modicum of charm should she come tripping in among the "elder solons." She has many a way with her that can be described only as feminine, and that way she has of closing her bright eyes and tilting her head as of listening, toward the close of the more earnest of her sentences, almost persuades one she is getting inspiration from some unseen source. In her speeches and intimate conversation, Mrs. Olesen is much given to references and quotations from the Bible. Never a situation arises, she says, but she can find a parallel and a deduction in the Bible. The Scriptures have been her guide at every step, she says.

Looking at the situation in Minnesota as this correspondent has observed it, what Biblical analogy thrusts itself forward more insistently than contest between David and Goliath? Knowing the outcome of that episode, is it too much to hope it may be the correct analogy?"

INCREASES IN CAR TRAVEL

The quarterly report of the United Railways, filed with the City Register yesterday in accordance with the mill tax ordinance, shows an increase of 4,125,550 in the number of passengers carried in the quarter ending June 30. The total number of passengers carried in the quarter was 69,775,068, as compared with 65,629,518 in the quarter ending March 31.

For the increased travel there was an increase of 46 in the daily average of cars operated by the company. In the last quarter an average of 1251 cars were operated daily, against 1205 in the previous quarter. The tax to be paid to the city for the period ending in June is $69,773.06, as compared with $65,649.52 in the previous period.

RATHENAU'S SPEECH ON THE VALIDITY OF GERMAN DEBT

Government owned and administered enterprises such as the railroads, post and telegraph. Measures have been taken to do this. Another question is that of the subsidies which have heretofore been contributed to relieve the cost of living and to social welfare. I don't want to go into detail but can assure you that measures have also been taken to slowly do away with all these subsidies.

A third question in connection with the German budget concerns the matter of coal prices. Our coal prices are fast approaching those of the world market. As soon as the price of the dollar is further reduced the German prices for coal will be above those of the world market.

Up to now I have only talked of the budget excluding reparations and excluding other interior costs arising from the treaty. If I start out from the above mentioned 500,000,000 figure fixed for 1922 as a payment in cash and the 1,450,000,000 as payment for delivery in kind and add to that the interior additional costs arising from the treaty I arrive at the following figures.

Five hundred million gold marks (at rate of 50 paper marks to 1 gold mark). 25,000,000,000 paper marks; 1,540,000,000 gold marks, 72.5 billion paper marks; extra interior expenditures account treaty, 38 billion paper marks; total 135.5 billion paper marks.

Burden of 218.5 Billion Marks.

These figures would then have to be added to the budget figure for 1922, which is 83,000,000,000 paper marks. The budget would be increased with another burden of about 150 per cent bringing the total up to 218.5 billion paper marks.

There are only two means to balance this:

1. Again double all taxation burdens or even triple them, or
2. A monstrous international loan.

Since the taxation burden on the country is already greater than that of any other country it would be impossible to redouble the taxes. There remains then only the question of a monstrous loan. I believe that such a loan cannot be raised in foreign countries. The City of London has already refused us the financing of a much smaller loan for the January and February payments. The question of an interior loan is being seriously discussed. But in the present miserable state it will hardly be possible to find the necessary means of attraction to float a loan anywhere near the amounted needed.

We are told that, after all, Germany is the same country and still has 60,000,000 inhabitants. The greatest part of the population still is on the farms and in the industrial sections with its hands full of work. It is said we have no unemployment. Why, it is asked, cannot this active and supposedly wealthy country make any sort of payments?

To this I reply: We have no savings.

Germany Old Reserves All Expended.

Comparing the Germany of the past to that of the present, ew now lack the reserves we formerly were able to make with our invested capital abroad. Before the war there were, annually, 1,500,000,000,000 gold marks forthcoming from these sources. Today there are three quarters of a billion against our former favor. The second factor is the loss of territory and population. We have lost more than 10 per cent of these.

The third factor is the reduced figure of our exports, which already I have mentioned. Exports have decreased from 10,000,000,000 gold marks to 3,500,000,000. Or, if we take into consideration the world index, even down to 2,500,000,000. The gains therefrom have, of course, all suffered in relation to the differences just stated.

Another factor: we lost a large part of our raw material which we are now forced to import against cash payment in gold or increased exports.

The fifth factor is that the rural population has suffered a greater percentage loss than the total population, taken as a whole, and at much of the lost territory always supplied the rest of Germany with its surplus agricultural production.

The sixth factor is of considerable moment. It is the reduction of the gains Germany formerly derived from its shipping, foreign trade and banking enterprises outside of Germany.

One to Two Billion Marks Deficit.

On the basis of the above reasons there now exists, according to my estimates, instead of a surplus of national savings amounting to six million gold marks before the war, a deficit of from one to two billion gold marks annually. Thus the country gradually is consuming itself; it is living upon its own output. It has neither means for renovations nor for the economic equipment of the increasing population.

The question has been thrown up to Germany, and the chairman here was quite right in bringing this question up in discussion: "What are you doing with your merchandise? If you don't export it you store it and invest it and create large new interior fortunes."

It appears very paradoxical that country lacking savings should store, produce and invest merchandise or its production. I therefore beg permission to talk about the number of working hours in Germany and how they are applied. I come to the question. What Germany does with her unemployed? And, furthermore, the loss of working hours resulting from the present situation.

All receipts from capital investments in foreign countries formerly were paid in merchandise. These meant a continuous tribute of products which constantly flowed to us in a wide stream. To receive these goods today, especially raw products, which formerly came to us as a current profit, we now must work and sacrifice many working hours which maybe estimated at 3.75 billion hours annually.

The loss of territory we suffered signified a loss of savings which can be expressed in a further sacrifice of one billion working hours.

It is estimated further that the loss of raw material we once had within our boundaries and which now must be paid for by exports or more working hours, means another sacrifice of some 83 billion working hours.

The unfavorable conditions of the soil and the lack of fertilizer cause an additional loss of 82 billion working hours.

The corresponding value of the lost services and the loss of gains formerly obtained from shipping, foreign trade, foreign banking, etc. may also be calculated in working hours amounting to 1.66 billion hours.

The total additional expense, or sacrifice in working hours, resulting from conditions in general, as explained above, amount to 99.28 billion working hours.

Where the Unemployment Is Absorbed.

If I start out assuming we have a working population of 21 billions and estimate the number of working hours per capita at 2400 annually, the total number of working hours in Germany will not total more than 50 billions in a single year. From this figure more than nine billions are spent for work which we did not have to do in pre-war days. But this is nearly one-fifth of the total of working hours in Germany. If I bring this sum into relation with the number of male workers of the population, we have a hidden unemployment of some four million of persons. This means that four millions of persons must do work which was not previously necessary. If, therefore, unemployment is said to be visible in other countries I should like to talk about our unemployment as being invisible. It exists, insofar as four million people are doing work which it formerly was necessary to do. Now there is all this without even having taken reparations payments into consideration. Consequently there cannot be any talk about storing wealth or values.

I now beg you to permit me to say something regarding the payments Germany is expec make. It may be that my ments up to this time had more or less negative. Where mism fails to help calculation ergy and determination will aid, but here also there limits. I return to the five millions of which I have spoken. The burdens in be, however, much higher in case than this fixed sum. all, there is the equivalent clearing understanding which an additional 360,000,000 to 000,000 gold marks. Then the the question of raising gold which to pay for raw which we must import, with to finish goods we must deliver kind." With the exception coal deliveries, for which to import, only a negligent of subsidiary material, we port at least 25 per cent of the of all deliveries in kind in raw materials.

Thus I arrive at another some 250,000,000 gold marks other words, for 1922 we have to raise a total of 1,000,000 gold marks, although only 500,000,000 are demanded it appears necessary to ask enormous sum of Germany the tion of reducing the clearings the interior expenditures for pation should be taken into eration.

he Associated Press.

EW YORK, July 15.—The emer- fund campaign for the Ameri- collegiates in the Near East, ding Robert College, the Ameri- University of Beirut and Con- tinople Women's College, closed today with a total of $1,100,000, the desired goal, according to an announcement issued by Albert W. Staub, executive secretary of the campaign. Obtaining the full amount will assure operating expenses for all three institutions for the next two years, Staub said.

COMPANION CASE TO WARD MURDER BAFFLING POLICE

LAWRENCEBURG, Ky., July 15.—Federal and State prohibition authorities have the most extensive whisky robbery mystery to solve that ever has confronted them. County officials are faced with equally as difficult a murder mystery, which, prohibition agents say, they believe grows out of a fight between the whisky runners.

Dry authorities say the huge theft makes practically certain the long-suspected existence of a gigantic bootleg ring, the ramifications of which are believed to extend over a large part of the eastern half of the country.

Sum total: Contents of 189 barrels of some of Kentucky's finest old whisky stolen; one man dead; seizure of two of the biggest former distilling plants in the State; swarms of officers after perpetrators of the theft and the murder.

A few mornings ago, people passing along the road near Bond brothers' distillery near the Kentucky River and not far from this town, found the body of a man lying in the roadway. The circumstance called to mind the discovery of the body of Clarence Peters, alleged to have been shot dead by Walter Ward near New Rochelle, N. Y. The head was mutilated, a bullet having entered the throat and passed out the top of the head. After two days relatives identified the dead man as John Thomas of Louisville. Members of the family said that the night before the killing, Thomas had received a mysterious message to come to Lawrenceburg. He had left home and the next the family saw of him was his corpse.

Whisky Theft Discovered.

Scenting then an attempt to raid the big distillery, where hundreds of barrels of whisky were kept under Government seal, prohibition agents were sent into Anderson County by Prohibition Director Samuel Collins.

The day after Thomas' body was identified, dry agents made the discovery that the contents of 189 barrels of whisky had been "siphoned" from the barrels within the warehouse. The whisky, valued at bootleg prices, is over $300,000. A guard was on duty at the warehouse. The guard was sought but he cannot be found. There has been some idea that he might have been kidnaped, or may have been tumbled over one of the nearby Kentucky River cliffs.

The murder and the theft became linked more closely. Officers made their reports to prohibition offices at Louisville and Lexington. Then the Government ordered that the Bond distillery, which had been robbed, and the Paxton distillery, near by, be confiscated, with the 900 barrels of liquor they contained. At bootleg prices, this liquor is given a valuation of at least $1,500,000.

Persons living in the neighborhood of the distillery which was robbed tell of heavily laden trucks that went past the houses at all hours of the night, awakening the inhabitants and keeping many a watchdog in uneasy hours. It is generally believed that the whisky was hauled away in trucks sent to that area from Ohio and Indiana, that the stolen liquor was promptly hurried out of the State between suns, the boundary lines of the two States being within a three-hour run of Lawrenceburg.

Then detectives announced a new clew in the Thomas murder case. A receipt for $18,000 was found near where Thomas' body lay. The receipt does not show for what the money was paid, but officials see in it support to their belief that he was slain as the outcome of a fight between the whisky runners.

Sixth Confiscation.

Capt. DeForester of the Louisville detectives office, interviewed George Patton of Louisville, brother-in-law of the slain man, and Martin Thomas, brother of the victim. According to DeForester, Patton said he and his wife had been camping on the Kentucky River a mile and a half from the distillery, and that John Thomas, the slain man, was there last week, but he was unable to give the names of other persons who had been to the camp.

Confiscation of the liquor properties resulted from an investigation ordered by Roy Haines, Federal Prohibition Commissioner, who had called to Washington Samuel Collins, Kentucky Prohibition Director.

Seizure of the plants at Lawrenceburg was the sixth confiscation of distillery property in Kentucky within a month. The Rugby distillery near Louisville, being one. Others were in rurial districts.

P. Green Miller, prohibition divisional agent for Kentucky and Tennessee, declares operations have been carried on by a powerful whisky ring, but believes the gang was separate from the one known as the George Remus organization, but other Government agents were inclined to believe they might be connected. Remus is now under heavy sentence at Cincinnati.

There have been numerous whisky thefts from distilleries within the last year in Kentucky. The operations were too expansive for local talent. Several men have been tried for alleged connection, some of the cases being dropped, while others face hearing at coming terms of Federal Court. Only one Government guard has been killed in protecting whisky in his care, but several have been kidnaped.

INSTALLATION OF $11,000 PIPE ORGAN AT FERRIS HOME MADE

Only Few of Instruments Are in Private Homes of St. Louis Citizens, It Is Said.

The installation of an $11,000 pipe organ in the home of Wheaton C. Ferris, a real estate operator, 6995 Washington boulevard, University City, was completed yesterday. The cost of the instrument was exclusive of transportation and installation.

There are said to be not more than a half dozen pipe organs in private homes in St. Louis and its suburbs, and the only one of these said to rank with Ferris' is that in the home of Edward A. Faust, 1 Portland place. It cost about $10,000.

Hudson E. Bridge has a St. Louis-made pipe organ in his home, 23 Portland place. The original cost was $4000, but it is said it would now cost $8000 to $10,000 to reproduce it. George W. Newberry has a smaller organ in his home, 6948 Delmar boulevard, and there is one in the former Semple home, 4411 Westminster place, now owned by Congressman Harry B. Hawes and at present occupied by Gerard B. Lambert.

W. K. Bixby had a pipe organ in his home at King's highway and Lindell boulevard, recently torn down to make way for a hotel. This instrument is now in storage. Charles A. Niemeyer has an automatic instrument in his home, 4564 West Pine boulevard, but as it cannot be played by hand it does not rank strictly speaking as a pipe organ.

ARGENTINA HAS PROSPECTS OF BECOMING POTATO EXPORTER

U. S. Trade Commissioner Reports Industry Has Developed Largely Since the War.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Argentina has good prospects of becoming one of the world's surplus potato countries, according to a report to the Commerce Department today from Trade Commissioner Brady at Buenos Aires.

The Argentine potato industry, he said, has developed on a large scale since the war and there is a strong effort apparent to export extensively. The two English-owned railroads of the country, he reported, recently have made a mutual agreement to import selected seed potatoes from England and the United States for distribution throughout the three potato districts of Argentina. While the system of land rentals and poor seed selection have been a deferrent to the industry, he declared, it is estimated that Argentina this year will produce more than 800,000,000 pounds of potatoes.

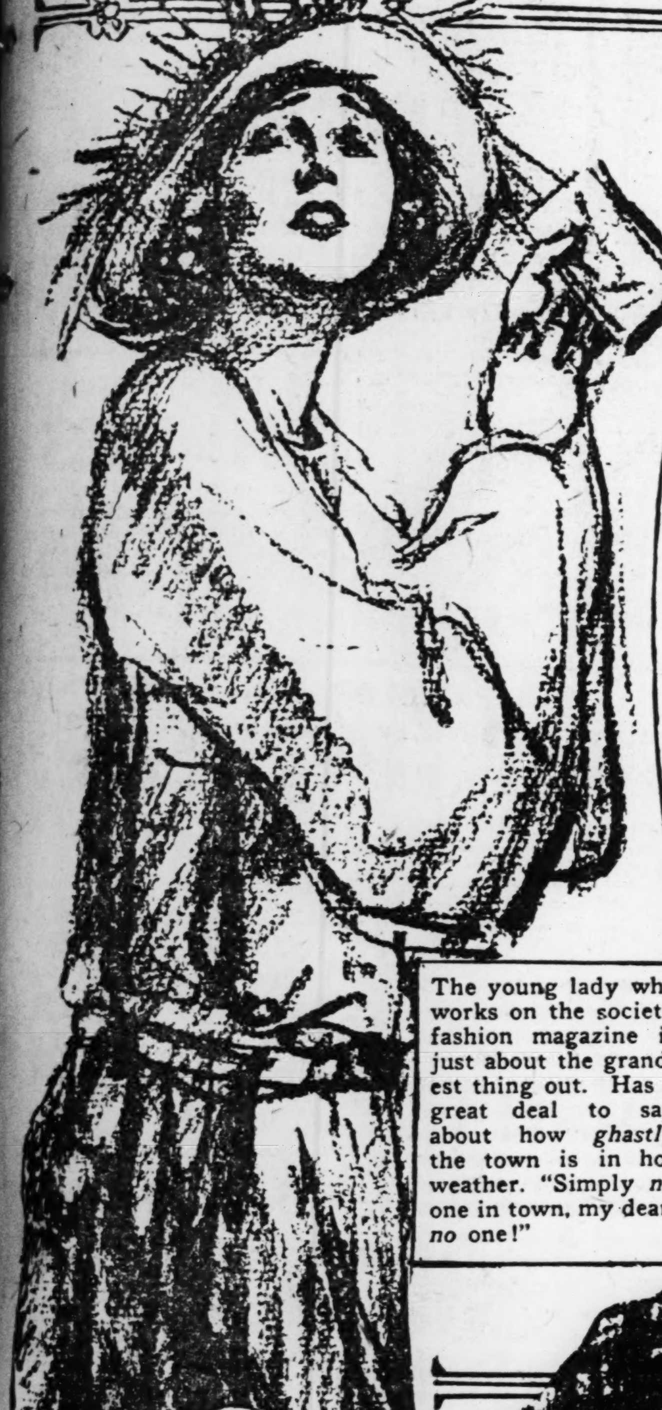
THE HUMBLE WORKING GIRL

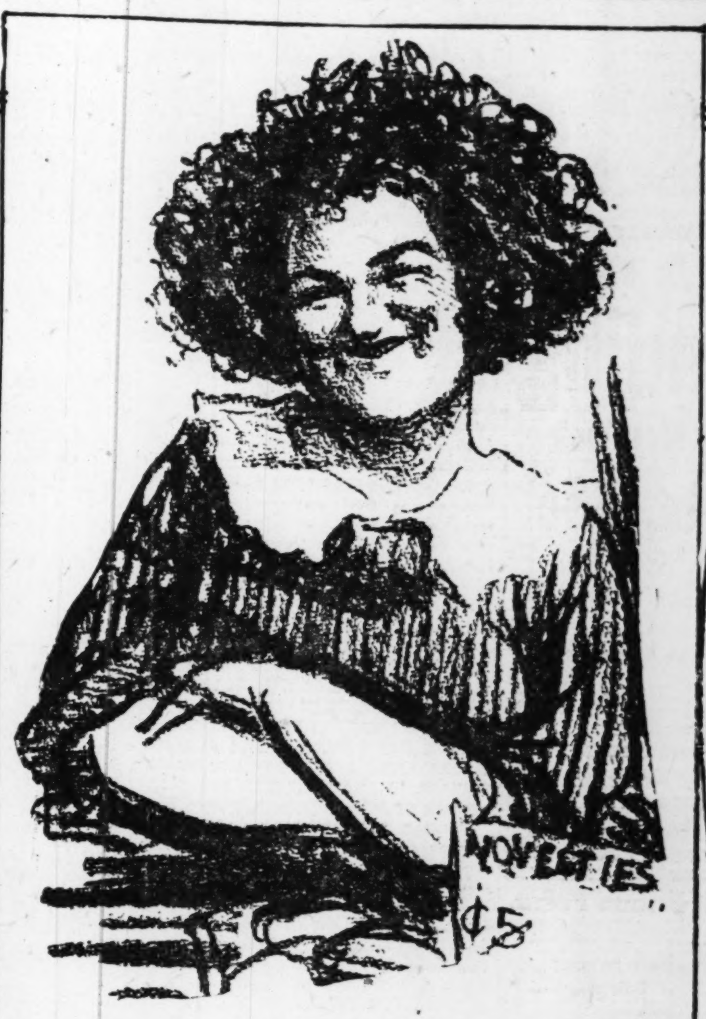
By W. E. Hill



The young lady who works on the society fashion magazine is just about the grandest thing out. Has a great deal to say about how ghastly the town is in hot weather. "Simply no one in town, my dear, no one!"

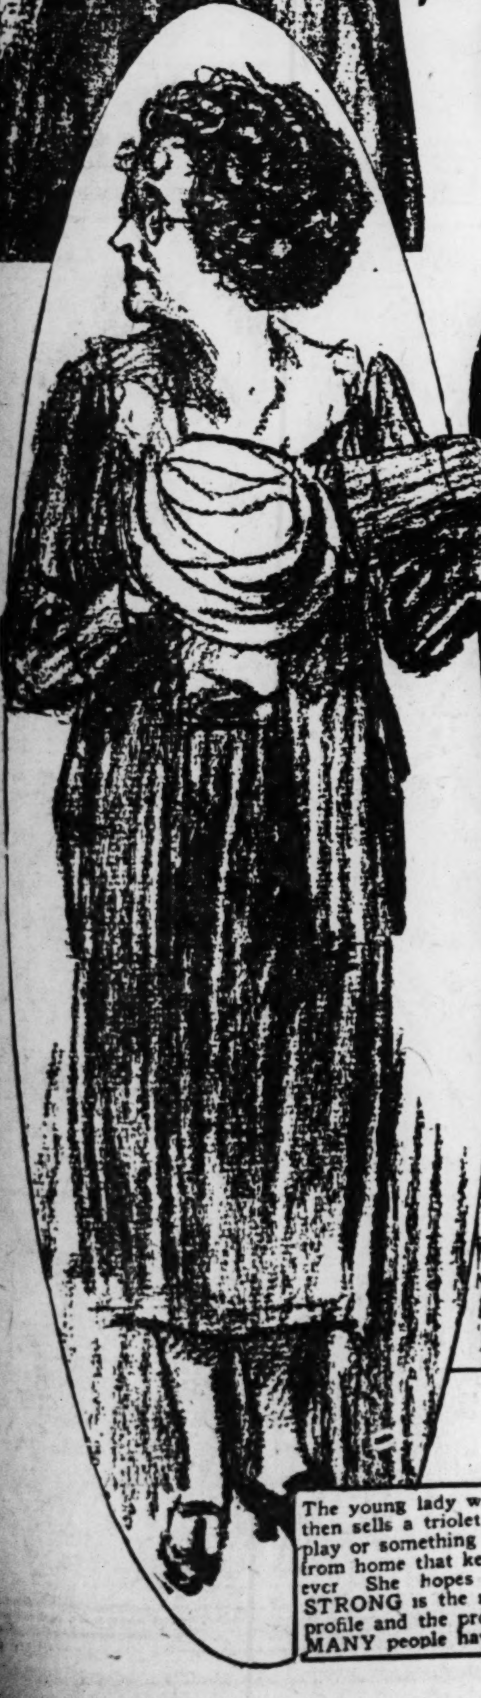
Oh, the injustice of things in this evil world! Thus run the thoughts of Erda, but yesterday in the employ of a suburban family. They got her to come way out to Piasa without mentioning the katydids. And katydids always keep Erda awake.

The private secretary. It's Pauline's job to ask your name, age, wife's occupation, what-you-want-to-see-him-about, etc., when you call to see Pauline's boss.

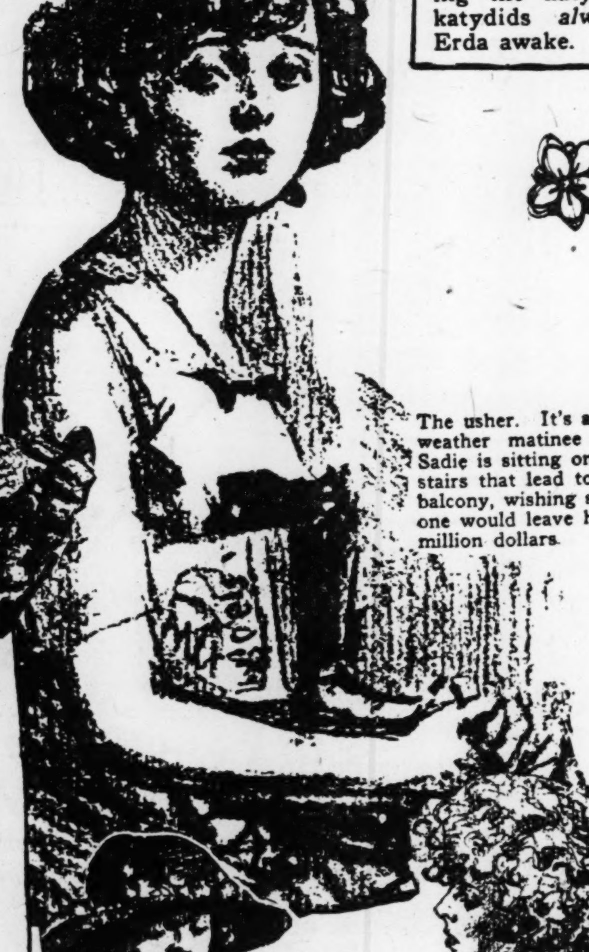


Reina is a working girl these days—at the 10-cent store—but only for the fun of it. Just for something to do these warm days. That's all. A male customer is purchasing a tack hammer for five cents from Reina's running mate, Lula, right across the aisle. Reina is pretending that the customer is Lula's steady. "Don't you believe one woid she says! Not one woid" Lula is telling the other girls

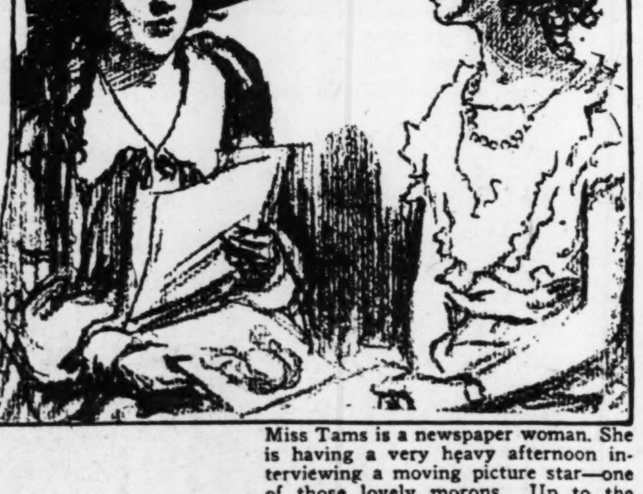
Someone's crushed companion. Crushed companions are easy to spot on hotel verandas by their hunted looks. They are always running up to the room for a glasses case, a book or some knitting. Inwardly they are always wishing they had gone on the stage at the age of ten or married a burglar.



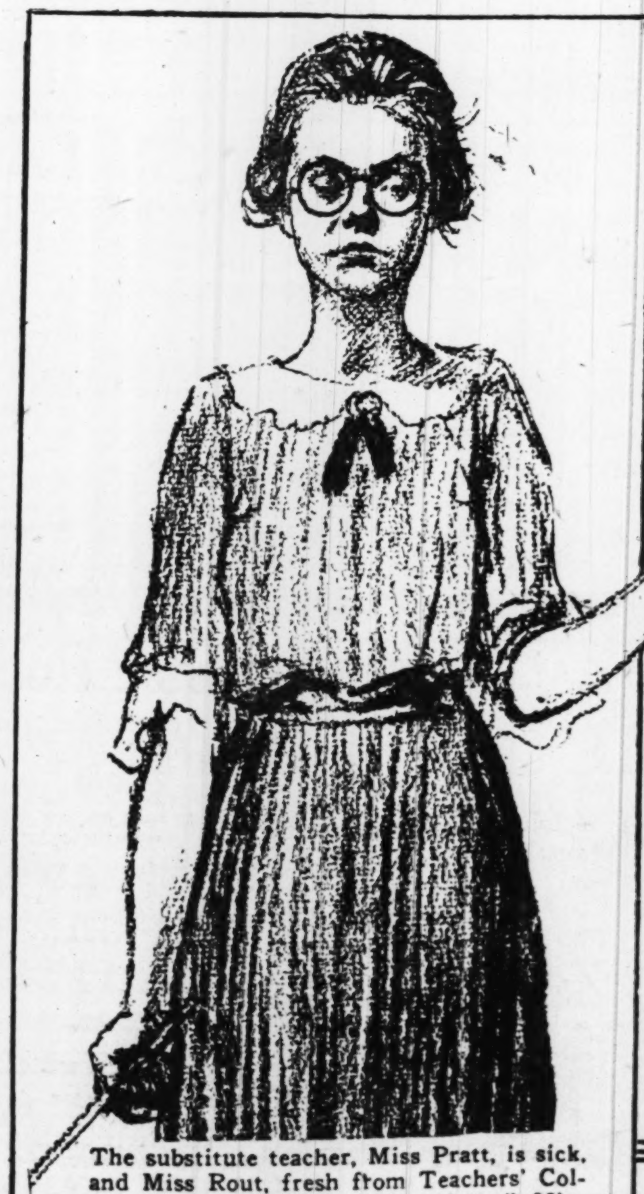
The young lady who writes and now and then sells a triolet or a vers libre one act play or something It's the monthly check from home that keeps the larder full, however She hopes you will notice how STRONG is the resemblance between her profile and the profile of Edna Millay So MANY people have seen it



The usher. It's a hot weather matinee and Sadie is sitting on the stairs that lead to the balcony, wishing some one would leave her a million dollars.

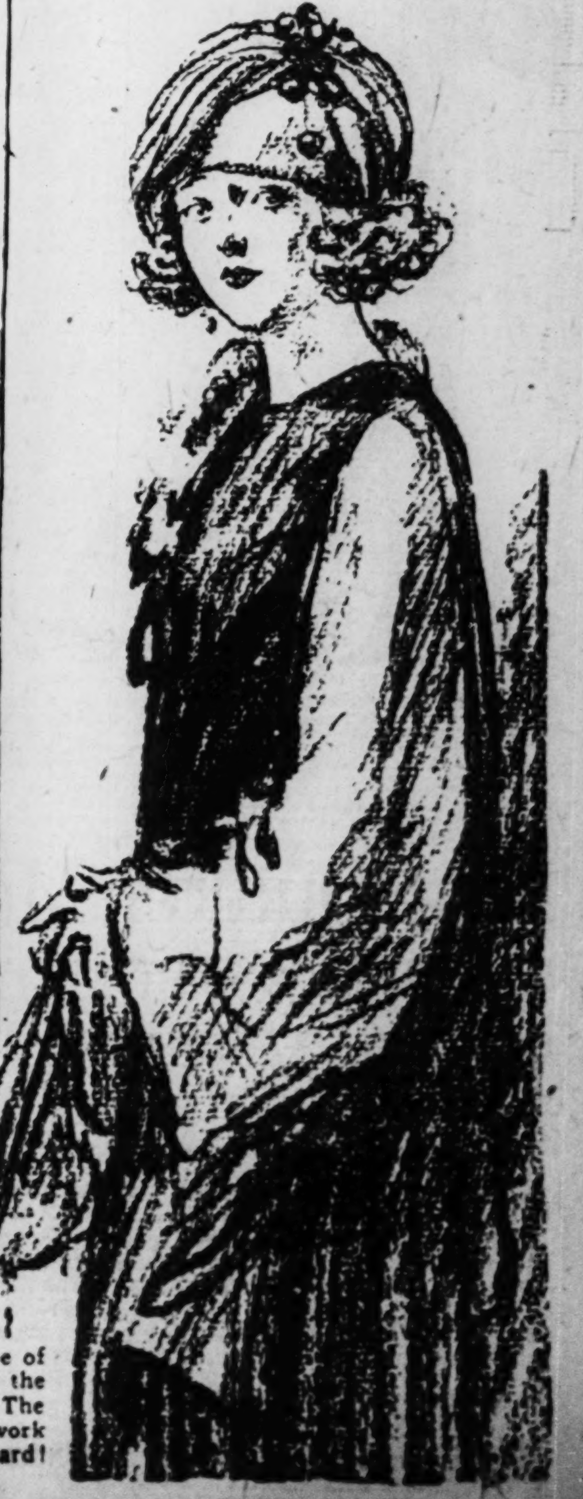


Miss Tams is a newspaper woman. She is having a very heavy afternoon interviewing a moving picture star—one of those lovely morons. Up to the present moment, five P M., Miss Tams has dragged forth the valuable information that the star loves her public her little dog, chicken chowmein and profile better than full face photographs. Soon Miss Tams will have to go back to the office and write a snappy interview, telling all about how she found the M. P star "among her books which she loves so dearly."



The substitute teacher, Miss Pratt, is sick, and Miss Rout, fresh from Teachers' College, is substituting. "Now, boys," Miss Rout is saying, "Wouldn't it be a splendid idea if we all try to be just as good as ever we can and then when Miss Pratt comes back just think how happy it will make her!"

The beautiful blonde who solicits the advertising contract, armed with a great deal of devastating charm and sandalwood perfume.



The Day Nursery stenog., Marguerite, has one of those convenient half-time jobs. Stenogs at the nursery from ten until three-thirty daily The hours are rather short, but Marguerite has to work awfully hard while she's on the job—awfully hard!

THE GARMENT SHOWN ON THE ABOVE figure is more than a House and Porch Dress: it is suitable for street wear as well. It is made of genuine Japanese crepe, in a delicate shade of blue. The new belt effect has a blue circle in the center, with two pink circles on each side, and has the popular sash back. The pockets have appliqued flowers to correspond with the belt. The edges are artistically bound in black.

ABOVE IS A SMART GARMENT OF unbleached muslin, all edges daintily bound in a soft shade of green. Has one deep pocket, with an appliqued flower to harmonize with the three appliqued circles at the neck. Has wide, loose sash. A neat and fashionable garment, serviceable at home and for street wear. One of the very latest and most popular of the Quaker Maid models.

HERE IS A HOUSE AND Porch Dress of pink and white checked gingham, standard quality. It is cut kimono style, with short sleeves. Has fancy deep pockets, and sash which ties in the back. It is very tastily trimmed with black ric-rac. Buttons visibly at both sides of the panel.

SUIT FILED TO CANCEL LOT DEED TO NEGROES

Thirty-one property owners in the 4200 block of Kennerly avenue yesterday filed suit seeking to cancel a deed by which the premises at 4257 Kennerly were sold to Elmer J. Carter and his wife, negroes.

They allege that the property was owned by Patrick J. Clawsey and his wife, who conveyed it to their son, Thomas J., and he, in turn, conveyed title to the Carters. The petition sets forth that the Carter lot is in the Chouteau place tract, which was platted about 25 years ago by the Fairgrounds Real Estate Co. under a restriction excluding negroes from either owning property in the restricted district or living there. This restriction, it is stated, expired in 1912, but was renewed until Dec. 31, 1927, by vote of the property owners, including Patrick Clawsey.

The case was assigned to Circuit Judge Davis, who set it for trial on Aug. 7. Pending trial a temporary restraining order covered by a $2000 bond was granted by which the Carters are prohibited from moving in. Lambert E. Walther, attorney for the plaintiffs, cited a decision of the Missouri Supreme Court which held valid a similar restriction against negroes.

The petition says no negro is now living in the block and if the Carters are permitted to occupy the premises such occupancy would greatly depreciate all the property in the block and cause irreparable damage to the plaintiffs and other owners of lots.

Among the petitioners are the Trares Realty and Investment Co., Aubrey W. Davis, Lena Weikart, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Enright, Mr. and Mrs. George H. May, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Nevilling, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Harrigan, Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Heuermann, Anthony B. Schulte, Patrick J. Dunne, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Deiber, Julius H. Sparks, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Neumann, Magdalena Vogel, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Corcoran, Mary F. Hall, Mary Overbeck, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gerlach and Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Cassidy.

ELECTRICAL WORKERS' UNION SIGNS NEW YEAR'S CONTRACT

Contracting employers and the Electrical Workers' Union, Local No. 1, on Friday signed a new contract for one year providing for a continuance of the old wage scale of $1.25 an hour and the eight-hour day. The union has approximately 500 members, and is affiliated with the Building Trades Council.

The employers attempted, in negotiations that lasted several weeks, to induce the workmen to accept a reduced wage, but the men insisted on a continuance of the old scale for another year.

Most of the electrical workers are employed in the building industry, several crafts of which accepted reduced wages from the $1.25 maximum in the last few months on an appeal from the Master Builders' Association to co-operate with that organization in reducing building costs.

Other trades that receive $1.25 an hour are bricklayers, steamfitters, lathers and plumbers. Plasterers receive as high as $1.35 an hour.

$5000 To Be Held in Reserve—Debts of $2,206,778 Claimed Against $50,000.

Probate Judge Holtcamp yesterday on motion of credtiros of the estate of the late Jacob C. Van Blarcom, president of the National Bank of Commerce, authorized the distribution of the remaining assets of the estate among the creditors. The creditors set forth in their petition that the estate is indebted to them in the sum of $2,206,778.19, and that the present assets of the estate do not amount to more than $50,000.

The assets of the estate, with the exception of $500 which Judge Holtcamp ordered held in reserve, will be pro rated among the creditors by the administrator, Walter J. G. Neun.

Van Blarcom died in 1908. The creditors who obtained the order for distribution are the Stifel, Nicolaus, & Parsons Investment Co., Commonwealth Trust Co., Continental and Commercial Bank of Chicago, the estate of Jesse Spalding and the National Bank of Commerce, of St. Louis.

WOOD RIVER DEPOT HEARING

C. & A. and Big Four Station Is Wanted at Illinois Town.

A hearing will be held by the Illinois Commerce Commission at Springfield Wednesday on a petition for the establishment of a passenger station at Wood River, Ill., for the Chicago & Alton and Big Four railroads. The two railroads have made a counter-proposition for the utilization by the railroads of the passenger station of the Alton-Granite City & St. Louis electric line. This is not acceptable to Wood River and will be opposed. The proposed site for the station is at the Ferguson avenue crossing.

The Wood River authorities have announced that the ordinance regulating the speed of trains passing through the city will be enforced and charges filed whenever there is a violation.

TWO MEN FOUND OPERATING A STILL ON UNION ROAD FARM

Shots Fired by Federal Agents Bring Them to a Halt When They Start Running.

Federal prohibition enforcement agents yesterday afternoon arrested William Pearce and John Vuckelich on the farm of John Bielhan, 90 years old, on the Union road, just south of the city limits, when they found the two operating a still of 250 gallons daily capacity in a shed at the rear of the farmhouse. When the men were surprised by the agents at the work both ran from the shed toward a wood. Shots fired by the agents stopped them.

Pearce told the agents that he ran because he had been told by others in the "moonshining" industry that Federal agents would not shoot. "Well, advise all of your friends differently," one of the agents told him.

Bielhan said he knew nothing of the presence of the still on his property. It was within 40 feet of his home and the odor of 3000 gallons of corn mash was strong. A warrant against him, as well as the other two will be requested. The agents destroyed the still and mash and 78 gallons of whisky.

LEGALITY OF MELON CUTTING FOR G. O. P. PRESS QUESTIONED

State Senator Phillips Raises Issue Regarding Publishing Measures to Be Submitted Under I. and R.

$300,000 TO $450,000 WOULD BE INVOLVED

Secretary of State Becker Says He Intends to Continue the Practice Unless Legal Proceedings Hinder.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 15.—The size of a melon to be cut by Secretary of State Becker among Republican newspapers of the State in connection with publications preceding the November election is in controversy, former State Senator Alroy S. Phillips of St. Louis having raised the question that there is no legal authority for printing measures to be submitted under the initiative and referendum, as is done with proposed constitutional amendments.

Editors of Republican papers figuratively have been smacking their lips over the prospect in sharing in this distribution of financial refreshment, for, because of the fact that nine proposed amendments to the Constitution are to be voted on, besides 14 measures that are under referendum and two proposed by initiative, it has been estimated that each paper selected would receive between $3000 and $4000, or a total of between $300,000 and $450,000.

Section 4941 of the revised statutes provided that all proposed amendments to the constitution shall be published in some newspaper in each county where there is such, for four consecutive weeks next preceding the general election.

Intends to Continue Practice.

This has been the law for many years. But so far as Phillips, Becker or Becker's attorneys can ascertain there is no corresponding statute applying to initiative and referendum propositions. Nothwithstanding that fact, 22 initiative and referendum propositions have been voted on since adoption of that part of the constitution in 1908 all of which have been published by the Secretaries of State just as were proposed constitutional amendments and to pay for all of which, appropriations were made by the legislature.

Furthermore Becker intends to continue the same practice, unless stopped by legal proceedings, he announced today in a letter to Phillips, and which, in part, follows:

"Since 1910 there have been submitfted to the people and printed in one paper in each county, as were other amendments passed by the Legislature 22 initiative and referendum propositions.

"The statutes governing the initiative and referendum rave not been changed since 1910. The Secretaries of States who let the printing in one paper in each county since 1910, were familiar with the amendment and the laws, and the Legislature, without question, always appropriated money to pay for the newspaper publication regardless of the political complexion of the Legislature.

"Reaches Every Home."

"I fail to see how the people can vote intelligently upon any proposition if they do not have an opportunity to read and study the proposition beyond the one hundred word title which will appear upon the ballot and I think that no better manner could be devised for giving the people the desired information than through the country press which reaches every home in each county. In my estimation the public should not be asked to vote upon any proposition about which it has no knowledge or has not the opportunity to obtain such knowledge and I am assuming that you are especially interested in having the workmen's compensation act, which was passed by the Fifty-first General Assembly and which has been referred to a vote of the people printed for their information.

"It is my intntion to follow the precedent established by all my predecessors who followed what they and I believe is the intent of the law since the adoption of the initiative and referendum amendments by the people."

Illinois Works Contracts Let.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. July 15.—Contracts for 90 miles of pavement, approximately 13 miles of heavy grading and 26 bridges were awarded to low bidders by the State Department of Public Works and buildings here today. The average cost of pavement per mile, including cement was $27,167.18, well within the limit of $30,000 set by Gov. Small.

In the first six months of 1922, there were 61 automobile fatalities in St. Louis, as shown by the semi-annual report of the St. Louis Safety Council. Thirty-eight of these were found by the Coroner to have been accidents, nine were homicides and 14 were due to criminal carelessness. This is an increase of 24, or 64 per cent, over the same period last year.

The number for the first half of last year was 37, and for the corresponding period in 1920 there were 48.

The causes of the deaths of the last six months are given as follows: Jay-walking, 14; excess speeding at corner, 12; playing in street, 12; careless driving causing collision with other automobiles, 9; grade-crossing accidents, 4; collisions with fire apparatus, 3; collision with street cars, 2; collision with wagon, 1; collision with motor cycle, 1; fall from automobile, 1; overturning of car by careless driving, 1; coasting down hill onto boulevard, 1.

33 Deaths at Crossings.

Thirty-three of these deaths occurred at crossings, 21 in the middle of blocks, one on Jefferson avenue viaduct, one on King's highway viaduct, one in Forest Park, and four at grade-crossings.

Forty-five deaths were caused by passenger car drivers, 13 by truck drivers and three by fire apparatus.

Forty-five of the victims were male and 16 were female.

The ages range as follows: 1 to 5 years, 9; 6 to 16 years, 6; 17 to 30 years, 9; 31 to 50 years, 10; 51 to 60 years, 12; 61 to 70 years, 11; 71 to 85 years, 4.

Intoxication was the direct contributing cause in five cases.

In commenting on the increase in fatalities, Carl L. Smith, secretary-manager of the Safety Council, said: "In the first six months of last year we had approximately 69,231 automobile and trucks licensed in St. Louis. At this time this year we have approximately 78,850 automobiles and trucks, or an increase of approximately 14 per cent, while the automobile deaths have increased 64 per cent.

"It is my impression that the first few months of this year the driving public went on a speed rampage. The average driver seemed to be possessed of speed mania and was driving considerably faster than he was last year. This might be traceable to the fact that our present Police Court judges have adopted the system of minimum fines, or again it might be due to the increasing disregard for the sacredness of life and limb. There also seems to have been an epidemic of maintaining the right of way and unwillingness on the part of the average motorist to give way to the other fellow. One often sees today arguments between motorists at intersections. This seems to be on the increase. Any desire to extend the same courtesies while driving as one would while walking seems to be eliminated from the average motorist's mind. I believe there is a growing practice in a certain type of driver to disregard the law. This class, which is by far in the minority, is causing the majority of these deaths and serious injuries. A more general distribution of the traffic laws would help. One would be surprised to know how few motorists really know the traffic laws well enough to rigidly observe them.

"Failure to drive in a common sense manner is really the underlying cause of 95 per cent of all accidents. People drive into uncertainties, fail to slow down and signal when making left hand turns, recklessly drive in front of moving street cars, pass street cars while passengers are alighting (although this condition has somewhat improved), fail to slow up on nearing pedestrians at crossings, do not give way to the right for faster moving vehicles, often causing side-swiping, take chances and violate the law by passing vehicle on the right, start from curb into traffic without giving any notice, use blinding headlights, and fail to comply with lighting restrictions, fail to slow down at intersections and grade crossings.

"The one encouraging factor is the decrease in automobile fatalities to school children, or children between the ages of 6 and 16, there having been only six. This shows the thoroughness and effectiveness of accident prevention education now taught in public and parochial schools.

Just a little more care in handling the car and more care on the part of the pedestrian crossing the street during the next six months will help lower the death rate. Unless this is done St. Louis will lose her prominence in the safety world and her title of "The Safest Big City in America," which she has held for the last three years. It will also mean a probable increase in insurance rates. Any insurance rate reduction is based on the actual experience of a community, and fewer accidents may mean decreased rates."

This Interpretation Is Hoffman Playing

AS HOFFMAN PLAYED, his playing was recorded and duplicated by a recording piano. This record was cut into a music roll. All the refinements of expression, all the emotion and feeling put into the interpretation by the genius of Hoffman are reproduced when the roll is played on

The REPRODUCING APOLLO PIANO
Trade Mark Registered

Hence this interpretation is Hoffman. The wonderful fidelity of the reproduction can only be appreciated when the instrument is heard.

Thus you may hear all the greater artists, Hoffman, Paderewski, Gabrilowitsch, Bauer, Busoni, Godowsky, Ganz, Lhevinne, Fannie Bloomfield-Zeisler, and the lighter music and popular melodies of the day played by Arndt, "Pete" Wendling, Brockway, Lee S. Roberts and Carrie Jacobs Bond.

Every lover of music will be interested in hearing the reproducing performance of this wonderful instrument. It will give our sales organization pleasure to demonstrate its musical possibilities at any time.

CITY OFFICER ORDERS ARREST IF "WEDGE" IS NOT KEPT CLOSED

Health Commissioner Had Reported Resort to Be a Nuisance and Minus Sanitary Facilities.

The Police Department has been instructed by Associate City Counselor Hart to arrest Gabriel M. Geist, proprietor of "The Wedge," a barbecue resort at 6922-24 Clayton avenue, if he attempts to operate the place, which was ordered closed by Health Commissioner Starkloff Thursday after a hearing. The resort was declared by Starkloff to be a nuisance, after it was disclosed at the hearing that it was not equipped with water and sewerage facilities.

The order to the police, which followed a conference between Hart and Starkloff, provided that should Geist, following his arrest and release on bond, attempt to operate the place he should be rearrested and the place closed.

The complaint against Geist was made by members of the Hi-Pointe League. At a hearing in September, 1921, Geist was instructed by the Health Commissioner to provide water and sewerage facilities. Geist was arrested yesterday when the place was found open, but did not appear in police court because of faulty preparation of his bond.

PROSPERITY IN PORTO RICO

Coffee Said to Be Responsible for Better Times in Island.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Coffee is responsible for the wave of prosperity now sweeping Costa Rica, the Commerce Department was informed today by Consul Waterman at San Jose. High London offers, he reported, have practically wiped out all of the last crop and have so affected the distribution of the coffee that considerable amounts already shipped to New York have been diverted to the English port.

The present crop, he added, has flowered, the grain has taken hold, and with reports being received from Brazil of poor prospects in that country, growers are anticipating high prices and "continued prosperity."

Why Be "Skinny"

When It's So EASY to Increase Your Weight This New Way

New Scientific Process Embodied in IRONIZED YEAST Enables Many Thin, Nervous, Run-down Folks to Gain 5 to 9 Pounds on First Package

NO matter how thin you may be—no matter how long you have been trying to put on weight—no matter how many different preparations you may have tried without results—you owe it to yourself to learn of the real benefits that IRONIZED YEAST holds for you. For thin folks to gain five to nine pounds on the very first package is not at all unusual. Pimples and other humiliating skin eruptions usually completely disappear within 14 days. And as for creating new energy, seeming miracles are reported by people who were once nervous, weak and run-down. And all because IRONIZED YEAST embodies an amazing process—a process which enables yeast to bring its wonderful results often in just half the usual time!

What Is The Secret?

While science admits that yeast alone is good, experiments prove that it is not enough, in itself, to bring 100% results. For although yeast contains certain mysterious elements which have a wonderful effect on our health, it needs some other agent in order to quickly convert these vital elements into rosy cheeks, firm flesh and rugged strength.

Iron, Science tells us, is of high value in changing the food we eat into living cells and tissue. So working on this problem, our chemists finally discovered the amazing process of ironization. It is this process which enables you to derive from yeast ALL of the splendid benefits it holds for you.

Superior—Therefore Imitated

You are cautioned against accepting cheap inferior imitations of IRONIZED YEAST, which in most cases are merely mixtures of ordinary yeast and iron. The remarkable process of ironization is embodied only in IRONIZED YEAST, the one scientifically correct yeast treatment. Always insist upon the genuine IRONIZED YEAST. It is the only way you can be sure of getting the best.

"Gains 10 Pounds"

"I have taken only 1½ packages of IRONIZED YEAST, yet have gained 10 pounds in 15 days."—Rev. L. W. V.

"Gains 6 Pounds"

"The improvement in me since taking IRONIZED YEAST is just wonderful. Now I eat heartily, never have that tired-out feeling, and I have gained six pounds."—Mr. E. B. C.

"Gains 8 Pounds"

"After one box of IRONIZED YEAST I have gained 8 pounds, my skin is clear, I now sleep soundly every night. It is the greatest tonic I ever heard of."—Mr. A. G. B.

"Gains 10 Pounds"

"I think IRONIZED YEAST is a wonderful flesh-builder and fine for the complexion. I have gained 10 pounds after 1½ packages."

Mrs. J. K. B.

"Gains 7 Pounds"

"Before taking IRONIZED YEAST I weighed myself. Then I weighed myself two weeks later and to my surprise I have gained 7 pounds."

—Miss M. G. W.

K. OF C. DENOUNCE ANTI-PAPAL SOCIETY

Magazine Article for August Will Declare "Dynamite Is Dangerous Both Ways."

NEW YORK, July 15.—The proposed organized movement against the institutions of the Roman Catholic Church by the new Evangelical Protestant Society, described in the Post-Dispatch yesterday, will be denounced in the August issue of the Knights of Columbus national magazine, Columbia. The article says in part:

"The Evangelical Protestant Society ventures into the public print and talks of its 'dynamic possibilities' in warring on the Pope, the church and the Knights of Columbus. Dynamite is dangerous both ways.

"Rome and the church whose supreme pontiff resides there have the amazing habit of surviving attacks made by such narrow-visioned gentlemen. The statement that the Pope aims for political control of the United States is becoming a stock joke. Something new must be invented by the gentlemen who seek to foment religious warfare in America. However, so long as prejudice pays in either publicity or plasters there will be prejudice mongers.

"The Knights of Columbus, either directly or indirectly, have never attacked, nor ever will attack, the creed of any fellow citizen.

Organiaztion of Laymen.

Dr. David James Burrell, pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church, in whose study the Evangelical Protestant Society was organized last December, was interviewed yesterday on the purposes of the society. Dr. Burrell explained that he is more in favor of the evangelistic plans of the new organization than what he calls a "belligerent attitude." He says the society will be an organization of laymen, in which the ministers will have more of an advisory than directive capacity. Discussing his part in the movement, he said:

"I was in at the birth of the organiaztion, but I have not been able to be present at many of its subseuqent meetings."

"It has already met with a hearty response from all over the country, but I am frank to say that I regard its continuance as a useful body to be dependent upon its strict loyalty to its original principle as I have understood it—its distinctive feature, so far as my personal understanding goes, will be its carrying on of propaganda in the spirit of loyalty to truth, but kindliness toward all.

"In my judgment the errors of Romanism should be combatted by the positive formulation of sound truth rather than by a belligerent method.

"This movement was born in the lay mind and not among the ministers. We were called in later in an advisory capacity, but I am inclined to think that the fewer ministers there are directing it the better for the movement. If a minister talks of religious error it may seem like professionalism, whereas a layman is less likely to be charged with prejudices.

"Belligerence Not Important."

"If this turns out to be merely one of the many movements which have presented a belligerent front toward Romanism it will not amount to anything. But if it proves to be what its name indicates—a society for the dissemination of evangelical Protestant truth, it will fill a place of its own and be of decided impertance.

When it was recalled to Dr. Burrell that the new society has already announced its opposition to the exchange of ambassadors between the United States and the Vatican and announced its intention "to serve notice on politicians that henchmen of the Roman hierarchy fill a percentage of public offices out of all proportion to their percentage of the population" and similar objects in addition to evangelism, he said:

"I am not responsible for that. I am merely speaking now for myself."

LONDON TIMES BELIEVED TO HAVE NEW MANAGEMENT

LONDON, July 15.—With the turn for the worse in Lord Northcliffe's condition, the feud between the great editor and Premier Lloyd George is believed to be practically over.

Without any fanfare of trumpets the Times in the last week has abandoned its blind support of the French Foreign Office policy in Europe. The "Thunderer" has long assailed the British Premier for his attitude on reparations.

The interpretation placed on its change of attitude now is that the great newspaper, which has always been considered England's mouthpiece, has changed its foreign policy in general. It is now more in keeping with the policy of the Government and its own traditions than at any time during the battle between Lloyd George and its owner. The change has been shown markedly in the Times' editorials in the last few days on the German situation. This change in the Times' policy has led to the belief that the newspaper is under new direction.

The Outlook says of the Times: "Recent changes in management and control cannot with courtesy be discussed, but they have been of far-reaching importance."

No one in political quarters or in Fleet street believes Northcliffe will again assume active direction of his newspaper organization.

RESTRAINING ORDER.

To each of the above named defendants respectively, and to all other persons affiliated, acting, combining, conspiring, agreeing or arranging with them:

WHEREAS, In the above named cause it has been made to appear on verified bill of complaint filed herein and affidavits in connection therewith, which were on this 12th day of July presented to the Honorable George W. English, Judge of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Illinois, that immediate and irreparable injury, loss or damage will result to the complainant herein before notice can be served and a hearing had thereon, for the reason that it appears by the said bill of complaint and affidavits that acts of violence are being perpetrated by the above named defendants and other persons affiliated, acting, combining, agreeing or arranging with them, and that such persons have established unlawful picket lines and have threatened the employes of complainant in divers unlawful ways, so that the employes of complainant are being hindered, molested and intimidated and prevented from performing their regular work in connection with the maintenance and repair of equipment, so that there is imminent and immediate danger of the train service of complainant being interfered with, interrupted and delayed; and,

IT APPEARING TO THE COURT, That a restraining order preliminary to a hearing upon a preliminary injunction is necessary in order that the operation of complainant's trains may not be handicapped, injured and delayed, and that prima facie the plaintiff is entitled to a restraining order restraining the defendants herein and those affiliated, acting, co-operating, confederating, combining, agreeing or arranging with them from doing the acts complained of, and threatened to be committed;

NOW, THEREFORE, On motion of the plaintiff it is ordered that the defendants appear before the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Illinois at a session to be held in the court room in the said City of East St. Louis, in the State of Illinois, in said District, upon the 18th day of July, 1922, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of the said day and then and there show cause if any there may be why the preliminary injunction therein prayed should not issue, and it appearing to the Court that there is danger of irreparable injury being caused to plaintiff before the hearing of said application for a preliminary writ can be heard unless the said defendants are, pending the hearing, restrained as hereinafter set forth, and the said plaintiff's application for a restraining order having been granted by the Court and the plaintiff having executed a bond approved by the Clerk of this Court in the penal sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000.00), securing the said defendants against all loss or damage which may result from the issue of said order if it should be finally determined that the same was improperly issued or that may be awarded to them by reason of the granting of the said order.

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS ORDERED That you and each of you, the defendants herein named and all other persons affiliated, acting, co-operating, confederating, combining, conspiring, agreeing or arranging with you, be restrained from in any manner interfering with, hindering, obstructing or stopping the business of the plaintiff or its agents, servants or employes in the maintenance, conduct or operation of its business; from compelling or inducing or attempting to compel or induce by threats, intimidations, force, violence, fraud or deception any person now in the employ of the plaintiff to cease performance of his duties or to fail or refuse to enter or continue in its service; from commanding or directing or permitting any person under the control of the said defendants or any of them to interfere with or prevent by threats, intimidations, fraud or violence any person from entering or continuing in the employment of the plaintiff; from trespassing or entering upon the grounds or premises of plaintiff for the purpose of interfering therewith or hindering or obstructing its business or for the purpose of compelling by threats or intimidations, violent or abusive language, or putting in fear or suggestions of danger any of plaintiff's employees to refuse or fail to perform their duties as such and from compelling or inducing or attempting to compel or induce by threats or intimidations or abusive or violent language or putting in fear or suggestions of danger any of plaintiff's employees to leave its service or to fail or refuse to perform their duties as such employees, or compelling or attempting to compel by like cause any person desiring to seek employment with plaintiff from so accepting the employment; from in any way hindering, obstructing or impeding the operation of the trains of plaintiff or the movement of freight and passenger traffic and United States mail or performing or discharging other duties as a carrier; from endeavoring illegally to induce people not to deal with the plaintiff, its agents, or employes; and from in any manner destroying or injuring property of the plaintiff; or by any such means aforesaid hindering, obstructing or interfering with the carrying on of its business of a carrier of interstate commerce; SHUPP'S RELATION TO SACKS SAID TO BE SHOWN IN LETTERS

Anti-Saloon League Head Said to Have Canvassed Rural Constitution Delegates for Sacks, Now a Wet Candidate.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 15.—How the Rev. W. C. Shupp, Missouri superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, canvassed rural delegates to the constitution convention last April in behalf of William Sacks, now a beer and light wine candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States Senatorship, who at that time wanted to be president of the convention, was disclosed yesterday when a country member of the convention produced a letter written by Shupp. Several other delegates from rural districts said that they had received identical letters.

The letter, on the red, white and blue stationery of the Anti-Saloon League, under date of April 15 and signed "W. C. Shupp," is as follows:

"'It is not at all likely that the Anti-Saloon League will need to ask for anything very definite of the constitutional convention. However, we are interested in seeing that the convention is harmonized with officers at its head who will see that every proposition introduced gets a square deal.

"I do not know who the candidates for president will be, but a number of our friends are talking of Mr. Sacks and I just want to say to you from my personal acquaintance with him that I am sure if he were elected to this position that the convention would be conducted on a high plane and all proper questions would be given fair consideration.

"You will please consider this letter confidential."

NEW YORK MARKET TREND REFLECTS OPTIMISTIC VIEW

Manifest Feeling of Confidence That Solution for Present Difficulties Will Be Found — Money Rates Continue to Soften.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Although domestic labor troubles reached a critical stage this week and the European situation became still more clouded by the deadlock at The Hague and new reparations difficulties, our markets were not seriously disturbed, and such unfavorable reactions as occurred were followed in most cases by quick recovery. There was a manifest feeling of confidence that a solution for these difficulties would be found, and that the crises, both here and abroad, would hasten developments, that would ultimately prove beneficial. This serves to explain why the prices of a number of securities on the New York Stock Exchange reached their highest point for the year during the same week that the strikes by union coal miners and the railway shopmen began to interfere with the ordinary course of business.

"It now appears that the strike of the railway workers has had the unexpected effect of speeding the efforts to settle the miners strike, and to this extent at least it has served some purpose. By crippling the carrying capacity of the roads transporting coal from the nonunion fields to the industrial centers of Ohio and Pennsylvania, and thereby curtailing the output of the blast furnaces and steel mills it has brought about a situation calling for Government intervention between the mine operators and the officials of the miners' union. In the event of an early settlement of the coal strike a serious car shortage is regarded as a probability, for the reason that the heavy demand for coal shipments will coincide with the beginning of the crop movement. The prospect of a car famine in the autumn is, indeed, causing more concern to some large shippers than the existing labor troubles.

"Not all of the check to business activity indicated statistically during the past fortnight is to be attributed to the restraints imposed by the existing labor situation. This is normally the dull period of the year, and some slackening of trade and industry should therefore be expected. There was, for example, a slight decrease in car loadings for the week ended July 1 and this could not conceivably have been effected by the strike of the shopmen, as the latter were idle only on the last day of that week. On the other hand, a decline in the scale of operations of the United States Steel Corporation to about 75 per cent of capacity, compared with 77 per cent a fortnight ago, would appear in view of the large volume of unfilled orders on the books of that concern, to indicate the effects of fuel shortage and car congestion, rather than of a reasonable movement.

Favorable Factors Not Wanting.

"Meanwhile favorable factors are not wanting. Both exports and domestic consumption of cotton were greater in June than in May, and consumption during the seven months of the current cotton year is about a million bales in excess of that for the corresponding period a year ago. At the same time stocks in warehouses are approximately two and a half million bales less than a year ago. The new crop may exceed last year's short yield by some three million bales, but in view of the increased consumption it will barely suffice for the market's needs, and the days of a heavy carryover with prices below production costs are, for the time being, at least, things of the past. While the estimated grain crops fall below the actual yields of 1921, the supplies will be ample for our domestic requirements, with a moderate surplus for export.

"Money rates have continued to soften. Call loans on the New York Stock Exchange again dropped during the week below 3 per cent, after a temporary stiffening due to the withdrawals of funds to the interior for the month-end settlements. What has attracted most attention, however, has been the further reduction of the discount rate of the Bank of England from 3½ to 3 per cent. In view of the lower rates in the open market in London this action was not unexpected, and the bank still adheres to its policy of maintaining the rate somewhat above that of the open market. This reduction has naturally provoked discussion of a further lowering of Federal Reserve rates in this country, and in this connection it is to be noted that the spread between the Bank of England's and the open market rates is still greater after the reduction than that between the rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve Bank and the rate for bankers' acceptances, which corresponds more nearly than anything else in this country to the London market rates.

Equipments Strong.

"Trading during today's short session of the stock market was limited in volume and characterized by no important price changes with the exception of an advance in the equipment issues. Nearly every stock in this group was bid up from 1 to 2 points. The oils were irregular and the rest of the list dull and for the most part unchanged. The ford market was also dull, but prices held around the high levels established during the past few days. The French Government issues again gained ground slightly.

"Foreign exchange showed a firmer tendency. The volume of business was of the usual week-end variety, but a fair demand appeared for sterling and the leading European rates. At $4.44¼ sterling gained ⅛, while French francs continued their advance of yesterday afternoon, getting up to 8.28 cents. German marks also improved slightly.

"Little activity was apparent in the commodity markets. With the Liverpool exchange closed, cotton trading was largely an evening up affair. The October future opened 14 points lower at 22.35 cents and then went through a series of small rallies and reactions with the price keeping slightly below the previous close. Wheat also showed little change. The September future opened somewhat higher, but lost part of its early gain later.

"A decrease of $25,590,000 in surplus is shown by the weekly statement of the Clearing House, the total standing at $12,316,000. Loans rose $5,135,000 accompanied by a decrease in cash in vaults of member banks of $4,542,000. Demand and time loans, meanwhile, increased sharply, the former $36,000,000 and the latter $9,818,000.

"The announcement in the last hour of trading of crude oil price cuts in the Mid Continent field evidently had been pretty well discounted, for there was no important weakness toward the close in the shares of American oil companies. The market closed irregular with the equipment stocks the active features.

California Oil Price Drop.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—The Standard Oil Co. of California announced yesterday reductions of about 25 cents a barrel in the prices it will offer for the various grades of crude oil at the well and a corresponding drop in the base selling price of fuel oil. The new selling price for fuel oil is $1.25 a barrel. The change is effective today. Overproduction and low demand were the reasons assigned.

LOWERING OF BANK OE ENGLAND RATE TO 3 PER CENT FEATURE OF WEEK

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, July 15.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in today's financial review says:

"The reduction in the Bank of England's rediscount rate must be regarded as indicative of an inability to discern daylight in the present chaos and gloom on the Continent, pending the clearing of which any important revival in trade is virtually impossible. The money market is affected not only by continued dullness in trade and consequent absence of commercial bills, but also by a reduction in the volume of Treasury bills; hence abnormally low rates each week forced Treasury bills, with a demoralizing effect, on the market. It is feared, however, that the low bank rate may give further impetus to speculative operations and also create a false impression as to the actual position, in which case a revival in trade, when it comes, might again be checked, not merely by dearer money, but by insufficient credit resources.

Debt Funding Talk.

"In regard to the funding of our debt to you there has been silly talk of raising big loans on both sides of the Atlantic to redeem it in wholesale fashion. Such reports are unfounded. It must be remembered that, quite apart from our debt to your Government, we have other sterling British Government obligations on your side totaling to about £14,000,000 due before the end of the year.

"In spite of a strong rally in the mark the economic and political crisis in Germany is most serious. Europe's political and financial problems require an enormously strong hand in the absence of the co-operation of America.

"Further fall in our railway rates coinciding with cheap money will doubtless help stimulate trade, but neither your trade nor ours can possibly become healthy with Europe in its present position.

Foreign Trade Situation.

"Although the Mexican Government manifestly is desirous to operate along the lines of the agreement recently reached with bankers in New York and while it is believed that the arrangement is most detailed, including the starting of a new bank, the best quarters here still refuse to believe that Obregon will ratify the arrangement until Mexico obtains official recognition.

"Features of our foreign trade returns include a great increase in German purchases of woolen and other goods, and also freer purchases of our goods by America."

Wall Street News and Comment
—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The stock market furnished the usual midsummer Saturday spectacle of dullness. There were more points of strength, however, than weakness, with most strength making itself felt in an entirely new quarter. This was in the equipment group, and every member of this group advanced sharply. The buying which appeared here showed more than anything else that equipment stocks were scarce at present prices. The situation in the equipments has not changed for some time, so it could not be said that a new element had entered the market position of the stocks. All of the railroads are in the market for new equipment and these orders are expected to make their appearance soon.

Specialties, such as International Paper and Industrial Alcohol, also were strong, while the usual weakness in the oils made its appearance on the announcement by Standard Oil of California of a reduction of 25c a barrel in the price of crude oil.

The demand for the United States Government war issues and high-grade railway issues continued in the bond market. New high prices for the year were reached in both of these groups and the market generally was strong. French Government and municipal issues recovered more of their recent losses.

The Bond Market.

Although the U. S. Government securities continued active and strong, their leadership of the bond market, acquired on Friday under the stimulus of easier money, passed today to the railroad list. All the Liberty issues held around their high prices of the preceding day, the second 4¼s striking a new top for 1922. It was in the railroad group, however, that record high prices were numerous. High-grade bonds which have featured recent dealings kept up their advance, some of them above the best figures of last spring's buoyant market.

In the foreign Government section French Government and municipal loans were the outstanding incidents. Gains here were only moderate, but reflected the improvement in the continental exchanges, particularly in francs. French 7½s got to par again, and the municipal loans recovered their position above 73. Sweden 6s touched 103.

Among the industrials, Consolidated Gas convertible 7s were less prominent than on Friday and sold below 124 most of the time. Rubber, public utilities and steel company bonds were strong.

The market this week for Canadian provincial bonds was comparatively inactive, with prices, however, holding up well.

A syndicate has purchased from the Province of British Columbia $2,000,000 par value two-year 5 per cent debentures due July 15.

The statement of Otis Elevator for the six months ending June 30, 1922, shows a net income of $1,185,522 after payment of fixed charges and Federal taxes against $1,887,109 for the same period of last year.

Standard Oil of California has reduced its offered prices for various grades of crude oil at the well approximately 25 cents a barrel depending upon its specific gravity. It is announced that the company's base selling price for fuel oil is also reduced from $1.50 to $1.25 a barrel. The reductions follow large production with less than normal demand, it was said.

Reductions of $1250 on both open and closed models of Pierce-Arrow motor cars were announced today. This is the first change in price of this car since the company was consolidated with the company manufacturing the Lafayette motor car, which is controlled by the Nash interests. The new prices represent a reduction of about 15 per cent on the closed car and 20 per cent on the open job.

Equipments Stocks.

The equipment stocks furnished the feature of today's trading with Baldwin Locomotive, American Locomotive, American Car and Foundry and Lima Locomotive all active at higher prices. All along it has been said that 1922 would be the big year for the equipments.

HOGS RISE TO $11.20, BUT GAIN NOT HELD

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	30,952	16,853	19,294
Hogs	57,145	44,257	43,146
Sheep	24,750	24,122	22,357
Totals	112,847	85,232	84,797

Hogs closed lower for the week at the St. Louis National Stockyards, and cattle, sheep and lambs about steady. Receipts of cattle and calves at approximately 31,000 head were the largest of the year. The offering included 120 cars of Texas range steers and a fair representation of well-finished native stock. Trade reflected a stronger trend the fore part of the week, but worked lower on the close, eliminating virtually all of the early improvement. Compared with a week ago best qualities native steers are steady to strong, Westerns about steady, plain native steers, including stockers and feeders, 25c to 50c lower; butcher yearlings, cows, heifers and bulls steady, and canner and cutter cows strong. The top for the week and a new high mark for the year to date for cattle was $10.25 per cwt., paid for six cars of 1432-lb. Boone County (Mo.) steers, and also for a load of yearlings scaling 1003 lbs. to the head. Steers and heifers mixed topped for this class at $10. Other consignments of good-qualitied steers and yearlings sold from $9 to $9.85, with plainer natives graduating down to $6 or under. Texas steers ranged in price from $4.50 to $7.75, the latter figure going for a consignment of Brahmas. Butcher cows ranged in price from $3.75 to $7.25, with the majority moving from $4.50 to $5.75. Cutter cows sold largely at $3 to $3.75; canners, $2.50 to $2.75; beef bulls, $4.50 to $5, and bologna bulls, $4 to $5. Stocker and feeder business fell off somewhat, uncertain shipping conditions proving a disturbing factor to the trade. The range in steers for feedlots was from $4 to $7.20. Veal calves advanced sharply early in the week, but the market reacted downward at the close, the practical top Friday dropping to $9.50, $1 under the week's high time, but still 75c over the close the previous week.

Hogs Rise, React.

Hog receipts for the week just closed show the fair total of 57,100 head compared with 44,200 previous week and 43,100 same time last year. The run has shown a right good proportion of finished hogs and a meager offering of pigs. Market was under a nervous tension from day to day on account of the rail strike. Fear of a scarcity of supplies put buyers on their mettle the forepart of the week and up to Wednesday trade was in good shape, the top that day being $11.20, the highest price paid locally sinch March 10. Receipts continued liberal and the demand slackened after Wednesday, however, and from then on declines were general. Late Friday the top was down to $10.80 for choice hogs with heavy grades very draggy at 25c to 50c decline from the week's high level. Buyers have been partial to light-weight swine and pigs all week and apparently had little use for the fat heavy classes. This is not an unsual condition for the midsummer when the public demand is running light for fat pork and lard.

For the week the general market on medium and light hogs closes 25@35c lower and on heavies 35@50c off.

Pigs Unchanged.

At the finish best light-weight butcher and shipping hogs cleared at $10.65@10.90, medium weights $10.50@10.70, heavies $10.25@10.50, pigs $10@$10.65, rough packer sows $8.25@8.35, stags $7@7.50.

Comparative hog tops:

Day	This week.	Previous week.	Year ago.

Tuesday	11.10	Holiday	11.10
Wednesday	11.20	11.00	10.00

Friday	11.00	11.05	11.00
Saturday	10.90	11.10	10.85

Sheep Prices Unchanged.

A fair supply of sheep and lambs arrived each day, total being around 25,000 head for the week, or about 1000 more than was received the previous week. By far the greater portion of the offerings was lambs, with quality uneven. The week opened with prices of lambs on a lower basis; about 50c was lost the first two days. This was later regained so that the market for the week closed on much the same basis as the close of the previous week. No change was noted at any time during the week on sheep with the exception of breeding ewes, which were fully 50c higher the latter part of the week. Buyers sorted the lambs closely the fore part of the week, but were not so hard to please later when prices were advancing. Tuesday was the low day and best lambs sold then at $12.75@13; packers paying only $12.75 for choice lambs and but few went above that figure. At the close of the week best lambs sold principally at $13@13.25; fair grades, $12@12.75; culls mainly at $5.50@6.50; mutton sheep of handy weight, $6@6.50; heavy ewes, $3@4; breeding ewes, $7.50@8.50; stockers around $5; choppers, $2@3; canners, 50c, and bucks $2@2.50.

Another light run of horses and mules arrived during the week and there was no essential change in the markets. The offering comprised about 150 horses on commission and slightly better than 200 mules. Most of the horses sold at auction and demand was principally for good, heavy, rugged work stock. Thin, aged horses in any class sold poorly.

The preference for mules was shown extra good kinds, 1350 lbs. and over, with bone and quality. A few good miners, 14 to 15 hands, sold fairly well and there was also some outlet for attractive pitters 1200 to 1300 lbs. The mine strike has proved a restricting factor to the miner and pitter trade, although buying has not completely stopped.

Two range horse sales are scheduled for this week, one Tuesday and the other Thursdays. These are the first of the season.

WEEK-END MARKET IN WHEAT AN UNINTERESTING AFFAIR

CHICAGO, July 15.—Possibilities of transportation of wheat being curtailed as a result of strikes were effective in bringing about upturns the past week. Reports that rural loading of wheat had been checked by coal shortage and by other consequences of labor unrest were quickly exploited by bullish traders in the wheat market, and were soon seen to act as more than a counterbalance for the opposing influence of the German situation. Some railroad embargoes on shipments of livestock and perishable commodities gave special point to talk about likelihood of contracts for wheat deliverable here becoming difficult to fill. The Government crop report and wet weather hindrance to threshing put bears at a further disadvantage.

Supposed indications at one time that a settlement of the railroad strike was near had an immediate but transient reflection in a decline of wheat values. Temporary renewal of disquiet about black rust led to price upturns which failed to hold well, notwithstanding they were accompanied by considerable export business and by reported signs of enlarged demand from domestic millers.

Corn and oats were weakened in price as a consequence chiefly of the breaking or prolonged drouth in Northern Illinois.

CHICAGO, July 15.—It was a decidedly uninteresting week-end market in wheat. Even prices failed to show any change to speak of. A little support was given the market at the start because of the higher cables, the more serious developments in the rail strike and black rust reports from North Dakota. The locals were not inclined to do much trading and pressure from hedgers while not large was of sufficient volume to check any upturn. The milling demand for cash wheat was fair and Kansas City reported some wheat worked for export via the Gulf at 1c better prices than yesterday. Country offerings to arrive were of fair volume. Sales of 100,000 bushels of wheat were made to go to store. Market rallied toward the last on short covering. The close was unchanged to ½c higher; July, $1.15⅝; September, $1.14 @1.14¼; December, $1.16¼ to $1.16⅛.

Corn prices moved within a narrow range. There was a little scattered buying in evidence and week-end profit-taking by longs supplied buyers. Crop is still in excellent condition, but dryness is complained of in parts of Minnesota and South Dakota. Demand for cash corn was not so good as of late, while offerings to arrive were moderate, although there was much corn offered at ¾c above the present market. Corn closed unchanged to ¼c lower; July, 62¾c; September., 64⅞@65c; December, 63⅛c.

Oats held steady. There was little pressure on the market. Commission houses bought September and sold December. Cash demand was fair. Market closed ⅛c to ½c up; July, 34⅞c; September, 37⅛c; December, 40¼c.

Grain futures closed slightly higher on the Merchants' Exchange at the week-end session. The higher cable, rail strike situation and black rust report of North Dakota contributed to induce short covering in an uninteresting market.

In the local cash grain market Saturday there was an improved milling demand for soft red wheat of all grades. Elevator interests bought moderately, principally No. 3 and No. 4 red wheat. Some heavy garlicky of No. 3 and No. 4 grade was taken for export. Prices were steady to firm at Friday's late levels. About 100 cars were on the market, with a good clearance. Hard wheat was scarce. New Illinois No. 2 hard was taken at $1.15 to $1.18, 1c higher on the best milling type, but yellow and mixed descriptions were cheaper. Kansas No. 2 hard 12½ per cent protein was offered to arrive at $1.33 here, next week's shipment. There was no spot offerings of either Kansas or Nebraska wheat.

The demand for yellow corn for industrial uses continued active and the limited offerings were quickly taken. The market was firm to 2c higher. White and mixed, while not as strong as yellow, were taken at steady to ½c higher prices. There was good local demand for oats and the market was steady to ½c higher.

Wheat futures opened higher and with corn ruled better in the fore part of the day, but then showed a tendency to ease. Liverpool opened unchanged and closed ½d higher. There was evening up over Sunday. July wheat opened at $1.11¼. September wheat, $1.11⅝@1.11¼; December wheat, $1.14½; July corn, 63⅝c; September corn, 64½@64⅝c, and December corn, 62c.

The three Northwestern markets combined today had 324 cars of wheat, compared with 336 a week ago and 330 last year, Minneapolis today receiving 109 cars, Duluth 45, Winnipeg 170.

Local wheat receipts, which were 163,981 bushels, compared with 190,800 a week ago and 470,987 last year, included 106 cars local and 22 through. Corn receipts, which were 83,200 bushels, compared with 54,600 a week ago and 42,900 last year, included 38 cars local and 26 through. Oats receipts, which were 80,000 bushels, compared with 62,000 a week ago and 40,000 last year, included 28 cars local and 12 through. Hay receipts were 148 tons local and 84 through.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators today were 481,219 bushels of wheat, 339,330 bushels of corn, 191,152 bushels of oats. Grain stocks compared 86,311 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat, 12,573 bushels of No. 1 hard winter, 5939 bushels No. 2 hard winter, 110,821 bushels of No. 2 corn, 76,388 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn, 82,463 bushels of No. 2 white corn, 3658 bushels of No. 2 oats, 59,664 bushels of No. 2 white oats, 88,197 bushels of No. 3 white oats, 3100 bushels of No. 2 rye, 1410 bushels of Barley, 2770 bushels of kaffir corn.

COTTON STEADY AT CLOSE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 15.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 9 points to an advance of 2 points and firmed up right after the call on covering by some of yesterday's sellers who were disappointed that the weather map did not confirm private reports of good rains in Texas. October sold up to 22.60c and December to 22.45c, or 12 to 14 points net higher. The demand, however, was not active while there was further scattered Southern selling and the initial advances were followed by rather irregular fluctuations. If anything domestic labor news was regarded as somewhat more favorable and there was also some bullish comment on reports of a firm goods situation, which may have contributed to the early advance.

Private reports of showers or rain in Central Texas led to renewed liquidation during the middle of the morning. While October sold off from 22.60@22.32c or [illegible] points net lower. That delivery closed at 22.46c on covering with the general market closing very steady, net unchanged to 4 points lower.

Rivalry of Strausses, Father and Son, May Have Inspired "Sari"

By Richard L. Stokes.

THE MUNICIPAL THEATER ASSOCIATION'S production this week, beginning Tuesday evening, of "The Queen's Lace Handkerchief," by Johann Strauss, occasions an interesting theory. It is that the story of Pali and Laczi Racz, in "Sari," may have been inspired by a similar rivalry between Strauss and his father, Johann Strauss I, founder of the Strauss dynasty of waltz-kings. Their singular history was familiar in Vienna; and it was in the Austrian capital that Julius Wilhelm and Max Gruenbaum indited the libretto of Emmerich's operetta.

Like Pali Racz, Johann Strauss pere was, among musicians, what Hanslick termed a "naturalist." The son of the innkeeper, he was mostly self-taught, and held in derision the science of the schools. As in the case of Laczi Racz, Johann Strauss fils was a trained musician, skilled in the principles of harmony and counterpoint. The contention between sire and son came to a public crisis, different from that in "Sari," but none the less dramatic. And there was a woman to embitter the feud—not a sweethearting Juliska Fekete, but the wife and mother of the hostile composers.

From earliest childhood, Johann the younger "was possessed by the devil of music," to quote his biographer, Ludwig Eisenberg ("Johann Strauss; ein Lebensbild"). He hid under the bed or in a cupboard while his father played or composed or rehearsed his orchestra. With tiny fingers, the urchin picked out notes on piano and violin. At the age of six he composed a waltz, which his doting mother wrote down, and which later was published under the title of "Der erste Gedanke."

Thrashed by His Father.

THERE is scarcely another instance of a father, himself an artist, who strove with such bitter pertinacity to destroy his son's genius. "You do not know," said the elder Strauss, "how heavy a livelihood my profession is; it takes only the failure of two or three compositions for everyone to say: 'It's all over with Strauss.' Rather than see you a musician, I'd put you in the white coat." This meant the Austrian army—in those days a threat of disgrace. Strauss entered his son in a commercial college, to study bookkeeping and accounting, with the purpose of turning him into a bank clerk.

But Frau Strauss, behind her husband's back, saw to it that Johann and his brother Josef became accomplished pianists. In utmost secrecy, by means of rigorous sacrifices, she employed as their instructor the concertmaster of the father's orchestra. The one thought of this worthy old fiddler was that some day Johann might also stand, violin in hand, at the head of his own band, like his father.

One day Johann posed before a large mirror, and with elegant flourishes of violin and bow directed an imaginary orchestra. Upon this scene entered his father. Henry IV was not more incensed when he surprised Prince Hal in the act of trying on the royal crown. A sound caning was the lot of the heir-apparent to the throne of three-four rhythm.

Dismissed From School.

JOHANN'S attendance at business college was quickly curtailed. During a recitation he so far forgot himself as to sing a melody aloud. The professors met in solemn conclave, and dismissed the lad from the institution for this sacrilege against commerce. A thunderstorm descended upon his head at home; but old Johann, not to be defeated, engaged a private tutor to train his son in the mysteries of banking.

To rescue her gifted child from this doom, Frau Strauss did not hesitate to take the step of obtaining a legal separation from her husband, and a decree of the courts awarded to her the custody of the children. Now were the chains broken. Johann took a course of nearly 10 years under masters of the piano, violin and composition. In the last subject his instructor was the learned Josef Drechsler, who, when his pupil left him, growled: "Na, go ahead and write waltzes, like your father. You didn't need counterpoint for that."

Upon the elder Strauss, who had lived for years apart from his family, came like a bolt from the blue an announcement that his 18-year-old son had applied to the magistracy for leave to assemble and direct an orchestra. Against this petition the enraged old composer fought "with hands and feet." He averred that he would rather die than permit his son's debut. "Schani has no talent!" he shouted to a crony; and we seem to hear Pali snarling at his son: "You are not an artist!"

The Son's Public Triumph.

NEVERTHELESS, the debut took place, under circumstances turning it into one of the liveliest events in Vienna's musical annals. The relations between the waltz-king and the pretender to his scepter were notorious; so on Oct. 15, 1844, all the city flocked to the Dommayer, a garden cafe in the suburb of Hietzing. The elder Strauss did not attend, but sent a claque, headed by his publisher, to hiss the upstart. The boyish director-composer won an historic success. His waltz,

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

DAVID POWELL is known as the "international commuter," in recognition of his numerous trips from this country to Europe and back again to take part in various pictures. In the past few years he has been in Spain, France, Italy and England, and at intervals has returned to the United States. After completing a picture recently on the Coast he came back to New York to appear with Alice Brady in a "Boston Blackie" story.

A $50,000 insurance policy was taken out just for 24 hours to cover a set in "Her Man." The set represented an elaborate boudoir of Louis XV design, in which were antiques valued at a real fortune. The antiques had been rented, and the picture company was responsible for their safe return. So to protect itself, the company wisely decided to insure the costly furniture against any unfortunate contingency.

Marie Prevost, whose movie contract recently expired, is seriously contemplating offers to appear on the speaking stage.

"The Bat," which has been a phenomenal success on the speaking stage, is about to be filmed.

Betty Compson and Tom Moore are the stars in "Over the Border," this week's principal picture offering at the Missouri. The scenes are laid in the "frozen North," which has been the favored locale in so many successful dramas of adventure and action. The picture was adapted from Sir Gilbert Parker's short story, "She of the Triple Chevron." The story is about the love of Sergt. Flaherty of the Royal Mounted Police for Jen, the daughter of a bootlegging tavern keeper. The hero, quite naturally comes to the point where he stands between love and duty. The unfolding of the action is said to afford to Miss Compson an unusual opportunity to exhibit her talents as an emotional actress. On the program also are an "Inkwell" comedy and several vocal numbers.

"Reported Missing," billed as a remarkable action picture, is featured at the New Grand Central, Lyric Skydome and West End Lyric theaters, in conjunction with a new Larry Semon comedy, "A Pair of Kings." The feature is a melodramatic farce written and directed by Henry Lehman, a pupil of D. W. Griffith.

The cast includes Pauline Garon, who supported Dick Barthelmess in "Sonny"; Nita Naldi, the vampire; Owen Moore, well-known star, and a comedian who is destined to win much favor, Tom Wilson. Wilson is not a newcomer, having supported Charles Chaplin and Douglas Fairbanks in many pictures. In this instance his characterization is that of a negro body servant. Wilson supplies much of the fun, although the farcical situations Lehrman has constructed are said to be the real foundation for the picture's laughs.

The story is written around the plans of a group of men to swindle young Richard Boyd out of his shipping interests. As the plot thickens Boyd begins to wake up and before the story ends he is a dynamo of action.

Pauline Frederick in "The Glory of Clementina" will be the attraction at the Lyric Skydome and West End Lyric the last three days of the week, beginning Wednesday.

James Brewster, native of Banff, Canada, who has the reputation of killing more bears in the Canadian Northwest than any other man, was secured by Frank Borzage, director for Cosmopolitan, to assist in filming "The Valley of Silent Men." Brewster has an encyclopedia knowledge of outdoor subjects. He is an Englishman and has devoted his life to intensive study of Northwestern Canada.

Lew Cody, who has just returned from the Canadian Northwest, where he has been working in "The Valley of Silent Men," says his idea of a good time is to be a Royal Mounted Policeman in Canada. "The boys certainly enjoy life," says Cody. "They doll up in their bright red jackets, Sam Brown belts, blue trousers with yellow stripes, and then when the New York debutantes flock up there in the summer time, the boys, handsome as collar ads, simply "knock 'em dead."

Coming—Comedy by Bernhardt's Son-in-Law

NEW YORK, July 15.

A FRENCH comedy, "Pour Avoir Adrienne," by Louis Verneuil, a son-in-law of Sarah Bernhardt, is included in the list of imported plays which Brock Pemberton announces for next fall and early winter. Verneuil, who is an actor, appeared in the original French company, and also in the London run of the piece. Noel Coward has made an adaptation for use in this country.

Lord Dusany's "If," his first full-length play, is also on Pemberton's schedule. It was produced in June of last year at the Ambassador's Theater, in London.

"Miss Lulu Bett" is soon to have a London production. "Enter, Madame" is to be seen in Berlin, with Lina Abarbanell as star, and the same play is to be given in Warsaw with Halina Bruzovna in the Gilda Varesi role. Mme. Bruzovna is the wife of Eddy Brown, the violinist. "Enter, Madame" is also being filmed, with Clara Kimball Young in the leading part.

The plays which continue to hold the stage in New York this summer are as follows: "Morn to Midnight," at the Frazee Theater; "Ziegfeld Follies," New Amsterdam; "Abie's Irish Rose," Republic; "Kempy," Belmont; "Sue, Dear," Times Square; "Part-

The most wonderful thing about it is the fact that while it turns the dullest, most lifeless complexion to radiant beauty and makes red or rough hands or arms snowy white, yet there is not the slightest sign of its use. It actually vanishes from sight and the most heated atmosphere will not produce the least shininess or greasiness of the skin.

No matter whether you are troubled with a poor complexion, wrinkles, puffiness around the eyes, freckles, crows' feet or lines around the mouth, ugly finger nails, or just a simple roughness of the face, hands or arms caused by wind or sun, you will find that any or all of these troubles will quickly disappear with the use of Howard's Buttermilk Cream. If you cannot obtain locally send 10 cents (silver or stamps) for generous trial package of both Cream and Soap. Howard Bros. Co., Buffalo, N. Y. All druggists.

FOR A CONSTIPATED CHILD

MOTHER, when one of the children is constipated are you going to give the first laxative within reach? It is dangerous to do so. Some have been known to rupture the intestines of little children. Don't be beguiled by the outside sugary appearance. Look into the formula. Calomel is seldom necessary; salts, minerals, coal tar, never!

Unlike these, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is admirable for children, as it is for grown people, too. Mothers have been giving it to children for 30 years. They know it does not gripe, and is free from narcotics. The formula is on every package, and you can see it is vegetable, just a combination of Egyptian Senna and other laxative herbs with pepsin. Use it yourself and you will find it is not necessary to take it every day, nor to increase the dose, and that it is pleasant to the taste. Bottles can be had at all drug stores, and the cost is only about a cent a dose. Have no hesitancy giving it to a baby in arms. It is absolutely safe.

Half-Ounce Bottle Free

Few escape constipation, so even if you do not require a laxative at this moment let me send you a Half-ounce Trial Bottle of my Syrup Pepsin FREE OF CHARGE so that you will have it handy when needed. Simply send your name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 514 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Write me today.

PILES CURED

WITHOUT OPERATION
By Dr. Henrich's Method
TO STAY CURED

No Cutting. No Pain. No Chloroform. No Hospital. No Danger. No Loss of Time. Consultation and Examination Free—Tell Your Friends.

There is nothing that so completely unfits a man for business, a woman for looking after her household and social duties, and both for the usual pleasure of everyday life, as this annoying disease. There is no cure as safe, sound and reliable, and yet so very simple and painless as mine.

Hundreds and hundreds freely testify through the press, etc., to my marvelous success, solely because they desire to do a kindness for others who are afflicted as they were, and who are seeking a cure and relief through the use of various kinds of so-called cures or their family physician. Being cured, they realize how much it would have been to their advantage had they come long before they did, because they were soon cured, altho some of them had suffered so long as forty-odd years, during which time they had constantly suffered and spent many times as much money as it would have cost them had they come to me and been cured years before they did. Think of the suffering they would have spared themselves, and business and pleasure advantages they would have enjoyed.

INVESTIGATE, THEN ACT.

Don't take my statements alone in this matter, but investigate my work by inquiring of my former patients and learning from them whether or not my statements are based on actual and substantial results. If they say I do not accomplish what I claim to do, don't come to me; if they say I do, it will pay you to do as they did—Come and Be Cured for life.

Dear Sir—I am writing to say that after taking your treatment for Piles I am entirely cured.

I suffered with Bleeding and Protruding Piles for over ten years, and after trying every advertised remedy, I came to St. Louis and was cured by your treatment over a year ago.

I suffered very little pain from your treatment; I was on my feet every day while in St. Louis buying goods for my store in Texas.

I cannot recommend your treatment too highly; my general health has improved and I have gained 15 pounds in weight.

I want to thank you for all you did for me. You can refer anyone you wish to me and I will be only too glad to tell them of the benefits I received.

Yours sincerely, F. C. ROCKWELL.

RIVALRY OF THE STRAUSSES MAY HAVE INSPIRED "SARI"

"Gunstwerber," was encored four times; his polka, "Herzenslust," was repeated three times; and another waltz, "Sinngedichte," was encored eight times. Then the entire program was repeated. Even the partisans of the dethroned King joined in the demonstration. In conclusion—whether out of filial reverence or the intolerable condescension of a conqueror—the new monarch of the dance played his father's "Lorelei-Rhein-Klaenge."

The stricken old composer made one crafty effort to retrieve the debacle. He sent a message to his son, suggesting that bygones be forgotten, and that they unite their orchestras, with himself as director and Johann as concert master. The youth coldly declined. The father did not break his violin, like Pali Racz; but he fled from Vienna and for many years traveled in foreign countries. So far as the biography discloses, there was never a reconciliation; at the death of the elder Strauss the son absorbed the former's orchestra into his own.

He Invades the Theater.

IT was at the instance of his first wife that Johann II invaded the stage, and overthrew the European domination of operetta which had been held by France, through Offenbach. A similar revolt, some years later, occurred in England, under William Schwenck Gilbert and Arthur Seymour Sullivan. Strauss' first comic opera, "Koenigin Indigo," won a continental furore, despite an imbecile libretto; there followed "Karneval in Rom," a new triumph; "Die Fledermaus," not only the greatest work of Strauss, but the best of all German operettas; "Cagliostro in Wien;" Prinz Methusalem;" "Die Blindekuh," a downright failure, and then another resounding success, "Das Spitzentuch der Koenigin."

Strauss came upon this admirable libretto by accident. It was written for Franz von Suppe by Heinrich Bohrmann, director of comic opera and the theater at Pressburg, and author of an effective drama, "Verlorene Ehre." Von Suppe decided upon another libretto, and Bohrmann, by the advice of a friend, submitted his to Strauss.

The story is based upon an episode, said to be apochryphal, in the biography of Miguel de Cervantes Saavedra, author of "Don Quixote." The legend is that, about 1580, the famous Spanish novelist and soldier entered the service of Portugal, and that a noble Portuguese lady fell in love with him. The librettist takes the liberty of supposing "Don Quixote" to have already been written, although the first part was not published until 1605. Richard Genee, librettist of "Die Fledermaus" and other Strauss operettas, was called in, and his name appears on the title page of "The Queen's Lace Handkerchief" as a collaborator with Bohrmann.

Story of the Opera.

A SYNOPSIS of the plot, based upon one prepared by Bohrmann himself, is as follows:

Through the influence of the Prime Minister and Regent of Portugal, as well as of the tutor, Don Sancho, the youthful King is kept aloof from the business of reigning and estranged from his Queen, who sees through the ambitious Premier and labors to bring about a declaration of the King's majority. The monarch is absorbed in light love adventures and in luxurious pleasures of the table.

The Prime Minister has a young wife, and at the beginning of the opera the King is dining with her, while the apprehensive Sancho keeps watch. Cervantes, reader to the Queen and active in her interests, being already famous as a poet, makes use of the incident to assemble his devoted band of students, who sing a mocking serenade to the Premier and arouse his jealousy. At the same time, Cervantes enables the King to escape. The Premier breathes revenge, particularly against Cervantes.

Appears as English Ambassador.

IN the second act, the students disguise themselves as Doctors of Salamanca and try Cervantes, whom they promptly set free. The Cortes assembles, and Cervantes attends, masquerading as an English Ambassador. He loses the Queen's handkerchief, and the Premier gets possession of it. The King reads a decree, written by the Queen, putting an end to the regency; but the Premier produces the kerchief, with its sentence in the same handwriting as that of the decree. The King believes the words were addressed to Cervantes, and banishes both him and the Queen.

The Queen, in the third act, has taken refuge in a cloister, and nearby Cervantes, disguised as an innkeeper, opens a hostelry. He informs the Queen that the King—who has sunk into melancholy and turned affairs over wholly to the Regent—is expected to hunt in the neighborhood. The Queen dresses as a waitress and serves the King with a truffle-pie, such as she made for him on their wedding night, and in honor of which he sang a couplet in the first act. He recognizes the Queen; she explains that the legend on the kerchief was meant for him and not Cervantes; there is a reconciliation, and the Regent is deposed.

DR. W. O. COFFEE

Relieving Deafness, Head Noises, Catarrh With New Treatment Wednesday and Thursday.

D. W. O. Coffee, the noted specialist, says that catarrh is a constitutional condition, must be treated through the system as well as the nose, head and throat. He says 90% of the cases of deafness, head noises and ulcers of the ears are caused from catarrh. If the hearing is getting better and worse with each cold, or noises gradually getting worse, or one ear is getting real bad and the other just getting started with crackling or other noises, most cases can be helped or completely relieved by his new non-surgical treatment. He treats diseased tonsils, diseased turbinated bones. He treats 50 patients a day here and is making many wonderful cures. J. R. Meyer of East St. Louis, Ill., had catarrh, deafness and head noises 20 years; completely relieved. Mrs. Minnie Schierer, 3210 Pestalozzi st., almost totally deaf, suffered 48 years; hearing being rapidly restored. J. W. Proctor 3120 Whittier st., almost totally deaf in one ear 26 years; hearing restored almost normal. J. C. Patterson, Elmer, Mo., 86 years old, suffered with catarrh, deafness and head noises 8 years; completely relieved. If you suffer with deafness, head noises or catarrh of the nose, head, throat or system, he wants to examine and explain his new method of treatment to you free of charge. If you cannot come to St. Louis write him for his book on catarrh, deafness, head noises, eye diseases, cross-eyes. He will send it free. He says catarrh often causes stomach trouble, rheumatism, etc. He is in his St. Louis offices, room 409 Odd Fellows' Bldg., 816 Olive st., every Wednesday and Thursday. Hours, 8:30 to 4:30. He will make a special 20% discount on glasses fitted and all operations this month. Don't submit to an operation until you get his opinion.

"Peg O' My Heart" Operetta.

THERE are negotiations on for turning J. Hartley Manners' "Peg O' My Heart" into an operetta. If they succeed, Victor Herbert will provide the score. * * * "Sally" closed in Boston tonight, after a continuous run of 85 weeks, so that the players may have a summer vacation. It will resume its career next September at the Colonial Theater in Boston, with the same cast intact * * * "The Pin Wheel Revel" is laid up for repairs, and will reopen in about a week with extensive alterations and overhauling.

Frank Reicher, for many years connected with Theater Guild productions, has signed a long-time contract as director for the Selwyns. His first job will be the staging of "Harlequin," a fanciful French romantic play * * * Marie Tempest, the English actress, who is to play in this country next season, has arrived in New York after a tour of the world. She reports that she and her husband, Graham Browne, played three months steadily at Johannesburg, South Africa; and then, assembling a small troupe, went on a barnstorming tour of darkest Africa, penetrating as far as Victoria Falls. They also visited Zanzibar and Mombasa. On the voyage to India their 1800-ton ship was for three days in the grip of a typhoon.

Advices received here state that the American actor, James K. Hackett, now in London, has been invited to act Shakspearian roles in Greece, Spain, Ireland and the Netherlands. * * * Marjorie Rambeau, after all, will not make her next appearance in Bayard Veiller's "The Divine Crook," but in Henri Bataille's "The Wedding March." * * * In Atlantic City this week Grace La Rue and Hale Hamilton gave a try-out to a new comedy by Mrs. Christopher Wyatt, called "Monica." * * * Ina Claire, who has joined Charles Frohman, Inc., will star in "The Awful Truth," in which Ruth Chatterton played this summer in San Francisco.

THE COLUMBIA BILL

On the Columbia's schedule for the first half of the week are the Watkins-Jenkins Revue, described as a smart musical comedy production; Williams and Howard, comedians, in "A Sure Cure for the Blues;" the Miller sisters, in an offering of instrumental music, songs and dances; Walter Jones, conjurer and raconteur; and Howe and Reynolds. "Lights of the Desert," with Shirley Mason, is the film feature. "The Flaming Forest," second installment of a movie serial, "The Timber Queen," with Ruth Roland, will be shown all week.

On the bill beginning Thursday will be the Densmore sisters and Lou Howland in a musical playlet, "Our Future Home;" Jensen and Bell, St. Louis boys, in "Wildcatting;" Blaney and White, dancers, and John Hill, comedian. The film will be "The Face Between," with Bert Lytell.

The program at the Grand Opera House will be headed by Mme. Ellis, with exhibition of mental telepathy. There will be some eight other acts, including Sigsbee's dog show.

at Vienna, on Oct. 2, 1880. It was chosen as the work with which to christen the Casino Theater, in New York, on Oct. 21, 1882, and proved the forerunner of a long series of successful light operas given at that playhouse. The most recent presentation of the Strauss opus in St. Louis was at the old Exposition Hall, during the week of Dec. 10, 1900, by the Castle Square Opera Co.

Owing to a senseless tradition, the King of Portugal is usually played by a woman, and the present management has adhered to the convention by casting Miss Lorna Doone Jackson for the role. The Queen will be played by Miss Eva Fallon, and Miss Elsie Thiede is to appear as Donna Irene, a lady of the court in love with Cervantes—a part which falls to Arthur Geary. Jerome Daley will play the Prime Minister, Count Villaboisy Roderigues; and Frank Moulan will caper as the King's tutor, Don Sancho de Avellaneda. William J. McCarthy is cast as the Marquis de la Mancha Villareal, Minister of War; and George Sweet as the Duke of Feria, Minister of Finance.

The following parts are intrusted to members of the chorus: Marquise of Villareal, Miss Ollie Cameron; Count San Gregorio, Minister of the Interior, Theodore Holba; Count Ermos, Minister of the Navy, Maurice Chapman; Don Diego de Barados, Minister of Police; Joseph Bonnelli; a dancing master, Will Simmons; and Antonio, an innkeeper, Charles Fage. The name of Arthur Burckly, last week's acquisition to the cast, does not appear on the roster.

The concluding performance of "The Spring Maid" will occur tonight. The final week of the municipal opera season will begin on Tuesday eevning of next week with the first of six performances of "Miss Springmaid," a musical comedy by Emmerich Kalman, composer of "Sari."

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN THE MOVIE STUDIOS

baggage. She went to Europe with one trunk and returned with six.

"The Ninety and Nine," a hymn made famous by the evangelists Moody and Sanky, has furnished the subject for a new picture.

Larry Semon has made peace with the company for which he has been working and has dropped his suit for damages.

Frank Borzage, director for Cosmopolitan Productions, has again rung the bell in motion picture directing. His latest picture, "The Good Provider," has been selected by Photoplay Magazine as one of the six best pictures of the month. Cosmopolitan Productions received the Medal of Honor awarded by Photoplay for the best picture of 1920 for the production "Humoresque," which was directed by Frank Borzage. In reviewing "The Good Provider," this magazine says "Borzage is not a Griffith who plays upon your emotions until they shriek for mercy. He has a quieter touch. You know his people in the picture and you want to hear what they have to say, so the captions satisfy your curiosity. The acting is immense."

Startlingly original are the gowns worn by Marion Davies in her new Cosmopolitan picture, "The Young Diana." Perhaps the most alluring is the one in which she appears at a gorgeous ice carnival in Switzerland. This is of white brocaded velvet trimmed with swansdown and a hat of the latter material adorns her golden curls. Another dress is of pink chiffon trimmed with monkey fur. The arms are bare. Narrow bands of black monkey fur serve as bracelets on either wrist. Another dress is a combination of black velvet and silver cloth. A brilliant ice carnival, unlike anything that has yet been seen in motion pictures, will be featured in "The Young Diana." The action takes place at a very smart winter resort in Switzerland. The Young Diana is the heralded beauty of the hour. Not only is she fair to look upon, but she excels in all lines of sports. When she comes to skate at the rink, men and women, titled persons from every European capital, watch her with admiring eyes. In this set Joseph Urban, the designer, has caught the last word in glittering and gorgeous effect. With the snow-covered Alps as a background the skaters in gay array dip and circle and spin over the smooth ice. From a balcony women in rich sables, silver fox furs and chinchillas watch the gay scene. "The Young Diana" was adapted to the screen by Luther Reed, from the popular novel by Marie Corelli. It was directed by Robert G. Vignola and Albert Capellani.

Myrtle Stedman is the latest addition to the all-star cast of Louis B. Mayer's "The Dangerous Age." Her latest engagement was with Clara Kimball Young.

"Money, Money, Money" is going to be made known to a large percentage of the population of this country if the author, Larry Evans, has anything to say about it. First of all, "Money, Money, Money" is the only story this novelist ever penned directly for the screen, and when it was finished B. P. Schulberg, president of the Preferred Pictures, the corporation that produces the Associated First National attractions in which Katherine MacDonald is starred, bought it because of the possibilities the chief role offered to Miss MacDonald, quite aside from the fact that it is a story that is altogether out of the ordinary as regards the matter of plot. No sooner was the story procured by Mr. Schulberg than it occurred to Author Evans that "Money, Money, Money" would make a splendid stage play, and he offered the rights to a Broadway manager who immediately discerned their value and snapped them up for production next season. Of course, a Larry Evans story never is overlooked by a magazine editor, hence "Money, Money, Money" will be printed in one of the country's most widely read monthlies simultaneously with its presentation in the motion picture theaters.

Gangway, please! Stages to the right of them, stages to the left of them, and still not enough for the superproduction which is to be Norma Talmadge's next picture, "The Voice From the Minaret," by Robert Hitchens. Three stages alone will be utilized for the sets representing Bombay, Damascus and London. A spired mosque, such as can be seen anywhere beyond the threshold of the Straits of Gibraltar or across the Suez Canal, in architecture reminiscent of Moor and Turk, will be the extraordinary Damascus set. A notorious and polyglot club in Bombay will show a scene of Oriental grandeur, while London will be represented by the reproduction of a ducal estate. Altogether, the picture will have sets to rival any of those built by Joseph M. Schenck for a Norma Talmadge production. Frank Lloyd will direct with Eugene O'Brien and Edwin Stevens as members of the supporting cast.

Norma Talmadge, who is announced to screen "East Is West," will be seen then in the second "Chinese girl" role she has played. In Selznick's "The Forbidden City" she played a similar role.

"RADIO FUTURE BOUNDLESS," MARCONI SAYS IN ARTICLE DISCUSSING POSSIBILITIES

Any Number of Persons May Hear Congress' Action; Broadcasting Stations May Be Founded;; and Whole Nation May "Read" Book at Once.

By Senator Guglielmo Marconi.

The possible developments of radio in the future group themselves naturally into those concerned with radiotelegraphy and those concerned with radiotelephony. Although the latter is by far the newer of these two practical applications of electric waves, I propose to devote this short article to it, my reason being that, within the last 18 months or so its use for a certain purpose has begun to foreshadow pretty nearly everything else connected with radio.

In fact, the introduction of "broadcasting" by means of radiotelephony amounts almost to a new factor in the daily life of humanity, a factor presenting endless possibilities.

It is difficult to estimate the enormous influences that broadcasting is going to exercise on humanity in a hundred directions, some of which are already plainly visible, while others are beginning to be clearly indicated. For the first time in the history of the world man is now able to appeal by means of direct speech to a million of his fellows simultaneously, and there is nothing to prevent an appeal being made to 50,000,000 of men and women at the same time.

Until now it has rarely been possible to speak to more than 5000 or 6000 persons packed into some huge hall. At places like the Albert Hall, in London, politicians and singers have often spoken or sung to audiences of 12,000 or 15,000. At the jubilee of Pope Leo XIII in Rome, in 1903, the Pontiff's benediction was more or less clearly heard throughout St. Peter's in which some 50,000 persons were massed. The limits of the carrying power of the human voice, unaided, are, however, pretty sharply defined.

But now, it is possible to speak to an audience of a million, or five millions, or twenty milloins, if need be, and every unit of that audience may be comfortably seated in his home, or at sea in a ship, or in a train, or flying in an aeroplane above the earth and separated from the speaker by distances of tens or hundreds of miles, distances which may soon be increased to thousands of miles and which may span whole oceans or continents. So far as the human voice is concerned, radiotelephony is making distance every day more negligible.

Will Help Capture of Criminals.

It is still more difficult to make predictions as to the directions in which broadcasting is going to develop, for even the most daring prophecies will probably fall far short of the possibilities, given a highly-perfected system of broadcasting with sharply-tuned stations, cheap and highly-sensitive receivers and perfect and efficient loud-speakers.

The day may come when the voice of the President of the United States may be as much of a living daily reality to a hunter in his shack in the Rocky Mountains, or a sailor in the middle of the Pacific, as it is now to the President's intimate circle. The day may come, the day may almost be said to have come, when the speeches of candidates for the presidency, the Senate or Congress, will be heard by millions of their supporters simultaneously, or when the debates of the Senate and of Congress may be listened to at will by the whole nation. The day may come when the "voice of the Government" will no longer be a figure of speech, but a literal truth.

The day may come when, after a warning voice has cleared the ether, at stated times, of all unimportant chatter, the great ones of humanity, scientists, statesmen, divines, artists, authors, will lecture from some great Central University to classes of 20,000,000 students scattered over 3,000,000 square miles of territory.

The day may come when the personal appearance of any criminal or fugitive from justice may instantly become known to a hundred million persons in the United States, so that wherever he stays his foot, some one may point him out.

The day may come when it will be as easy and natural to turn on dance music, or grand opera, in some little isolated house, 50 miles from any theater or place of amusement as it is now to sit and listen to the town band.

All these things are not only within the range of possibility but very much within the range of probability by means of radiotelephony.

Endowed Broadcasting Stations.

In addition to the possible future developments in radiotelephony and its use, some consideration of its non-technical problems may prove of interest. It is evident that the broadcasting situation at present is a peculiar one, unparalleled in any other industry.

There are today probably 600,000 or 700,000 receivinig stations in the United States and, at the rate the demand is increasing, it looks as if before many years have gone by there will be five or six millions, so that we shall hace from 15 to 20 millions of persons within range of radiophone communication.

All these people will be dependent for their amusement and news, through the receiving stations they will have purchased, on a few broadcasting stations, probably fewer than a hundred or so.

At present, none of these persons has anything to say regarding the policy of, or the matter broadcasted by, these broadcasting stations, but it seems probable that this may be changed in the future through some as yet unforeseen alternation or through some special method of organization.

Since a broadcasting station can be made such an enormously powerful instrument for the amusement and the instruction of the people, why should not public-spirited citizens found and endow public broadcasting stations?

Public Stations.

Museums, libraries, picture galleries, universities, etc., have been founded and endowed for the benefit, educational or recreational, of the public, so why should not broadcasting stations be founded and endowed with the same object in view? A lecturer at a big broadcasting station in New York, say, might be able eventually to reach 300,000 or 400,000 persons in an evening, whereas on a lecture platform it might take him several months to reach the same number of persons.

To go still further, why should not municipalities, or even Governments, endow broadcasting stations?

Many cities spend money on free courses of lectures and on city orchestras which do not reach more than a few hundreds at a time, whereas from a broadcasting center they might reach tens of thousands.

Why, therefore, should we not some day see a millionaire endowing a broadcasting chair of English literature or of geography at a municipal or Government-endowed broadcasting station?

I firmly believe that there are many probabilities in favor of the development of broadcasting in some of the directions I have indicated.

Another interesting problem is related to the matter that will be broadcasted in the future. This already includes music, instrumental and vocal, of all kinds, lectures, sermons, church services, and stories for children. It is in this latter item that it seems to me there is the germ of a new idea.

"Reading" a Novel by Radio.

The development that has taken place in which is presented to the public by moving pictures is certainly within the memory of most of us. Twenty years ago or so the idea that the queer antics that were seen on the screen, in which a few people indulged in an acrobatic chase over all kinds of obstacles or through all kinds of mishaps, would ever evolve into almost a new art-form, would have seemed absurd.

If anyone had prophesied then that, in years to come, millions of persons would sit for two hours or more watching with keen interest some tense drama in which not a word would be spoken, such a prophecy would have been laughed at! And yet that is just what happened.

I am inclined to believe that the broadcasting of fairy tales to children, which is about as far as we have got now, is presently going to evolve along somewhat similar lines. Soon we shall have short stories adapted from the magazines and in a form suitable for broadcasting to grown-ups as well as to children; then original stories will be written for broadcasting, just as original scenarios are written for the screen now, the appeal being to the ear only, instead of to the eye, as in the cinema, or to the eye and ear, as in the theater.

This may be followed by the adaptation or the writing of long novels or serials for broadcasting, and eventually we may arrive at another art-form which shall stir the emotions by the spoken word through the ear, as the cinema does through the eye.

The author of the near future may be as keen about safeguarding his broadcasting rights as he is now about his cinema rights, although probably new legislation will be necessary.

Next Sunday Senator Marconi discusses technical questions on the radio.

IRRIGATION PROJECT CONTROLLED BY RADIO

Invention Used in Directing Watering of 200,000 Reclaimed Acres in Arizona.

Radio control of an irrigation project comprising some 200,000 acres of reclaimed land in Arizona is the latest use to which overworked radio has been put by the Government. The Salt River Valley Water Users' Association, which is a local agency controlling the Salt River irrigation project for the Interior Department, has installed and equipped a radio house at the source of the Verde River, their natural water supply. There is no railroad or means of communication between Phoenix, Ariz., and the upper reaches of the river, where sudden storms cause the ordinarily low water to rise with great rapidity, frequently flooding the ranches and farms below and causing enormous damage.

Believing that a radio service would provide timely warning, the operators of the project have taken up this latest means of quick and direct communiction, and have received the approval of Secretary Fall of the Interior Department. Gauges are placed in the upper Verde and also at Cave Creek, so that any appreciable rise can be noted and broadcast from the station to the manager's office in Phoenix and to all ranch owners who listen in.

Phone to Control Inlet.

There is also another phase of usefulness in the new radio station. When the Verde, which flows into the Salt River near Phoenix, is supplying plenty of water, only a little is used from the reservoir back of the big Roosevelt dam, and in the future the inlet from the reservoir will be controlled by telephone messages from Phoenix, based on reports from the radio station as to the state of the water in the Verde. When the storage water is not needed, or the radio station advises the operator at Phoenix that rain is falling in the Verde basin, the inlet to the system from the Roosevelt dam will be closed and nature will take care of the irrigation; but when the Verde is low, the inlet at the dam will be opened by telephone orders from Phoenix. This control will conserve much of the storage supply for emergencies.

Some estimate of the project and its value may be gained when it is known that in this territory, practically all built up since 1900, crops are gathered from 196,350 acres annually out of a total acreage of 205,060, and that the crops in 1920 were valued at $18,551,800. The land included in the Salt River project comprises 4200 farms, with a population of 31,600, and includes 14 towns, with 57 schools, 62 churches and 20 banks. During the past two decades the section has been transformed from an arid territory into a high state of cultivation. Its banks have gained $22,927,767 in deposits since 1920.

In the past there have been some bad years, when the water was short, but with the new radio control and communication it is believed that the water can be so conserved as to insure a steady and lasting supply.

Radio Mine Equipment Considered.

Another branch of the Interior Department, the Bureau of Mines, is seriously considering the problem of equipping mines with radio apparatus for use in the event of a cave-in or other accident. The stringing of telephone wires is impossible, but officials state that it would be fairly simple to equip certain distant rooms or chambers with crystal receiving sets so that rescue parties could communicate with imprisoned miners.

The real problem, they say, is to find a simple and portable transmitting set by which the miners could communicate with the mouth of the mine or the outside world in the event of being injured in or imprisoned after an accident.

There is no room for a large transmitting set, they point out, and the danger of a transmitting spark igniting gases or coal dust complicates the problem, although a tube set might be used if the necessary power could be supplied for its operation without lengthy power wires, which would be in danger of being cut constantly, just as telephone lines would be cut or broken by the mining operations. Mining engineers are studying the problem, and it is very likely that a means of efficient operation will be found before long.

Another scheme which is appealing to the safety branch of the bureau is the installation of a broadcasting set at each mine to advise safety squads and first-aid men of an accident so that they could start for the scene immediately with their equipment. This is a simpler problem, the engineers state, and may be applied practically without delay, serving as an alarm system for a centrally located rescue crew.

Davis to Broadcast Labor News.

Not to be outdone in radio activties by the Agricultural, Postoffice, Commerce and other civil departments, Secretary Davis has decided that it would be a good scheme to get the Labor Department on the radio map and tell the world what it is doing. To this end he has officially asked the Navy Department to aid in the broadcasting of activities relating to immigration quotas, labor arbitration, employment and child labor, as well as other official business.

The Missouri Radio Receiving Set

Will Receive Broadcasting From Distant Stations

The Missouri Receiving Set is not a toy or an assembled set, but built complete in our own factory, of the highest grade material with our own patented parts.

The complete set including tuner, detector, and two-stage amplifier are all conveniently arranged in a mahogany cabinet, all control elements being systematically grouped on the front panel which is of black polished Formica.

The Missouri Radio Receiving Set, which is manufactured in St. Louis, contains many special features, a few of which are:

The Variometers and Vario-coupler are of unique and practical design, providing apparatus consisting almost entirely of active elements.

Automatic Filament Control Jacks are used, which switch off all unused stages, thus saving storage battery and making possible leaving set tuned for any selected station.

A special exterior connection is provided on the rear terminal block for using a different plate voltage on each amplifier tube. This feature is especially desirable if not positively necessary where loud speakers are to be used. For extremely loud speech as obtained by Magnavox or other similar form of loud speaker a 5-watt power tube may be used in the last stage, all connections being provided as standard equipment.

THE

30x3½ Regular Size Has Created a Sensation

Like its Big Oversize Brother this sturdy Cord Tire, beautiful in appearance, scientific in design, with an abundance of rubber on the new FLAT TYPE Tread, and three corrugations at the side wall for strengthening, has been acclaimed the most wonderful value on the market today.

Come in and look at the Tire that is upsetting the Tire Values of today. Kenyon distributors everywhere are overwhelming the factory with orders for this popular Tire.

The demand is far bigger than our expectations, and you won't wonder why if you stop in early to look at this Big Value Tire. Yet it is selling for less than many good makes of fabric tires and invites comparison with any make of cord. Specially priced at

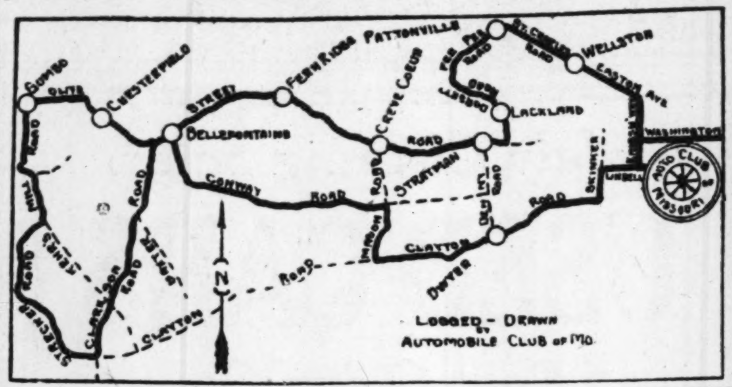
County Picnic Trip



LOGGED—DRAWN BY AUTOMOBILE CLUB OF MO.

IDEAL PICNIC GROUNDS ALONG COUNTY TRIP

Jaunt Is 62 Miles in Length and Over Good, Hard Surface Roads.

A 62-mile motor jaunt over 10 different county roads which offers the motorists many ideal places to stop for lunch and spend some time enjoying the scenery is the thirteenth of a series of Sunday automobile tours offered motorists by the Post-Dispatch and the Touring Bureau of the Automobile Club of Missouri.

This trip, which is over hard-surface roads the entire distance, can be made in about three hours if one does not care to stop.

Upon leaving St. Louis by way of Easton avenue the route is via St. Charles road as far as Pattonville where you turn left onto the Fee Fee road, which is followed for about two miles until the Dorsett road is approached. The Dorsett road is then followed as fas as the Olive Street road. Upon turning onto the Olive Street road you head west as far as Gumbo where you turn left onto the Kehr's Mill road. After a two-mile jaunt over the Kehr's Mill road you turn right onto the Strecker Valley road. The Strecker Valley road is then followed as far as the Clarkson road where you turn left and head back to the Olive Street road. After a very short jaunt on the Olive Street road you turn right onto the Schoettler road, which is followed as far as the Conway road. The route then winds its way back to the city over the Conway road, to the Mason road, to the Clayton road.

RAPID GROWTH IN MOTOR TRUCKING

According to statistics compiled by the Firestone Ship-by-Truck Bureau, one out of every 10 motor vehicles is a commercial car; that is to say either an automobile chassis with a truck body or a regular motor truck.

The tremendous development in the light truck field has led the Firestone company to produce special cord truck tires in the smaller sizes. These are designed primarily to carry heavier loads than passenger car tires of the same sizes with round tread.

The Ease and Comfort of 70 Horsepower Might

When you first sit behind the wheel of a Paige 6-66 you will be amazed at the ease and simplicity of control.

Gear shifting is an almost unconscious operation. The pressure of one finger on the lever is quite sufficient to make the change instantly and noiselessly.

As you step on the accelerator you will find that the car swings into its stride without a suggestion of overloading.

You have the might of 70 horsepower to draw upon—power that is almost liquid in flexibility—power that serves you at slow speeds or at the pace of an express train.

And, though you are the driver, you will find that the 6-66 has an uncanny way of steering itself. The wheel responds to the gentlest movement of your hands—seems, indeed, to anticipate your will in advance.

All this is fact, not fancy., It is the supreme attribute of the Paige 6-66—for the Daytona model is the holder of ten world's stock chassis speedway records and unquestioned Master of the Highway.

CASE
MOTOR CARS

This new Case Model W has been designed to afford the maximum in performance, dependability and satisfaction. Any increase in cost could add only non-essentials. In every way this car typifies the finest practices in motor car construction.

Its speed range—from 2 to 70 miles per hour—gives some indication of the car's performance. The new six cylinder Case Continental Motor delivers its power quietly and economically. In tests, 17 miles have been obtained on a gallon of gasoline. Each part is specially designed with a large factor of reserve strength.

The wheel base of 129 inches, correct distribution of weight, and well designed suspension on long springs, assure remarkable stability and safety under all road conditions.

More delightful or dependable motoring than is afforded in the new Case Model W can not be obtained at any price. We would consider it a privilege to arrange a demonstration tour whenever convenient for you. Full appreciation of these values will then be mutual.

AUTO DEALERS TO HOLD PICNIC THURSDAY

Automobile Row will practically be closed up all day Thursday while the members of the St. Louis Automobile dealers' associations, their employes and families, frolic at the association's second annual basket picnic at Lake Hill Park.

Arrangements have been made by the Entertainment Committee to accommodate over 3000 persons. The program, which consists of 23 events, includes various running races for men, women and children, swimming contests for men and women, baby contest and dancing contest.

The swimming contest, as well and all events for children will start at 11 a. m., while the balance of the program will be held between 1:30 and 5 p. m.

The motor route to Lake Hill, as suggested by the committee, and which will be posted the entire distance is over the Clayton road to Pennsylvania avenue, to Big Bend road direct to the grounds. For those who will go by train the 9:25 Frisco is suggested.

The committee in charge of the picnic is as follows: G. W. D. Donnelly, chairman; L. F. Jalageas, Allen Baker, Samuel Igou, Conrad Welling, William Walsingham and Frank Bishop.

OLDS ANNOUNCE NEW TOURING MODEL

Demand for a five-passenger touring car on the light eight Oldsmobile chassis has been met by the Olds Motor works; production of the new type has been begun. While it retains the contour of the four-passenger light eight, the new model allows ample room for five passengers.

The car is finished in a wine color, known as Oriford Lake, and the side rails are of Circassian walnut. The instrument board, horn button, steering wheel and spokes, and ball on top of gear-shifting lever are also of walnut; the steering wheel is 18 inches in diameter. Upholstery is in handbuffed leather, the color of autumn leaves, to harmonize with the finish of the body color. Luxurious cushions and springs and tan rugs of heavy texture in front and in rear compartment add a touch of extra distinction to the appointments of the car. A new style flaring radiator shell, nickel-plated, and a cowl ventilator in black form pleasing contrasts.

Top and curtains are of high-grade material and the top is of a new clear vision type. The new two-piece windshield is adjustable from the inside, and is equipped with a weather strip. Standard equipment includes windshield wiper, rear vision mirror, tubular robe rail and snubbers on the rear. Cord tires are standard equipment and a single tire carrier, with spare rim, is mounted at the rear. Crown fenders are rigidly fixed to body and to frame and the running boards are covered with battleship linoleum.

AUTO CLUBS DEMAND GASOLINE INQUIRY

The Automobile Club of Missouri, in conjunction with the American Automobile Association, has begun a drive to make the voice of the motorists of the State heard in the effort that is being made to determine the present high price of gasoline. Thousands of members of the Automobile Club of Missouri are to write to Senators Spencer and Reed and their respective Congressmen urging support of the inquiry launched by Senator La Follette.

Figures compiled by the Bureau of Mines show that the present reserve stocks of gasoline aggregate 854,282,000 gallons, and the reserve is increasing faster than the production of automobiles, promising to reach the billion-gallon mark before the seasonal decline sets in this fall.

All of the divisions of the Automobile Club of Missouri are to cooperate in the demand for a thorough inquiry, an inquiry which will no doubt include a demand for an explanation as to why the larger companies are discriminating between Illinois and Missouri gasoline users in favor of the former to the extent of approximately three cents a gallon. The Automobile Club will be represented at Washington when the investigation launched under the La Follette resolution gets fairly under way.

LET THEM PASS.

The man in the car behind may be the Governor of the State, bound for the capital—or an important member of the State Legislature. Can there be any satisfaction in delaying them? They have it in their power to drive you from the highway—to throw you out of your job.

Be cheerful. Let them pass.

BIG-SIX SPEEDSTER

THE new Studebaker Four-Passenger Speedster is mounted on the Big-Six chassis with the same dependable 60 horse-power motor that made enthusiasts of thousands of owners during the most critical buying period in history.

Every item of its complete equipment and finished detail suggests ultra style and riding comfort.

The front seat is tilted at the correct angle for comfortable riding. An upholstered arm-rest divides the tonneau into two individual seats which provide the comfort of an over-stuffed armchair.

The touring trunk at the rear with tray and suitcase compartments is easy of access, because the two spare disc wheels are mounted on each front fender.

These disc wheels, complete with cord tires and tubes, are furnished without extra cost.

In addition there is a handsome set of nickel-plated bumpers front and rear, a courtesy light on the driver's side, a built-in, thief-proof transmission lock which is operated by the same key that locks the ignition switch and tool compartment in the left front door. Ask for the Studebaker "Yardstick," a measure of the greater value that Studebaker offers

The American Legion Auxiliary in the Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth districts, in session recently, voted to institute an educational campaign on the proper use of the American flag. Mrs. John Hoffman, State Committeewoman from the Eleventh District, appointed Mrs. A. D. Weed, chairman of a committee to prepare and send to political candidates who use the flag to advertise his or her qualities for office, a resolution of protest.

"It would seem," Mrs. Hoffman said, "that the first duty of anyone setting themselves up as a representative American citizen, such as an office holder, should be is to inform themselves of at least the rudiments of flag etiquette."

The American Legion Weekly has printed the following rules on flag etiquette:

"The man who is in uniform salutes in military style when the flag goes by, but when in civvies the best form is to take off the hat and hold it against the left shoulder. In draping the colors the simplest rule to remember is that the Stars and Stripes always claim the place of honor, the forefront, the right or the highest elevation. Another rule is that the colors should never be allowed to touch the ground or the deck.

"Don't use the flag as a tablecloth. A Bible may rest on it. Nothing else.

"Don't use the flag as a silk handkerchief.

"Don't twist it into fantastic designs.

"Don't use it in any form of advertising.

BIG SCALE BUILDING PROGRAM TO BEGIN SOON IN WESTMOOR

Group of 8-Suite Apartments and Number of Residences Costing $15,000 to $20,000 Planned.

SALE OF 800 LOTS WILL OPEN TODAY

By Berry Moore.

Plans have been completed for a group of eight suite apartment buildings for Commodore drive in Westmoor, involving an outlay of several hundred thousand dollars, and for a number of residences for the south side of Clayton road to cost from $15,000 to $20,000. Westmoor is at the southwest corner of Clayton road and Pennsylvania avenue. Both the apartments and the residence are to be erected by clients of the Joseph Darst Realty Co., who bought the sites of the proposed improvements at an auction sale of the north part of this addition held recently by the Heber Harter Co. of New York in connection with the Cornet & Zeibig Trust.

These are the first plans disclosed for buildings for this addition for which designated streets will be available for flats and apartments and residences, to say nothing of business buildings which will be permissible on Pennsylvania avenue.

The announcement is noteworthy in that it heralds the construction of the first apartment buildings in the Clayton road district, west of Pennsylvania avenue and marks the beginning of actual preparations for the upbuilding of this tract which is to be developed as a combination addition, and which promises to mark an epoch in suburban growth. Plans for many other buildings are in process of development, including bungalows, which are not excluded in this addition.

Westmoor embraces 131 acres and is at the intersection of two famous highways and is right in the track of the westward growth of the city. It has been subdivided as a park subdivision with attractive drives and is being improved with sidewalks, gutters, streets, sewer and water and electric mains of the finest type. McKelvey Construction Co. has been awarded this work, which is well under way.

Approximately 30 acres of this tract, including a part of the Clayton road frontage was sold at the auction held several weeks ago by the Heber Harter Co. in connection with the Cornet & Zeibig Trust. The sale was a conspicuous feature, the purchasers in many instances having plans for the erection sooner or later of residences or apartments. Not a few of the lots acquired at the auction have been resold at snug profits.

The remainder of the addition, comprising more than 800 lots, will be closed out at a grand special sale to be launched today by the Joseph Darst Realty Co., which has been made exclusive agent for its sale by the Westmoor Land Co., of which Ralph Coale is president. This will be the first time any of the lots have been offered for sale since the auction.

Restricted for Dwellings.

The lots facing Clayton road have been restricted for two-story dwellings, to cost not less than $6000.

The Westmoor with Coale as its guiding genius, bought this acreage at an exceedingly attractive price for cash, and is in a position to retail it at levels involving decided speculative advantages to purchasers.

The addition is in the district with Brentmoor, Forest Ridge and Southmoor, the most exclusive group of residential parks adjacent to the city. Washington University at Forsythe boulevard and Skinker road, and the Christian Brothers' College, under construction on Clayton road, east of Pennsylvania avenue, are attractive features of this locality. The addition is also convenient to both parochial and public schools, stores of all kinds and churches.

Thus in view of its superior location the prediction is ventured that Westmoor will rival, in growth, the fastest developing suburb of St. Louis. Westmoor is expected to attract many apartment building projects which have been halted in the city by the zoning law or by the high prices asked for the few remaining sites within the city limits available for improvements of this type on a large scale.

Suburban Boom Predicted.

"The opening up of this subdivision is opportune," said Joseph Darst Jr., "in view of the recent 'Barometer Letter' sent out by Rodger Babson, the statistical expert, who predicts that the greatest building boom of suburban homes which this country has ever witnessed will take place within the next 10 years. The report further states that there will be a greater shifting of population from city to suburbs then the country has ever witnessed before, due to the development of the automobile, with its snorting contempt for distance, the radio and chain stores.

"Francis Jones, the Director-General of the United States Employment Service," continued Darst, "states that the building boom is general throughout the country and this statement is verified here in the large amount of building activity in St. Louis County."

The Joseph Darst Co. has installed a powerful wireless receiving station on the Westmoor tract and is giving concerts nightly to thousands of automobilists who drive out the Clayton road and who have parked their cars on the subdivision in order that they may enjoy these concerts.

The property will be improved with nine-room bungalows. This office will have charge of construction, superintending and management of buildings when completed.

PRINCETON PLACE IS CENTER OF MUCH INTEREST; MANY SALES

Princeton place is the center of much attention. The surface improvements are fast approaching completion in this addition, which is situated at Gravois and Loughborough avenues, and which is one of the trimmist subdivisions in Southwest St. Louis. It is being sold by the Weiss-Meyerricks Realty and Loan Co. of the Wainwright Building, which reports many sales of the lots to both home builders and investors, with the former predominating. Indications are that the addition will be built up in record time. The company is offering to build four and five room bungalows in the addition for $3790 on terms of $500 cash and the balance monthly. The prices at which the lots are being sold include all improvements.

McDonald on Motor Trip.

C. M. McDonald, president of the C. M. McDonald Real Estate Co., and his family have left the city for a short vacation. They have motored to Chicago, and will probably go from there to points in Wisconsin. He expects to return to the office about July 25.

BUILDING RECORD FOR JUNE SHOWS LARGE INCREASE

ONLY 5 PER CENT UNDER MAY RECORD

Work Started in Last Six Months Amounts to $1,690,984,000, Highest Figure for First Half of Any Year.

Building contracts awarded during June in the 27 Northeastern states, according to the F. W. Dodge company, amounted to $343,440,000. Except for the record figures of April and May of this year, this is larger than any previous monthly total. It is only 5 per cent under the record May figure, and shows a 52 per cent increase over June of last year.

The continued high rates of activity has brought the total amount of construction started in the first six months of this year up to $1,690,984,000, which is by far the highest figure for the first half of any year. It is 59 per cent greater than the figure for the six-month period of 1921.

In the six months' record are the following items: $682,663,000 for residential construction, an increase of 89 per cent over the corresponding period of 1921; $288,932,000 for public works and utilities, being 19 per cent over last year; $280,329,000 for business buildings, 94 per cent more than last year; $164,641,000 for educational buildings, 58 per cent over last year; and $123,181,000 for industrial plants, an increase of 42 per cent over the corresponding period of last year.

Contemplated new work reported from Jan. 1 to July 1 has amounted to slightly over $3,000,000,000, compared with $1,690,000,000 for work actually started in the same period.

It seems not unlikely that the remaining summer months may show a slight falling off from the extreme high rate of activity that has prevailed during the second quarter of the year. However, there are localities in the Middle West where the revival has not yet gained the headway that it has in the East. These places may be expected to show increases that will in a measure offset declines elsewhere.

New England Increase Large.

June building contracts in New England amounted to $38,300,000, an increase of 16 per cent over the previous month and of 136 per cent over June, 1921.

Construction has been started during the first six months of the year to the amount of $175,363,000, an increase of 115 per cent over the first half of 1921. Residential construction, which has amounted to $64,220,000, shows an increase of 107 per cent over the first half of last year; business buildings, amounting to $41,772,000, have been nearly three times as great in volume as last year; educational buidlings have amounted to $20,266,000, three times the volume of last year; public works and utilities, which have totaled $18,523,000, have doubled last year's six-month record; and industrial buildings, in the sum of $15,783,000, have run 68 per cent ahead of last year.

New York State and Jersey.

Contracts awarded during June in New York State and Northern New Jersey amounted to $79,383,000, a decline of 10 per cent from May, but an increase of 27 per cent over June, 1921. The peak month for this district was April. However, the declines in May and June have been confined to New York City, where the building revival has been a year in advance of the rest of the country.

Construction started in this district from Jan. 1 to July 1 has amounted to $485,185,000, nearly double the amount for the corresponding period of 1921. On the six months' record, residential construction, amounting to $256,528,000, has run 89 per cent ahead of last year; mercantile construction, amounting to $84,715,000, has been 145 per cent ahead of last year; public works and utilities, $50,848,000, more than double last year; educational buildings, $34,491,000, about three times the volume of last year; and industrial construction to the amount of $22,601,000, is 41 per cent ahead of the first half of 1921.

Middle Atlantic States.

June building contracts in the Middle Atlantic States (Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia and the Carolinas) amounted to $56,373,000, an increase of three per cent over the preceding month and of 75 per cent over the corresponding month of last year.

Contemplated new work reported in June amounted to $71,667,000.

Pittsburg District.

Contracts awarded during June in Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee amounted to $54,454,000. Although this was a decline of 25 per cent from the May figure, it was 16 per cent ahead of June, 1921.

During the first half of the year construction has been started in this district to the amount of $261,573,000, an increase of 22 per cent over the corresponding period of last year. The six months' record shows: Total residential construction, $86,584,000, which is 50 per cent ahead of last year; mercantile construction, $48,166,000, or 116 per cent ahead of last year; public works and utilities, $49,551,000 or 29 per cent under last year; industrial plants, $25,760,000, or 28 per cent ahead of last year; and educational buildings, $25,439,000, which is 19 per cent ahead of last year's six month record.

The Central West.

June building contracts in the Central West (comprising Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri and portions of Eastern Kansas and Nebraska), amounted to $104,412,000. This total (1 per cent over the previous month and 74 per cent over June 1921) is the largest monthly figure for this district since October, 1919.

From Jan. 1 to July 1 the amount of construction started in this district was $471,013,000, which is 45 per cent greater than the work started in the first six months of last year. The record for the first half of 1922 shows: Residential construction, $147,497,000, more than double the amount for the first six months of last year; public works and utilities, $111,258,000, or 25 per cent ahead of last year; business buildings, $65,171,000, which is 28 per cent ahead of last year; educational buildings, $54,500,000, or 17 per cent ahead of last year; and indutsrial plants, amounting to $40,756,000, being 56 per cent ahead of last year.

The Northwest.

June building contracts in Minnesota, the Dakotas and Northern Michigan amounted to $10,518,000. Although this was a decline of 4 per cent from May, it was 24 per cent over the figure for June, 1921.

During the first half of this year construction contracts have totaled $47,425,000, an increase of 22 per cent over the corresponding period of last year. In the six-months' record are the following items: Residential buildings, $13,664,000, an increase of 46 per cent over the first half of 1921; public works and utilities, $13,351,000, an increase of 18 per cent; educational buildings, $9,321,000, an increase of 22 per cent; business building, $5,551,000, an increase of 103 per cent, and industrial buildings, $1,774,000 an increase of 140 per cent.

Westmoor is located four blocks west of Forest Park, on the corner of Clayton road and Pennsylvania avenue. North of Westmoor is the palatial residence and beautiful private park of C. M. Rice. There is no city noise, grime or dirt in Westmoor, yet it is not inconveniently distant.

ASKED TO "UNJIMMY" SAFE

Burglar's Effort to Open Strong Box Jammed Door Shut.

The burglar who "jimmied" the safe of E. J. Lockyer of Alton, a week ago, is respectfully requested to come back and "unjimmy" it, or complete the job. The burglar was a good "jimmier" up to the point of jamming the combination, but not good enough to get in. At that he is no worse off than Lockyer, who has been trying all the week to get in, without success.

There is some money in the safe which Lockyer wants and can't get. He is almost as bad off as if the burglar had gotten it. He has offered it to anybody who can get it, but so far has had no takers.

RUTLEDGE ASSERTS HE SHOULD HAVE BEEN INDORSED

Candidate for Circuit Bench Declares He Received a Majority in Bar Association Poll.

SAYS HE LED ON THIRD BALLOT

His Recommendation Would Have Placed 10 Names on Indorsement List for Nine Nominations.

Circuit Judge Charles W. Rutledge, a candidate in the Republican primary for one of the nine nominations to the circuit bench, yesterday announced that he had satisfied himself, by inquiry, that he received the votes of a majority of the lawyers voting in the third ballot of the Bar Association poll, by which ballot the Association's slate of Republican judicial indorsements was completed.

Judge Rutledge's name was not included in the announced list of nine indorsements, made public by the Bar Association's committee on candidates. The committee has not made public the vote received by any of the candidates.

Judge Rutledge does not charge that any of the nine who have been announced by the committee, as receiving indorsements, received a smaller vote than he received. But he says that he, and possibly others in addition to those officially announced, did receive a majority vote on the third ballot. He declares that, under the rules which were laid down in advance to govern the indorsements, he, and any others who received a majority vote should have been included in the announced list.

Would Have Been 10 Named.

If this had been done, the committee would have been in the position of recommending 10 or more men for nine nominations. Judge Rutledge says that is precisely what the committee should have done, under its own rules. If 10 or more candidates had been indorsed, the voter wishing to follow the Bar Association's recommendations would have had to eliminate one candidate or more. Any vote for more than nine judicial candidates will not be counted in the primary. There are now 34 Republican candidates for nomination to the circuit bench.

Judge Rutledge made this statement in a letter addressed to Guy A. Thompson, president of the Bar Association, Robert Burkham, chairman of the Republican judicial candidate committee, and former Judge William T. Jones, chairman of the similar Democratic committee.

None of these could be reached last evening, when a Post-Dispatch reporter sought to question them as to Judge Rutledge's statements.

In his letter Judge Rutledge says: "Rumors have been so persistent that I received a majority, and more, of the votes cast in the Republican bar primary to recommend judicial candidates that I have personally investigated same, and I am now convinced beyond any question that I received a majority of the votes cast on the last ballot for Judge of the Circuit Court on the Republican side, and, according to the published resolution stating the rules of the Bar Association on May 13, 1922, I am equally entitled with all other candidates for Circuit Judge, receiving a majority of the votes cast, to be recommended by the bar to the public as indorsed by the bar of St. Louis.

Cites Instance.

"I cite you one instance that is public that is very persuasive, and that is that you appeared before a meeting of a committee of the League of Women Voters on July 13, to explain the bar indorsements, and that you refused to answer the direct question as to whether or not any other candidates for Circuit Judge than those reported received a majority of the votes on the last ballot on the Republican side. If this was not a fact you would naturally and unhesitatingly have answered in the negative, without violating any secrecy you may claim to be under, especially when the rules adopted provided plainly that the candidates receiving a majority of the votes cast should be recommended. The question asked was a most pertinent one, and one that should have been answered if not true, in order to remove all questions of doubt."

He then cites the rules governing the Bar Association poll, and says:

"The preamble of the resolution sets out that a bar primary be held to select for indorsement as many candidates as there are to be nominated for judicial offices, but it does not say 'and no more,' and it does not provide a rule or method to determine what candidates shall be recommended where more than the required number receive a 'majority vote.' Rule 3 unqualifiedly provides that all receiving a majority vote shall be recommended.

"This was not a rule to be arbitrarily revoked, changed or ignored because more than nine candidates for Circuit Judge, in fact, received more than a majority of the votes. You did not provide in your rules a method other than to recommend the candidates receiving a majority of the votes cast, and there is nothing in your rules that gives the committee the power or the right to arbitrarily set aside any of these rules and determine which of the candidates receiving a majority of the votes cast were to be recommended, but your rules plainly provide that the candidates receiving a majority of the votes cast shall be recommended to the public.

Condemns Methods.

"I dislike very much to take this stand, and it is most distasteful to me personally, and particularly because I am now a Judge of the Circuit Court, but the methods of securing the votes for some of the successful candidates, which were not interfered with or condemned by any of the judicial committees or the Executive Board or officers of the Bar Association, namely, the organization of compaign committees among members of the bar systematically to solicit votes of the lawyers of the party for their particular candidate, using the friendship of friends to that end as a favor—causes me to feel that I have been unjustly discriminated against in the report of the recommendations of the bar, and the public should know what the results were, and that this bar primary was not the uninfluenced opinion of the members of the bar of the nine best fitted candidates for Circuit Judge.

"I do not mean this in anywise as a reflection on the fitness of any of the candidates recommended, and I want to expressly disclaim any such intention.

"I see no excuse for the Bar Association putting up a slate of judicial candidates in practically the some manner that political committees do. That may do for political leaders, but the Bar Association should keep itself free from political methods and politics, if it would expect to influence voters who want to know only which candidates are fit and which are not fit. The very most, in my opinion, that the bar should do is to recommend all candidates who are fitted by experience, reputation and ability for the offices, and then let the people decide, as they choose, in a fair manner to the candidates, which of the candidates shall be the nominee.

Issues Challenge.

"In view of these rumors that I received a majority of the votes on the Republican side for Circuit Judge, and the satisfactory verification of these rumors, I now respectfully challenge you to publicly state that I did not receive a majority of the votes cast on the Republicas side for Circuit Judge. I know that none of you will deliberately misrepresent the truth about this matter, and I know it will not be violative of any just secrecy to say that I did not receive a majority of the votes for Circuit Judge, if I did not, and I know that a legal interpretation of your rules demands that you let the public know who received a majority of the votes cast, and who did not. Further, I respectfully demand that my name be placed among those who received a majority of the votes cast in accordance with the rules of the contest. I respectfully urge that justice be done me in this respect.

In the first poll of the Bar Association, according to the official announcement, four candidates received a majority. In the second poll two more received a majority. In the third poll only three were announced as receiving a majority, but Judge Rutledge charges that there were at least four, of whom he was one. The nine candidates who were officially announced as reciving indorsement were Judges Taylor, Davis, Hamilton, Calhoun and Klene, G. F. Hald, W. C. Schwartz, E. O. Pearcy and H. A. Rosskopf.

HALTS FLIGHT OF TWO NEGROES IN WEEK WITH BULLETS

A week ago he undertook to arrest a negro at Sixth and Morgan streets, who had been robbing clothing store dummies. The negro tried to get away, and Bourland, who formerly was a Texas ranger, shot the negro in the heel.

Last night he and Detective Sergt. Linder were driving south on Vandeventer avenue. At Enright avenue a street car in front of them stopped and they saw two negroes in the pickpocket's jostling act.

Bourland jumped out and one of the negroes jumped off, but ran around to the side of the car, which had started up, and clung to the window bars. Bourland droe up alongside. When the car stopped at Delmar boulevard the negro dropped off and ran around the front end, with Bourland after him. The fugitive entered a yard and was trying to climb the back fench when Bourland shot him in the calf of the leg.

He proved to be Robert Till, 21, of 2741A Morgan street, a pickpocket, who has been arrested 19 times in 18 months. He was taken to City Hospital No. 2. The other negro escaped. The police report says he was smoking a corncob pipe.

IT'S "BAREFOOT BURGLAR" NOW

The "barfoot burglar" who has been operating in North St. Louis, entered four homes early yesterday morning.

At the home of Walter Riley, 4520 Natural Bridge avenue, Mrs. Riley heard a noise at 5:30 a. m. and, thinking it was her son, called his name. The kitchen door slammed and it was found that $270 worth of jewelry and 50 cents had been taken. At the other three places the intruder confined his attentions to trousers pockets. He took $8.35 from Arthur Lawhead, 4566 St. Louis avenue; $10 from George Hamlin, 3600 Marcus avenue, and 25 cents from Arthur Stein, 4672 Alsace avenue.

REBELLIOUS CLERGY TO BE EXCOMMUNICATED

By BEATRICE BASKERVILLE,
A Special Correspondent of the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

45 Piazza de Spagna.

ROME, July 15.—The congregation of the holy office threatens to ex-communicate all those Czecho-Slovak priests who shortly after the armistice was signed rebelled against the papal authority, proclaiming their intention to marry, say the mass in their native tongue and institute autonomy in the church administration and the nomination of Bishops.

The first movement found several hundred followers among the lower clergy. In many cases entire parishes joined the rebellion against Rome, but as the excitement and novelty of the situation wore off, numbers dwindled and now probably not more than 200 still refuse to return to the discipline of Rome.

The congregation of the holy office was long occupied with the question, examining each priest's case separately. They have now issued a decree to the effect that the rebellious priests must declare their submission within 15 days to the authority of their respective Bishops, their resignation from the schismatic society they now belong to and their submission to disciplinary punishment.

Pope Pius XI confirmed the decree which is being communicated to the recalcitrant priests. This is the first instance of a decree of excommunication against a number of priests in over a century.

The Post-Dispatch asked the Czecho-Slovak legation president if the holy see ultimatum is likely to bring back the rebels to the authority of Rome. The legation attache said: "We doubt it, because the priests who are still rebellious are married and have families. They are settled in their new lives and many already are in a position to earn their living if they fail to find enough followers to form congregations."

FALL DURING RIVER OUTING RESULTS IN DEATH OF GIRL

Helen Mary Cummings, 12, Fell Across Rowboat and Into Meramec.

Helen Mary Cummings, 12 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Cummings, 922 Bayard avenue, died at 8:30 o'clock last night at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium after an operation for internal injuries suffered in a fall during an outing on the Meramec River at Glencoe, Thursday.

The girl, her father and mother, and other children were preparing to go on a trip in a rowboat and Helen was leading the way. She started down a plank leading to the river, when she either slipped or caught a foot in cleats in the board. Her father said she appeared to jump and fell across the rowboat and then into the water. The father pulled her from the river and she was taken to the hospital immediately. The funeral probably will be held Tuesday.

SALESMAN ROBBED OF AUTO AND $4 AT O'FALLON PARK ENTRANCE

Descriptions of Two Thieves Corresponds to That of Perpetrators of 30 Similar Robberies.

Walter Uehli of 5038 Vernon avenue, a salesman for the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., was robbed of his automobile and $4 by two young men who held him up at the Harris avenue entrance to O'Fallon Park about 10 o'clock last night. The descriptions of the men are about the same as those given of two men who have committed more than 30 similar holdups in the parks.

Peter Dickhaut, proprietor of a meat shop at 3510 Penrose street, was held up as he was closing his store at 9:30 by two young men, who took $15 from his pockets.

SOUTHERN BAPTISTS WANT TEXTS MINUS EVOLUTION REFERENCE

By the Associated Press.

Convention Appoints Committee to Seek Out Scholars to Provide Such Books.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 15.—For the purpose of finding Christian scholars who can write text books on science "free from erroneous statements with reference to evolution," the education board of the Southern Baptist convention has appointed a committee to look into the matter of providing such text books.

The resolution calling for the naming of the committee orders the education board to "begin at once to seek Christian scientists who will prepare text books for all departments of science which will rightly relate science to the Bible and who will set forth the fact that the majority of the greatest men of science have repudiated Darwinism, except as an unproven working hypothesis. This, of course, means that it is not science at all, but just theory."

The committee will have a year in which to investigate the matter before reporting to the committee.

FIGHTING IN IRELAND CENTERS IN LIMERICK

By Cable to the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1922.)

DUBLIN, July 15.—Fighting in Ireland, centered in Limerick since Tuesday, has resulted in 20 casualties, including four killed, in that city.

Practically all the Republican leaders at liberty are in the south. Eamonn de Valera has been reported to be touring the country in supreme command of the irregular forces.

Limerick is in chaos. Business has been suspended, the streets are deserted, roads leading to the city blockaded, and the population faced with starvation. The irregulars have seized all food supplies which cannot now be replaced. Distress is general. Bread supplies of the poor are rapidly giving out.

Inhabitants Leaving City.

All who can are leaving the city. Many of the poorer families are even making their way on foot to safer communities.

Snipers are making life indoors and out perilous. Dan Breen, who a few months ago took a leading part in urging the army to accept the treaty, is now reported to be acting with the insurgents.

In Waterford and Clonmel the irregulars are placing themselves on the defensive. But so far the national troops are sweeping everything before them. In County Galway they have the situation well in hand; the city is quiet and only in the country districts are travelers held up and robbed by bands of irregulars.

Nationals Take Collooney.

Collooney, an irregular stronghold in County Sligo, was taken by the nationals after four hours of fighting today. Seventy prisoners with arms and equipments and a store of explosives were captured.

Cork is reported quiet, but the irregulars are holding barracks and other buildings. They have set up a blockade rule on the harbor, are in possession of the customs houes and postoffice, and are reported to have seized the banks and all available cash, amounting to about $250,000. They have established a strict censorship over the news, but it is known 10,000 workers are unemployed and trade and industry are completely disorganized.

A large section of the army which upholds the free state is at present inactive becaues of these restraints. The Dublin Government, however, announces its intention to push the campaign in the south, accepting any challenge the irregulars offer.

GERMAN ECONOMIC CONDITIONS BAD, U. S. REPORT INDICATES

Failure of Plans for Foreign Loans One Cause of Currency Depression, It Is Said.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—German economic conditions are bad, France is marking time, while Austria shows some signs of improvement, according to reports to the Commerce Department from its representatives in those countries.

Failure of plans for foreign loans has brought about the new period of currency depression in Germany, it was reported, but Germany industry in general is profiting by the decline as it gives a new opportunity for dumping abroad and for increased inland sales. Many industries are hampered by lack of coal and rising labor costs. French exchange was said to be declining steadily, but employment increasing.

Slight improvement in the Austrian economic situation was seen. The serious conditions arising in June because of exhaustion of British credit and delays in other credits has not improved materially, but exchange is coming back slowly and the situation is clearing up slightly with the final granting of the French credit and the actual receipt of 20,000,000 francs.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 15.—Hearing of the contest over the will of Matthew P. Burns, wealthy shoe merchant who married the mother of Gloria Swanson, film actress, was completed today and arguments before the Jury will be started Monday afternoon.

Relatives of Burns are seeking to prevent the probating of the will by which the bulk of the estate is left to Mrs. Adaline Lew Burns, the actresses' mother.

138TH MILITIA DUE AT SUMMER CAMP TODAY

The First Missouri (138th Infantry) Regiment, National Guard, departed for its annual encampment at Camp Clark, Nevada, Mo., in two trains over the Missouri Pacific Railroad at 8 o'clock last night on a schedule that would have the regiment at Camp Clark at 6:45 a. m. today. The men entrained at the Union Station. They will return July 30.

The enlisted strength of the regiment was 742 men and 45 officers, less 40 men and one officer who went to Nevada earlier in the week to prepare the camp. The number that departed last night was 11 less than the number which attended last year's encampment.

Other military units at Camp Clark will be the Seventieth Infantry Brigade Headquarters, from Nevada; the 140th Infantry, from Cape Girardeau; the 103d Combat Engineers, from Kansas City, and the State administrative staff and Quartermaster Corps, a total of approximately 3000 men and officers, including the First Regiment.

Strike Popular Subject.

Even the activities attending entrainment did not cause a lull in the discussion of possibilities of being called from the encampment to do guard duty at shops affected by the strike of railroad shopmen, a topic of discussion in which the men for days had displayed absorbing interest, and the week they have been mobilized under the order of Gov. Hyde seems to have whetted a desire for active service.

The entrainment was effected without delay, the men having had a week of instruction in organized movement, and for this reason the regiment goes to camp this year under more favorable conditions than in former years.

Reports were received that Camp Clark, which was so named in memory of the late Brigadier-General H. G. Clark, is in good shape to receive the regiment.

Men in Good Spirits.

Col. C. S. Thornton, in command of the regiment, said the men were in good spirits and he expected the course of training at camp to be of great benefit to the regiment.

First call will be at 5:45 a. m. daily; reveille five minutes later, and assembly at 6, and mess at 6:25. There will be three hours and 50 minutes' drill, 7:20 to 11:30, and mess at noon. Besides the calls for officers and noncommissioned officers, there will be two hours of drill in the afternoons; formal guard mounting at 4:55, parade at 5:30, retreat at 5:45 and mess at 6.

Taps will be sounded at 11 o'clock, and no one shall be allowed to pass between taps and reveille. On Sundays the calls will be one hour later, with church call at 9 a. m.

The regiment departed fully equipped with arms and ammunition for any emergency that may arise out of the railroad situation.

CAMP CLARK READY FOR THE MILITIA

NEVADA, Mo., July 15.—Missouri's infantry and engineer regiments of National Guard will be at their places for the annual encampment at Camp Clark not later than 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. The entire infantry regiments will be here. A part of the 138th was sent from St. Louis to Poplar Bluff early this week, but was relieved by artillery from Sedalia in time to join the remainder of the regiment for camp. Missouri's two artillery regiments were scheduled to go to Camp Knox a week ago, but were held back because of possibility of strike duty, hence those artillery units will be used before any infantry or engineers are taken from camp. The artillery will go to their encampment later this year, probably after the infantrymen are available for strike duty.

There will be between 2400 and 2500 men in the encampment, which lasts two weeks. The early details are at their places tonight. That includes an officer from each regiment, four enlisted men from each company and the State administrative staff.

Brigadier-General W. A. Raupp, also Adjutant-General of Missouri, will reach camp about 6 o'clock Sunday morning.

The 110th Engineers combat, led by Col. E. M. Slayton, are expected from Kansas City at daybreak. Their orders are to reach the camp and wait for daybreak to detrain.

There is a race on between the 138th Infantry, Col. C. S. Thornton's regiment from St. Louis, and the 140th from Southeast Missouri, commanded by Col. Warren L. Mabrey of Cape Girardeau. The 140th Regiment reached St. Louis last night and is on the road here over the Katy. The 138th Regiment is coming on the Missouri Pacific. Advice from both late tonight indicates a close finish.

All the tentage is up, leaving the regiments nothing to do but move in.

The completeness of the preparations are due to the efforts of Lieutenant-Colonel A. V. Adams, Quartermaster. Col. Adams has been here since Monday night, and was at camp several days each week for a month previously to this week.

Hot Weather Predicted.

The three regiments are going to find themselves facing a much more strenuous camp than ever before. Twelve regular army officers have been detailed from Fort Leavenworth, Kan., to direct the instruction of the men.

Furthermore, the local indications are for hot, dry weather. The camp site is covered with luxuriant grass, but is situated out and away from forests and is decidedly warm. Being the army reservatioin, two miles long by a halfmile wide, there is room for some nice, long walks for the boys.

The camp is laid out with brigade headquarters to the south and facing the three regimental areas. The 110th Engineers are in the east regimental area, the 140th Infantry in the center and the 138th on the west. The rifle range is to the southeast corner of the reservation. A switch track for unloading troops and supplies runs into the center of the reservation from the west side, passing the Quartermaster's permanent buildings. The course of instruction will begin with reveille Monday.

Filipinos Expected in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 15.—A party of 15 Filipinos, members of the Independence Commission to the United States, will arrive in Chicago tomorrow morning and will depart for Kansas City on the Southwest Limited of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road at 6 p. m.

One hundred and forty-six men have been notified to report tomorrow at the Reserve Officers' Training Camp, at Jefferson Barracks. Training will last until July 30, and will include the infantry, artillery, engineers, quartermaster and ordnance branches. Col. John N. Straat, chief-of-staff of the 102nd Reserve Division, will be in command.

A camp for training aviation reserve officers will be opened tomorrow at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, and another for reserve balloon officers will be opened at Scott Field.

C. J. P.—The Czecho-Slovak Republic consists of Bohemia, Moravia, Slovakia, Silesia and autonomous Ruthenia. Its frontiers have been defined by the Peace Treaties with Germany, Austria and Hungary. The territory is one of the richest in Europe, both as regards natural resources and industrial development. The chief waterways are the Labe (Elbe), which connects Bohemia with Hamburg, and the Danube with the port of Bratislava. The census in November, 1919, showed a population of 2,940,374. The majority of the population are of the Catholic faith.

G. A. F.—The recipe calling for the ½ pint of yeast used in making ginger beer would mean to dissolve ¾ to 1 cake of yeast in the ½ pint of water. It can also be made without yeast as in the following: Ginger, bruised 1½ pounds, sugar 20 pounds, lemons 1 dozen, honey 1 pound, water enough. Boil the ginger in 3 gallons of water for half an hour; add the sugar, the lemons (bruised and sliced), the honey, and 17 gallons of water. Strain and, after three or four days, bottle.

BETTY.—For the frozen dainty you wish to serve at the party why not try a banana sherbet: Combine one cupful of water and one and one-half cupfuls of sugar and boil for 5 minutes. Cool thoroughly. Meanwhile, mash 6 medium-sized bananas or press them through a potato ricer. Add 2 cups of orange juice to the banana pulp and 2 tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. Add this to the sugar syrup, pour into the freezer, and partially freeze. Meanwhile, beat one egg-white until stiff, add to it 2 tablespoonfuls of sugar, and beat again. Fold into the sherbet and freeze about 5 minuts longer until it is stiff enough to serve.

TILLIE.—Windsor sandwiches are made as follows: Cream 1-3 cup of butter and add ⅓ cup each of finely chopped cold boiled ham and cold boiled chicken. Season with salt and paprika, and spread the mixture between thin slices of bread. Fruit sandwiches may be made by removing the stems of fruit used, and finely chopping figs, to which add a small quantity of water, cook in double boiler until a paste is formed, then adding a few drops of lemon juice. The mixture is then cooled and spread on thin slices of buttered bread; sprinkle with finely chopped peanuts and cover with pieces of buttered bread.

PLUM.—To solder aluminum it is necessary previously to tin the parts to be soldered. This tinning is done with the iron, using a composition of aluminum and tin. Replace the ordinary soldering iron by an iron of pure aluminum. Preparation of aluminum solder: Commence by fusing the copper; then add the aluminum in several installments, stir the mixture well with a piece of iron; next add the zinc and a little tallow or benzine at the same time. Once the zinc is added do not heat too strongly, to avoid the volatilization of the zinc. 1. Take 5 parts of tin and 1 part of aluminum. Solder with the iron or with the blowpipe, according to the article. 2. The pieces to be soldered are to be tinned, but instead of using pure tin, alloys of tin with other metals are employed, preferably those of tin and 10 parts of aluminum afford a good alloy, malleable enough to be hammered, cut or turned. If they are not to be worked, the alloy requires less aluminum and may be applied in the usual manner as in soldering iron.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

MRS. HANNAH M.—The widow is entitled to a pension of $25 per month.

A. L. B.—Ask the police to keep the boys from obstructing your entrance, and from making so much noise.

ANNA.—If the mother willed the property to the daughters, or to the father in trust for the daughters, they can sue for their shares of the proceeds. Consult a lawyer.

BILLY.—1. No license is necessary to fish in the lakes or ponds in St. Louis. 2. Unless you are a resident of the county in which you fish from the private farm, you will need a license.

SANDERS.—In the affidavit state your true name and that you opened the account under the name of ——. Explain the facts of losing the bank book to the bank.

BLOCKHEAD.—There is no notice period for an increase in rent, but the tenant must agree to the increase before it can be effective. One month's written notice to vacate must be given, if possession is desired.

ANXIOUS DADDY.—Your marriage is illegal. The woman should obtain a divorce from her first husband and then go through another marriage ceremony with you. Unless you do this the child will legally be presumed to be the child of her first husband.

C. E. McW.—If the house and lot were owned by the husband and wife as joint tenants, on the death of the husband the property passes to the wife, without a will, and she can give a good deed to the property without having the children join in the deed.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

A. Z.—Consult a rectal specialist, as there are many varieties of catarrh of the bowels and they are treated accordingly.

CUB.—If you wish to stimulate the growth of hair for sideburns, try the following: Resorcin 1 dram, quinine (alkaloid) 15 grains, ol. ricini 30 drops, alcohol 4 ounces.

J. W. K.—Consult an oculist who will probably lance and curette (or scrape) out the entire stye. Afterward you can use an advised antiseptic lotion or drops. Special serums are also used at times.

MRS. J. O. B.—There are many good hair tonics on the market. The following is a good formula: Pilocarpinae-hydrochloridi 2 grains; tincture cantharidis 1 dram; quininae-hydrochloridi 15 grains; olei sesmi 2 drams; glycerine 4 drams; sporotus myrciae, 4 ounces; aquae rosae q. s. to make 8 ounces. This mixture rubbed into the scalp with massage will stimulate the growth of hair.

READER.—The following is a very good tonic for an anemic: Obtain a mixture consisting of equal parts of tincture of muriate of iron and glycerine, take from 1 to 12 drops in water through a glass tube after each meal.

JENNIE.—To prevent hay asthma, change of climate is necessary. The general health should receive close attention. Many patients require tonic. Prescription: Liquid potass. arsenit. 1 dram, syr. hypophos. Q. S., oil 4 ounces. Diet, chiefly fruit and vegetables; animal food, coffee and tea interdicted. All the avenues of excretion should be maintained in their normal condition.

A GOOD ARGUMENT

They say, big oaks from little acorns grow. The advantage of the size of the oak, I suppose, is to bear a larger number of acorns. That's the only reason that we are expanding, so as to carry a larger selection of used cars for you to select from.

When you call at my store you will not find tile floors, high-priced, silk-shirt salesmen lounging about and acting as if they will condescend to wait upon you. You will not find "atmosphere"; in fact, you won't even find me in the classy high-rent district.

Some say that I am not doing the right thing by not putting on a lot of dog, and that my place looks like a hole in the wall. Maybe they are right. I always thought that the buyer is not interested so much in how beautiful and attractive the store is as how good is the merchandise I sell and how cheap. I believed that a used car of a $500 value does not appreciate in value if it is set on tile floors, nor does it depreciate if it is rolled out of a hole in the wall. It is still a used car worth $500.

Regardless of arguments to the contrary, high rents, spiffy salesmen, classy decorations, all cost money, and the dealer, if he expects to stay in business, must figure the cost and the interest on his money in his overhead expense, which is added to the price he must get from the cars he sells. The consumer pays for it ultimately. But—the consumer cannot take the atmosphere with him on a tour or to his garage.

Some day our store will be the largest of its kind in the State, possibly in the West. I don't promise you any gingerbread trimmings—just more space in which to show more cars. At present I must be satisfied with selling more cars than any other dealer, in having more satisfied customers than the other dealers and in having acquired the reputation that "if it comes from Yahlem, it's all right."

Still, I'm open to conviction. If you know of any good reason why you should pay for highbrow stuff that you don't take home with you, come in and tell me about it.

IT IS RIDICULOUS

To think that automobiles are not worth 25% of their original cost price when they are three to four years old or run on an average of 12,000 miles.

The people that traded in the cars listed below have taken the depreciation (loss). A smart buyer will buy at the following prices.

If you have a small car we will take it as the down payment and the balance can be paid on easy terms. The following cars are in excellent condition. Before you buy be sure to look over all of our reconditioned automobiles.

USED CAR BARGAINS
By the STUDEBAKER Dealer

Our margin of profit on Studebaker cars enables us to sell USED CARS, which are taken in exchange (not bought) at prices far below those of any Used Car Dealer.

We can also sell you a much better car because we accept only good popular makes.

We think enough of our USED CAR BUSINESS to put them in good condition before they are sold.

We have a decent place to do business in—with tile floor and all (not a hole in the wall), but we do not charge you one cent for all that.

Our Show Room is for NEW STUDEBAKERS, of which we sell by the thousands (not hundreds).

Come and compare them with others, and if you are not convinced you don't have to buy.

Our Terms will enable you to ride and enjoy the car while you are making the monthly payments.

THESE ARE THE CARS:

1921 Chevrolet
1922 Hupmobile
1919 Lexington
1921 Studebaker Roadster
1921 Ford Coupe
1919 Oldsmobile Coupe
1920 Chevrolet

SEVERAL NEW MUSICIANS FOR SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA ENGAGED

Among the Most Noted Are Joseph Krausse, Double-Bass Performer, and John Leoncavallo, Oboe Player.

The engagement of several new musicians for the Symphony Orchestra is announced by Assistant Director Fischer, who has returned from a trip to the East. All of the players were heard by Director Ganz before he sailed for Europe.

Joseph Krausse, said to be one of the leading double-bass performers in the country, will succeed Robert Buhl as leader of the contrabass section. Buhl, however, will remain in the orchestra. Krausse has played under many great directors, including Weingartner, Mengelberg, Toscanini, Mahler, Bodanzky, Stock, Damrosch and Stransky.

Among the other new men engaged are John Leoncavallo a noted oboe player; Wiley Burton Hoxie, English horn; Carlos E. Gamacho, a Mexican bass clarinetist; E. J. Hyna, violinist, of Chicago; Raymond Hamilton and Dominic Sotille, violoncellists; Alfred J. Kovar, contrabass, of Chicago, and Joseph Valasek, harpist, formerly of the National Opera in Budapest.

S. E. McMillen, manager of the orchestra, is on a three weeks' trip through the South and Southwest, during which he hopes to book five weeks of engagements for the orchestra's spring tour next year.

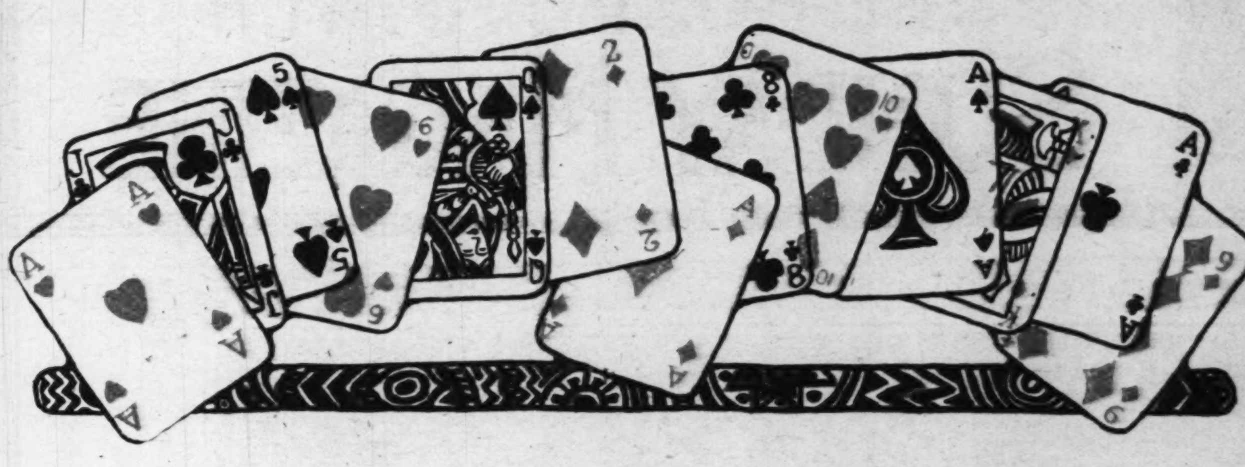
Miss E. L. Colyer

THIS photograph, with its hint of beautiful ancient sculpture, is a fortunate snapshot of the young English tennis player, as she competed in a recent tournament at Surbiton. Miss Colyer's brilliant playing has attracted much notice as well as her occasional displays of violent exertion, in the style of Mlle. Lenglen. But the attitude caught here suggests a rhythmic dance.



Why the Players of Auction Are Fussing

The basic rules of game have been accepted, but there is wide diversity of opinion as to the best way of bidding a hand—Leading authorities on whist advocate different systems of valuing hands, and different practice in various situations ::

By WHIDDEN GRAHAM.

THE latest controversy, and it waxes exceeding warm on occasion, is one of the card tables. When experts in any subject disagree, as they so often do, the rank and file can only divide into hostile camps, each upholding the tenets of its particular prophet and crying out upon those misguided persons who have a different prophet.

The new disagreement, in which some of the foremost authorities are at odds and their followers showing an abiding loyalty, concerns the methods of bidding and conventions used in playing auction whist, or auction, as it is generally called by its devotees.

Introduced as a successor to bridge about fifteen years ago, auction has become the most popular card game ever invented, and is played by hundreds of thousands of men and women in all sections of the country. With the development of the game, numerous changes were made in the rules, and it has now reached what is believed likely to be its permanent form.

While there is a universal acceptance of the basic rules as laid down by the New York Whist Club, there exists a wide diversity of opinion about the best way of bidding a hand—either for the purpose of winning the declaration, showing the player's partner the nature of the hand, or indicating strength in cards that may prevent the opponents going game.

One school of players has sought to standardize the values of any given thirteen cards, so that their holder, sitting in a certain position relative to the dealer, will practically always make the same bid, double, redouble or pass. This standardization of bidding values has been adopted by many players, but there is no general agreement as to the offensive or defensive values of certain card combinations, and it is this difference of opinion that has given rise to the controversies agitating the auction world today.

Not that all good auction players subscribe to the principle of standardization. Many of them believe that the efforts to reduce the game to a matter of exact values would make the bidding largely an automatic affair, robbing the game of speculative interest and variety. Leaving this class to their own individualistic ways, there remain the players who are willing to follow standard methods, but do not agree as to the basis of the standards, or the way of bidding according to them.

Conversation among almost any group of men or women who play auction at a club or their homes is largely devoted to the respective merits of systems of valuing hands, and the practice in bidding in various situations.

"Do you play the Patton convention of expecting your partner to make a declaration when you have doubled a suit or no-trump bid?" "Do you bid according to the Whitehead system of offensive or defensive trick values?" "Do you follow the Foster rule of always taking your partner out of a no-trump bid when you hold five or more cards in a major suit?" "Do you agree with Miss Irwin that the pre-emptive bid should never be used?" "Should the player whose partner has doubled always make a further declaration?"

These are only a few of the many disputed questions over which controversy rages, and no sooner has one point been settled than others, just as perplexing, arise and demand an answer.

Had the auction players been left to work out their own problems the conflict over standards of card values and bidding conventions would probably have died down long ago. As it is, several writers who have given much thought to the game, and had wide experience in playing it, have undertaken to set down certain conclusions that they believe will be of interest and profit to their fellow players, and the wide circulation of their books testifies to the continued public interest in their theories and principles. I shall briefly refer to a few illustrations of the disagreements found among the writers of books which have achieved a national reputation.

A question that must have often occurred to readers of books or articles on auction is: "What constitutes an authority on the game?" It is only fair to say that the books to which I shall refer were written by experienced players who make no claim to authority further than that they have closely studied the mathematical possibilities of the normal distribution of 52 cards and have based their conclusions on the actual play of many thousands of hands.

And in undertaking to lay down rules for bidding, and for the response to be made to informatory doubles, they are careful to state that their conclusions apply only to the average normal card distributions, and not to what are known as "freak" hands, with which almost any unexpected result is possible.

Who shall decide when experts disagree? The final decision rests with the great body of auction players, who need only consider the confused and contradictory advice so often given by teachers of the game to realize that there is grave danger of changing a delightful pastime calling for sound judgment and quick decision and concentration, trained memory for cards played, ability to draw correct inferences from opponents' bids and skill in the management of hands in difficult situations, into a mechanical system that will be almost as attractive to the average player as checkers.

The only influence that may operate to prevent this deterioration of the game is the fact that when adherents of differing schools play together the attempt to apply hard and fast rules results in something of an enlivening nature similar to what happens when the irresistible force meets the immovable object.

Starting with the bidding, the advice of the authorities varies widely, and even when, as with the Foster and Whitehead systems, bids are supposed to be made on a basis of fixed trick values, it is found that some of the rules do not work for their alleged purposes—to aid in going game. Thus, Foster advises the holder of six hearts to the ace-king, without outside strength, to bid two hearts. This, in effect, tells his two opponents that he has nothing but heart strength and encourages them to outbid him if they have the high cards in the other suits. Why should a player advertise the fact of his weakness in three suits? A bid of two in any suit does not shut out an opponent's declaration and is simply a confession of weakness.

Milton Work suggests a bid of two in a long major suit lacking the top honors. Here again arises the query: "Why tell the opponents that you lack the ace and king of the suit bid?"

Messrs. Whitehead, Foster, Work and Carvalho favor the pre-emptive bid or shut-out bid for certain card combinations, but disagree as to what constitutes a pre-emptive bid. Work and Carvalho hold that any initial bid of more than two comes within this class. Whitehead says that properly to constitute a shut-out bid requires three in spades, four in hearts or five in diamonds or clubs.

Miss Irwin denounces the pre-emptive bid as thoroughly unsound, and advises her pupils not to make use of it. Work favors an initial bid of two in a minor suit as an invitation to the bidder's partner to go to two no-trumps. Foster and Whitehead disagree, and give good reason for holding that this bid is unnecessary and gives too much information to the opposing players.

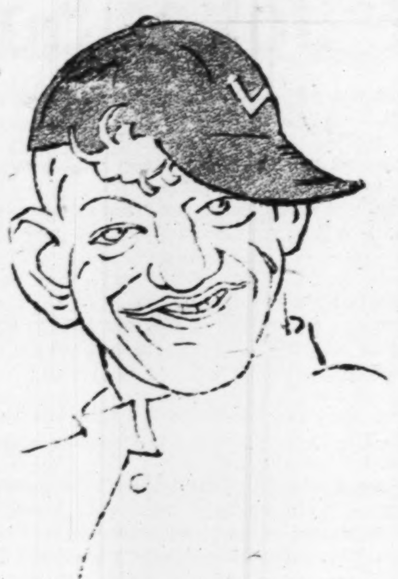
The widest differences of opinion among the auction experts are found in connection with what are known as the "informatory double" conventions. As advocated by Messrs. Whitehead, Foster, Carvalho and Work, this convention is employed to ask the partner either to bid his best suit, in the case of a doubled no-trump bid or to bid no-trumps against a suit bid when he has the declarer's suit safely stopped.

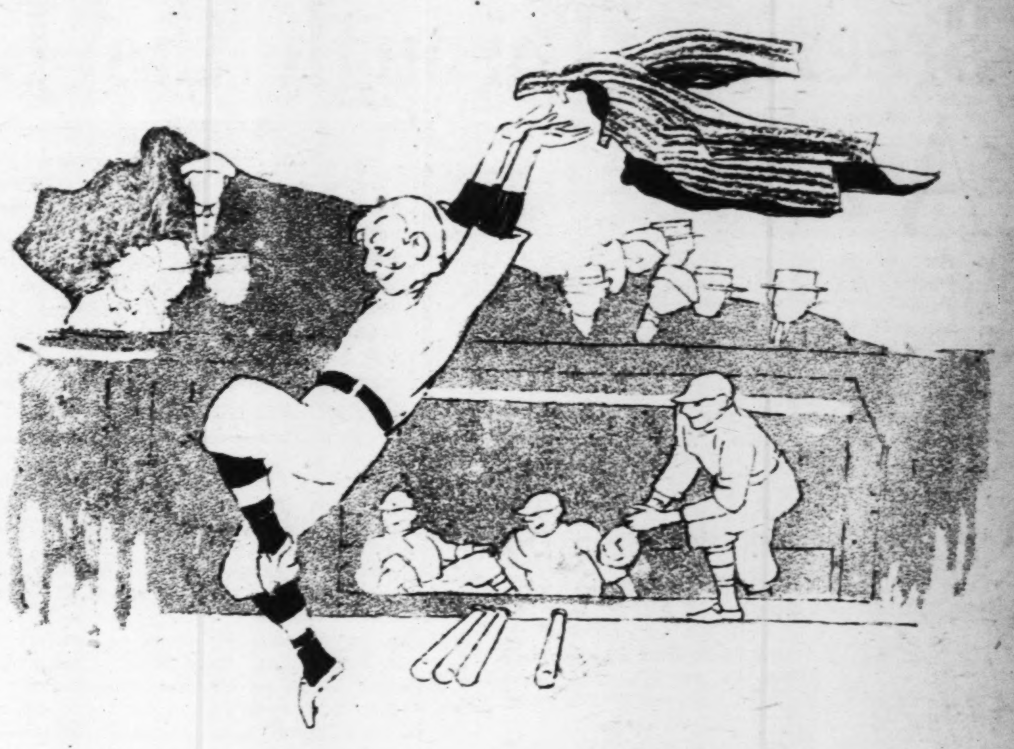
The chief objection to these conventions is that they are in effect a method of saying to the partner in so many words what the rules of the game do not permit: "I have a strong hand and want you to make a bid that will enable me either to go game or to defeat the opponent's declaration." A card game that allowed the players to talk about their hands would not be highly regarded, yet this is the purpose and effect of the doubling conventions.

The advocates of the informatory double are by no means agreed as to how it shall be applied. Work says that a double of a one or two suit bid calls for a bid by the doubler's partner, while Whitehead advises that the double or suit bid of three or less shall be regarded as calling for a declaration of the partner's best suit. Carvalho instructs his pupils that the informative double applies only to a one-trick declaration. Miss Irwin is opposed to the doubling conventions in any form, calling them dishonest, illegitimate, dangerous and wholly unnecessary.

Soon after the introduction of the informatory double of a one no-trump bid it was found that use of this convention could be defeated by an original declaration of two no-trumps, and Foster now holds that a double of a two no-trump bid calls for a bid by the doubler's partner. These complications seem to indicate that the only way out of the difficulties that arise through conflicting interpretations of the doubling conventions will be to follow Miss Irwin's advice, and abandon them altogether.

The United States internal revenue reports show that more than 25,000,000 packs of playing cards were sold during the fiscal year 1921. No statistics are available showing the heartbreakings, recriminations and happy homes blighted by misunderstandings of auction conventions, but the total must be a very large one.



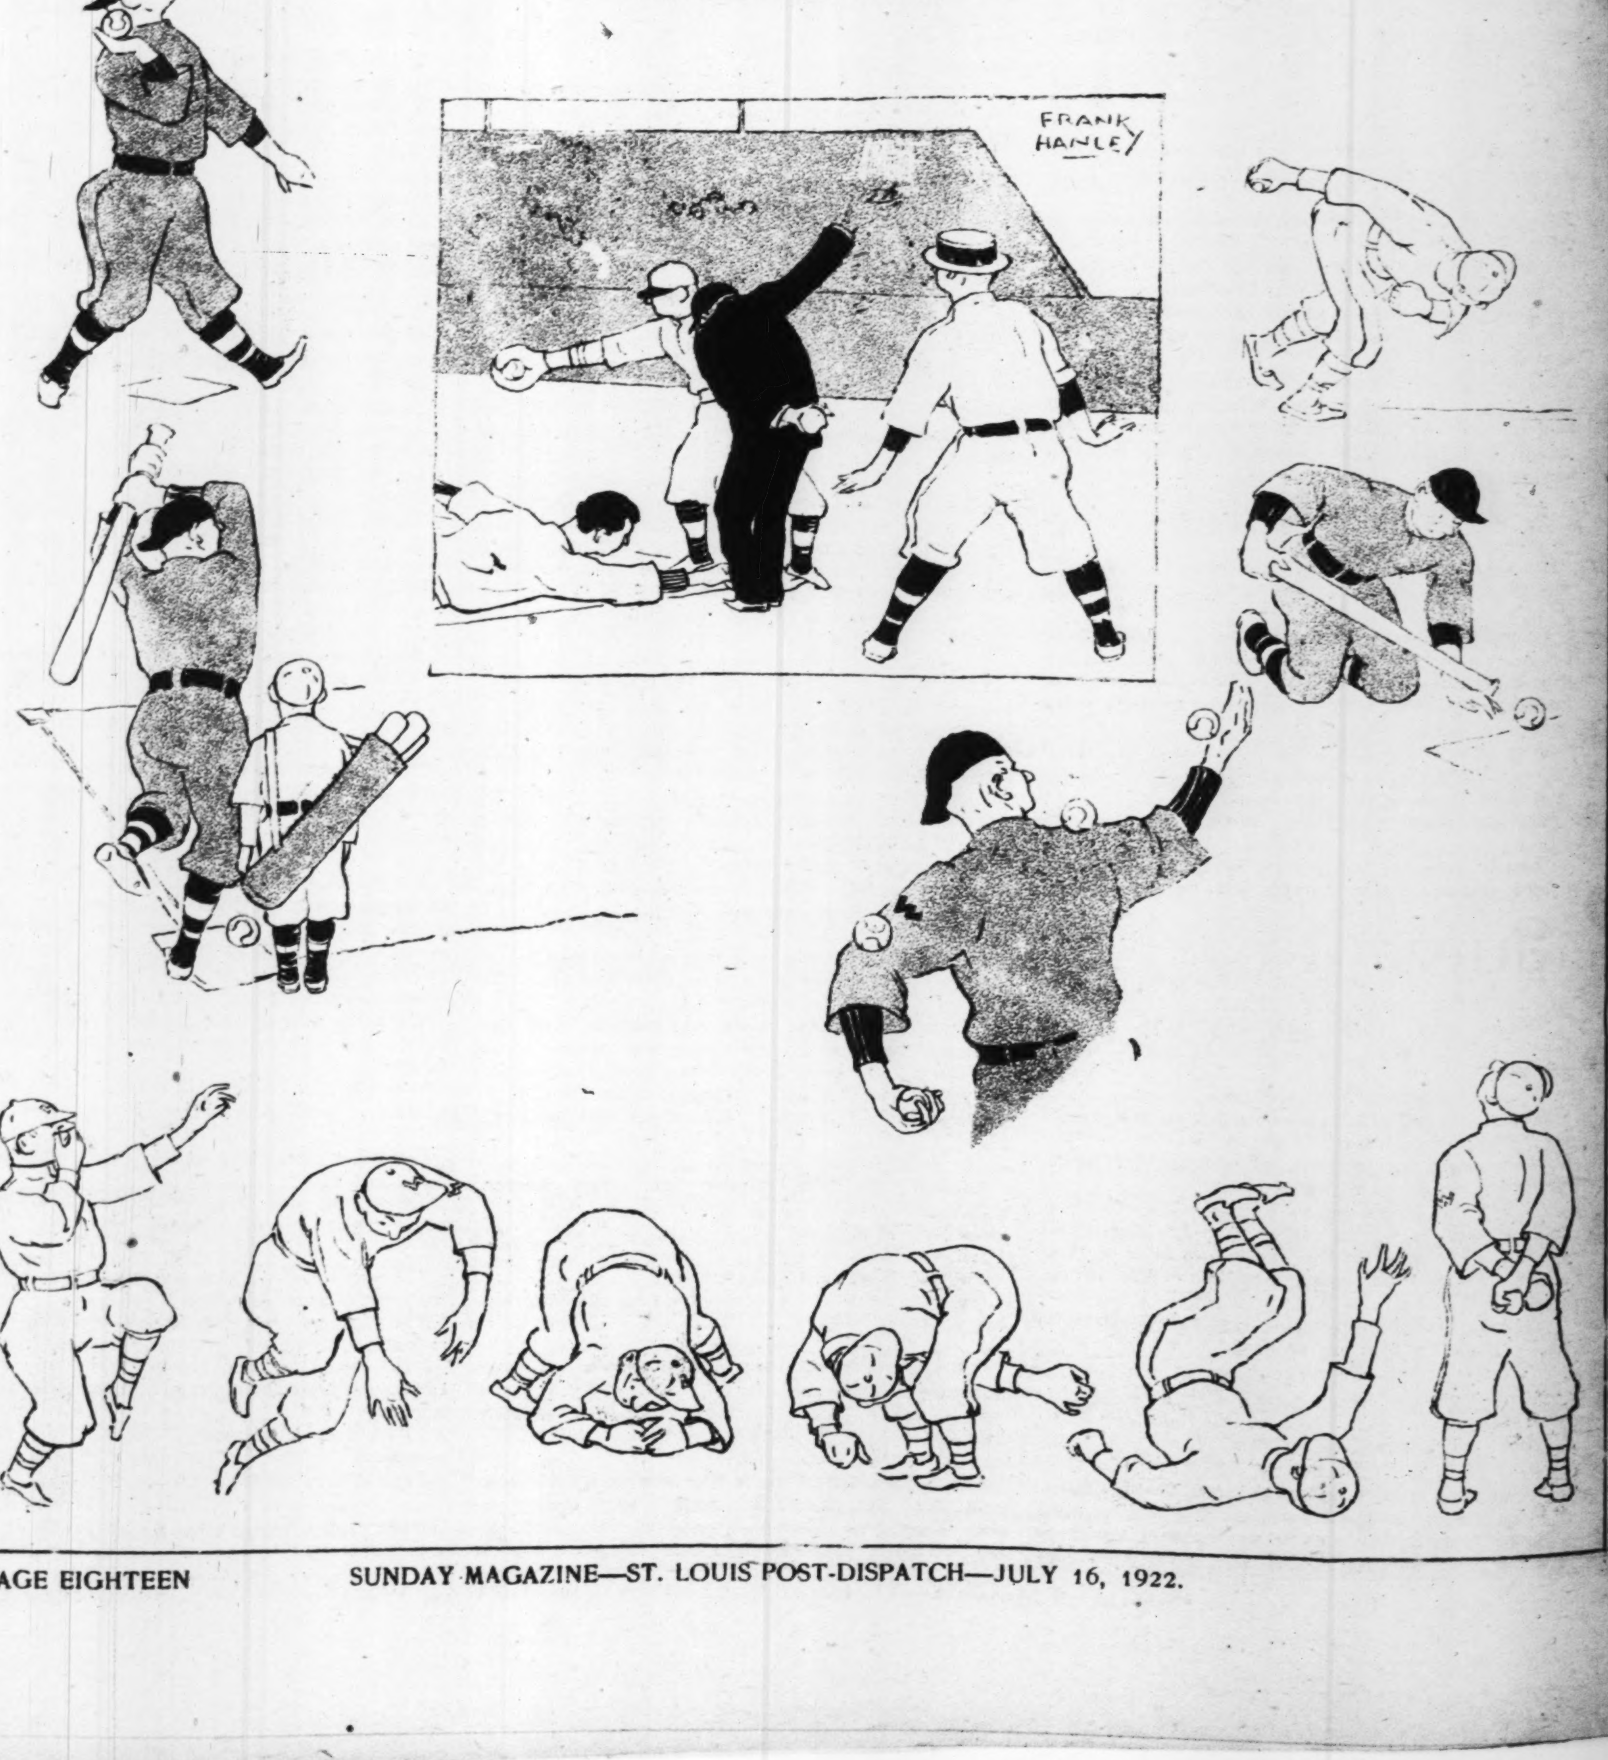


The Buffoon of Baseball

HUNDREDS of thousands of baseball "fans" consider Nick Altrock one of the great comic geniuses of our time. His job is to set the stands laughing while his teammates of the Washington American League club play baseball, and he does his task well.

Congress, the State Department, the Court of Claims, the White House, all the workers in the administration, know his antics. St. Louis and the rest of the cities in the League always applaud him. He was once a star pitcher with the Chicago "White Sox."

Here we have Altrock in action.



Breezing Through the Latest Joke Book

A GOOD many centuries ago, Scheberazade saved her life by relating good stories to the Sultan Shahriyar. The collected tales formed the basis for "The Book of the Thousand and One Nights." Now comes William T. Johnston, known in the newspaper world as Bill Johnston, and goes Scheberazade several better by gathering up just 2002 amusing stories. Some of his jokes may date back to Scheberazade's time, but there are laughs in the collection.

A YOUNG mother asked her butcher to weigh the baby.

Mr. Ball met a man whom he knew one morning, on his way to his office, and the man asked for a loan.

"Suppose I decide," said Mr. Ball, "to let you have the money, how do I know that I shall get it back at the time you mention?"

"I promise it," replied the man, "on the word of a gentleman."

"Well," replied Mr. Ball, "in that case I may conclude to do it. Come around to my house this evening and bring him with you."

In a small town in the South lives a physician noted for his reckless automobile driving. One day when he answered the telephone, a woman's voice asked him if he was going out driving that afternoon.

"No. I hardly think I have time this afternoon," replied the doctor. "But why do you ask?"

"Well," replied the anonymous questioner, "I want to send my little daughter downtown for some thread, if you're not."

"How is it," inquired a young bride of an older married friend, "that you always manage to have such delicious meat?"

"It is very simple," said the older woman. "I first select a good, honest butcher, and then I stand by him."

"You mean that you give him all your trade?"

"No, I mean that I stand by him while he is cutting the meat."

The farmer was showing me the result of fine growing weather and superior skill in cultivating, when I said to him:

"Well, you ought to be satisfied with such crops as these. There is certainly nothing lacking. You have no cause for complaint this year."

The old farmer scratched his head and stood in a meditative mood for a moment, then hesitatingly replied: "Well, you know, such crops as these is pesky hard on the soil."

"I suppose, in the collecting business, nearly every man you go to see asks you to call again?"

A small storekeeper, much to the astonishment of his neighbors, suddenly decorated his shop window with a gorgeous new blind. It was the sensation of the day, and few of his brethren failed to make some remark to him about it.

"Nice blind you've got there, Isaac," said one.

"Yes, Aaron."

"How much did it cost you, Isaac?"

"It didn't cost me anything, Aaron. My customers paid for it."

"What! Your customers paid for it?"

"Yes, Aaron. I put a leedle box on my counter, 'For the Blind,' and they paid for it."

"Daughter," called the father from his position at the top of the stairs at the well-known hour of 11:55 p. m., "doesn't that young man know how to say goodnight?"

"Does he?" echoed the young lady in the darkened hall. "Well, I should say he does."

"Waiter!—hic—bring me a dish of prunes."

Japanese advertisers believe in lavish use of similes. "Step inside!" is the invocation of a big multiple shop in Tokyo. "You will be welcomed as fondly as a ray of sunshine after a rainy day. Each one of our clerks is as amiable as a father seeking a husband for a dowerless daughter. Goods are dispatched to customers' houses with the rapidity of a shot from the cannon's mouth."

A grocer proclaims that his "superfine vinegar is more acid than the tongue of the most fiendish mother-in-law."

An English Lord who had just arrived from England was talking to an American Boy Scout.

"My grandfather," he said, "was a very great man. One day Queen Victoria touched his shoulder with a sword and made him a Lord."

"Aw, that's nothin'," the Boy Scout replied. "One day Red Wing, an Indian, touched my grandfather on the head with a tomahawk and made him an angel."

"Cancel my order at once," came the telegram to the factory during a business depression. The owner perpetrated the only new joke in the millenium. His telegram in reply read: "Your order cannot be canceled at once. You must take your turn."

The important young prosecutor was trying to make things hot for the burly negro, who had admitted in court that he was engaged in a craps game at the time of his arrest.

"Now," he said, "I want you to tell the jury just how you deal craps."

"Whass dat?" asked the witness, rolling his eyes.

"Address the jury," thundered the attorney, "and tell them how you deal craps."

"Never mind, darling," she comforted. "Baby doesn't know how it hurts."

Half an hour later wild shrieks from the baby made her run again to the nursery.

"Why, Billy," she cried, "what is the matter with baby?"

"Nothing, muzzer," said Billy, calmly; "only now he knows."

After suffering a long time with toothache, the young colored girl got up her courage to go to the dentist. The moment he touched the tooth she began to scream.

"Look here," he said. "You mustn't yell like that. Don't you know I'm a painless dentist?"

"Well, mebbe yo' is painless, suh," she said, "but Ah isn't."

"Are you addicted to drink?" And the witness indignantly replied: "That is my business." Ah," said the barrister, "is it your only business?"

Jenkins was sitting down to breakfast and was astounded to see in the paper an announcement of his own death. He rang up his friend Smith and asked: "Have you seen the notice of my death in the paper?"

"Yes," replied Smith. "Where are you speaking from?"

Johnny: Ma, little brother came from heaven, didn't he?

Mother: Yes, dear.

"Doesn't it give you a terrible feeling when you run over a man?" they asked him.

"Well, if he's a large man," replied the owner of the motor, "it does give one a pretty rough jolt."

Bobby: No, auntie; it was too dark to see him, but I heard what he said when he knocked his toe against the bedpost.

The American tourist in Scotland was being shown around by a guide and was affecting supreme indifference to everything.

"Loch Lomond? That puddle?" he exclaimed, with scorn. "Why, we have lots better ponds than that in the United States, and those mountains are only called hills back home. Scenery? Poof!"

"Ah, but mon," retorted Sandy, undisturbed. "D'ye see those three fine big buildings yon? They're distilleries, an' they're all working."

"I can't keep the visitors from coming up," said the office boy dejectedly to the editor. "When I say you're out they don't believe me. They say they must see you."

"Well," said the editor, "just tell them that's what they all say. I don't care if you sass them. I must have quietness."

That afternoon there called at the office a lady. She wanted to see the editor, and the boy assured her that it was impossible.

"But I must see him!" she protested. "I'm his wife!"

"That's what they all say," replied the boy.

"Why are you sobbing, my little man?"

"My pa's a millionaire philanthropist!"

"Well, well. That's nothing to cry about, is it?"

"It ain't, ain't it? He's just promised to give me $5 to spend for Christmas, provided I raise a similar amount."

A French woman, proud of her limited knowledge of English, and an American woman, proud of her limited knowledge of French, were introduced at an evening party. The French woman insisted on expressing herself in bad English, and the American woman would talk nothing but bad French.

When the guests began to depart they were still at it. At last they rose to go, and here is their watery farewell:

"Reservoir," said the American.

"Tanks," responded the new friend.

The medium, after a good deal of futile work, said to her:

"The conditions this evening seem unfavorable. I can't seem to establish communication with Mr. Smith, ma'am."

"Well, I'm not surprised," said the widow, with a glance at the clock. "It's only 8:30 now, and John never did show up till about 3 a. m."

bursting in on me with a wild tale that began with something about a peachblow vase in the Art Museum and ended with a threat to go to New York and whip a certain editor within an inch of his life."

He paused, expectantly. But Nan was beyond words. She could only gaze at him, wide-eyed and bewildered.

"He's young and impetuous and rather foolish," he resumed in the same tone, "but he's my grandson and I'm sort of fond of him. Just now he's seeing indigo because he believes somebody doesn't care a snap of her finger for him, else she'd have trusted him, no matter what anybody said. But I persuaded him to stay in the office while I—well, investigated."

Nan struggled to find her voice. "Then you're—you're"——

"I'm the eccentric old Bostonian, always doing queer things," he acknowledged. Then, his eyes searching hers as if he would see straight through them to her heart, he added: "Are you absolutely sure you don't want him, my dear? Because he seems absolutely sure he wants you."

Nan's eyes fell. "He—he should have told me," she murmured.

"I've admitted that he's young and foolish. And love made him a little worse than usual, that's all. He had a notion that if you knew just who he is—or perhaps I should say who I am—you'd be stand-offish, because—shall I tell you exactly what he said to me?"

Nan managed to nod.

"He said: 'I didn't have much chance, anyway; and I thought I'd better go slow, because she's as proud as the devil, anyway.' "

Mae, returning from her lunch at that instant, saw them standing there.

"Egypt's Queen!" she gasped. "She's showing him the $1000 set. She must have gone clean daffy!"

Interested in spite of herself, she moved toward them. He saw her first. He regarded her, humor lighting his eyes. Then he turned back to Nan.

"I'm an old busybody, but my years bring me certain privileges. I'm glad that I chose to exercise them, even if it seems inexcusable to you," he said. Then, raising his voice, he added: "You can charge the set and send it."

Nan looked up, incredulous. "Then you really—really want it?"

"I want that—too," he said, significantly.

An elderly woman, who wished to see glazed teapots, kept her busy for the next twenty minutes. Then:

"Well," Mae demanded of Nan, "who was he? Croesus J. Midas himself?"

"He wanted a tea set for a wedding present," said Nan, evasively.

"I'll say so," acknowledged Mae. "But who'd 'a' thought that old coot had a nickel to his name. A thousand-dollar tea set! Some people certainly have all the luck. What else did he buy?"

Nan looked at her, perplexed. "What else?"

"He said he wanted that, too. Say, what are you blushing about?"

From the elevator well came the sound of a door slid open and the elevator man's husky baritone: "China, bathroom fixtures, fireplace fixtures"——

Nan, seeking escape, moved swiftly that way, and then, as swiftly, sought sanctuary behind one of those pillars which give salesladies a chance to hide like startled nymphs, from prospective purchasers. Only he wasn't a prospective purchaser and he had already seen her.

"Nan!" he cried, breathlessly—anybody who covers the ground between the Ames Building and Endicott's as swiftly as he had cannot be other than breathless. "Is it true?"

"Is—is what true?"

"What grandfather said he's—he's sure of?" he demanded. "And will you come with me to take dinner with him tonight? He told me to ask you. Will you?"

It was much more than an invitation to dinner that he was so wistfully waiting her answer to, and she knew it.

"I . . . does he really want me . . . to?" she temporized, in a voice she hardly recognized as her own.

"Does he! Oh, Nan, he's as crazy about you as I am."

At that Mae, who had been listening with both her ears and her mouth as well—at least it was wide open—shrugged her shoulders expressively. "Oh, don't mind me," she said. "I'll beat it."

To Stella Stacy, in bathroom fixtures, she unburdened herself:

"Oh, she's hooked him all right. Some men fall for that stand-offish game. Me, I'm just natural and myself at all times. I don't pretend to be a modest violet, but, believe me"—virtuously—"if a guy rushed in and tried to propose to me during business hours I'd tell him where he got off."

"Even if he had a millionaire grandfather?" suggested Stella, unkindly.

"I wouldn't marry a man named Sky for two million," retorted Mae. She sniffed disdainfully. "Sky! Sky terrier, I say!"

Eventually, however, she relented and sent Mrs. Schuyler Taylor a wedding present.

"Her and me," she explained to all and sundry, "worked in the same department, y'know. And we were just like sisters. We had a lot in common y'see, because we didn't either of us hafta work—just doing it for fun, y'know!"

THE OLDEST, AND GREATEST, OF ALL WARS

THE great war of the world was described and its increasing virulence foretold by Mr. Lefroy at the Royal Institution, London, in a lecture as grim as it was economically important, says a recent issue of the Daily Mail. The point was that man is not as dominant as he thinks he is. The real dominance belongs to the insect.

The lecturer gave fourteen examples, all more or less blood-curdling. His first instance was the boll weevil, which attacks the cotton plant. No preventive has been found after twenty years' work, and its ravages are steadily increasing, he said.

Nor is the cotton weevil the worst insect. Man's most threatening enemy in the world appears to be the Argentine ant. It reached England in 1918 and has spread half over the world, especially Spain, since 1897. This minute insect has eaten babies in their cradles in Argentine, has completely wiped out the birds of Madeira by eating their nestlings, and is ruining both the orange and coffee harvests in many places.

It often kills the plants, not directly but by encouraging other insects, especially the green fly, which it keeps as man keeps cows. It even builds houses for them, acts as doctor to them and defends them from enemies. At the same time the ant, which is omnivorous, carries and spreads many of the worst human diseases.

Lefroy said many startling things, including the following statements:

The flea has caused 7,000,000 deaths in India by carrying plague.

The housefly kills 1000 children a year in England by imparting infant diarrhoea, and flies are as numerous as they were 500 years ago. They carry typhoid, enteric cholera and dysentery.

A number of women are on the verge of nervous breakdown because of the prevalence of that almost invisible mite which recently turned a man out of his house in Cardiff.

The beetle that destroyed the oak roof of Westminster Hall is at work in St. Paul's and very many churches and old buildings.

The louse is the cause of typhus in Russia and will wipe nations out if conditions prevent cleanliness.

In spite of such horrors, Lefroy said, he is an optimist. Intellectual man should win against blind insects. They were working for millions of years before man arrived, and it is only ten years ago that the British Board of Agriculture appointed its first economic biologist.

Says Insect Powder Is Dangerous Explosive

"WE MUST regard dust, even the kind used to kill insects, as an explosive material quite as dangerous as dynamite, powder or gasoline. We must take the necessary steps for protection of life, foodstuffs and property."

This is the opinion of David J. Price, engineer in charge of the dust explosion investigations by the United States Department of Agriculture, speaking before the Millers' National Federation at Kansas City, recently. During recent years 242 dust explosions in industrial plants have been reported and 52 of these caused the loss of 379 lives and more than $30,000,000.

It is possible to get an explosion with any sort of combustible material when it is finely divided, forming a dust or powder suspended in the air. In a factory making a lime-sulphur insect powder, the fine sulphur, which burns readily when mixed with air, was the cause of at least seven explosions. Explosions have also occurred with aluminum dust, hard-rubber dust, wood and similar industrial material, for anything which will burn may also explode when in finely powdered form.

The proper mechanical removal of the dust and prevention of its accumulation on ledges, beams and girders throughout plants will prevent catastrophes, Price says.

Pure face powder cannot injure the most delicate baby skin. The trouble is, too many powders are made in the old-fashioned way, with rice powder. Rice powder is starchy, and, like bread flour, it is quickly turned into a gluey paste by the moisture of the skin. This paste clogs the cuticle, swells in the pores, causing enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder irritations. A specialist makes a harmless powder by using an ingredient doctors prescribe to heal the skin. Every time you apply this improved powder you give your complexion a real beauty treatment. There is a thousand dollar guarantee of purity printed on the box, certifying it does not contain white lead, rice powder or any harmful substance. This guaranteed pure powder is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because it is pure and because it stays on, La-may is now used by over a million American women; it is now the most popular complexion powder sold in New York. Women who have used even the most expensive face powders say they cannot buy better powder than La-may anywhere at any price.

—STORY OF YOUNG LOVE

piker. And another is that if you think he can hang around the employes' entrance like a lost dog looking for its master without everybody sitting up and taking notice, you've got another guess coming. There's talk already, and there'll be more before you're through."

In which Mae spoke as prophet, more of a prophet, indeed, than she realized. That very night, being what she described as an "off night," meaning that there was no masculine sail on her horizon, she retired to her room, attired herself in peignoir and bed cap, and proceeded with the perusal of her favorite publication. This was a weekly devoted to highly spiced gossip about people moving in circles to which Mae, in her dreams, aspired.

Even the breadth of a continent or an absolute lack of any idea who was referred to failed to dull Mae's avidity. Judge, therefore, of her interest in this item:

"We wonder if the well-known eccentricity of a certain elderly Bostonian of true Brahmin stock will permit him to countenance the intrigue his grandson is indulging in. The grandson, known to his friends by a nickname more descriptive of the firmament, may consider himself circumspect; but spending much time in the vicinity of the employes' entrance of a certain department store is hardly a way to avoid gossip. An added piquancy is given his escapade in that his sister, a bud of last season and a member of the Vincent Club and the Sewing Circle, is to be married in early September. No one expects that she will be asked to welcome the young man's inamorata as a sister-in-law, but one cannot but wonder what her emotions will be when gossip percolates through to Newport, where she now is. The young man is associated with his grandfather, who has long maintained offices in the Ames Building for the handling of his considerable fortune, much of which is in real estate. The question to which everyone in 'the know' eagerly awaits an answer is whether the grandfather is acquiescent, believing that young men should be winked at while sowing their wild oats, or just unaware of what is going on. If the latter proves true, we may yet see him advised of what is transpiring, acting the role of a bull in a china shop!"

To describe any young woman, under any circumstances, as simply pop-eyed, is ungallant. But no other terms would have sufficed for Mae just then.

"Well, for the love of Pete!" she gasped. "Wait until I show little Miss Nose-in-the-air that! Perhaps after this she'll give me credit for knowing a thing or two, and not try the high and lofty when I tell her something for her own good."

Nan, however, failed to rise to Mae's expectations.

"She tried to make me believe it was nothing in her life," Mae confided to Stella Stacy, in bathroom fixtures, at noon. "But she didn't fool me! Not a bit! You'll remember I never trusted him. And, say what you will, an honorable gentleman wouldn't complicate a lady by putting her in such an equivalent position."

From a distance came a hail: "Miss Mulcahey. M-i-ss Mul-ca-hey!"

Mae ignored it.

"Believe me," she went on, "I'd like to be a fly on the wall when she lights into him this noon. Yes, he was waiting, the same as usual. Gertie Noonan saw him outside. I'll bet he gets a good earful before she's quite through with him."

The advent of Julie Dort, laundry furnishings and electric washing machines, interrupted her.

"There's an old gent looking for tea sets out there," said Julie.

"I should worry," retorted Mae. "It's time Nan was back to relieve me for lunch, anyway."

Nevertheless, she did move languidly forth.

"Sumpthing I can show you?" she asked, without enthusiasm.

The old gentleman gave her a quick glance. "I don't know exactly what I want," he said slowly. "It's to be a present for a bride. I thought that perhaps a tea set would be nice."

Now, no girl becomes a saleswoman in Endicott's until she has passed through a three days' course of intensive training. But to Mae's way of thinking, salesmanship was wasted on certain people. She had already inventoried her customer and had his number! She gestured toward a flowered nightmare.

"Special—two twenty-nine," she vouchsafed, negligently.

Her gaze traveled off into distance, while one trim toe tip-tapped the floor impatiently. What had got into Nan—did she think that nobody else had dates with gentlemen friends to keep?

"Have you any other designs in stock?" interposed a meek voice.

Mae gave him a look. Just a look! Then she nodded toward a whole table full of tea sets.

"All specials," she said. "The gold bands, two eighty-nine; rose and luster, three seventy-five; fruit and flowers, four and a quarter—if you want to go that high."

Once again she let her glance and her thought pass away from him. She was unaware he was studying her or that his eyes were keen and searching.

"May I ask your name?" he asked, mildly.

Mae wheeled upon him. "If you're hinting that you're going to report me," she said, freezingly, "go ahead. My number's eighteen twenty-three."

Just then Nan appeared.

"Will you please wait on this gen'lemum, Miss Wrenn?" called Mae. "I'm going to lunch, if you don't mind."

In the tail of which was concealed the sting of reproof, and Nan realized it.

"I'm sorry I was late," she murmured.

But in the dressing room her mood changed. She had glimpsed in Nan's eyes that which filled her with almost virtuous satisfaction.

"They must of sure had one grand spat," she assured herself.

They had. As Sky had eagerly sped to meet her she had taken a tight grip on herself. She reminded herself that what she had read made no difference to her. None at all! Only he hadn't been honest with her, and she had no idea of eating lunch with him that day, or any other.

"Where shall we go today?" he demanded, blissfully ignorant of this.

Now was the time to tell him, calmly, but with utter finality, that there were reasons—she had no intention of going into details—why she preferred to eat alone hereafter, so far as he was concerned, and that in the future he was to consider her—no friend of his. She had decided just how she would say it, refusing any explanation; but that had been thought out without his eyes meeting hers. And they looked so nice. And honest!

"I'd—I'd rather walk first," she told him, and bit her lip to keep it from quivering.

"Something wrong?" he said, with instant sympathy. "What is it?"

"I—I"—— she began.

And then it had all come out, in exactly the way she had determined it mustn't. He listened, his lips setting the tighter, his eyes on her with an expression in them that somehow made her angry. What right had he to look reproachful?

"You mean," he broke in finally, "that you believe such a thing? Printed in a paper like that?"

Nan's heart—a modern business woman really should not have such a thing—leaped at that. Perhaps——

"You mean—it isn't true?"

If he had been less angry himself, less the affronted young male, his heart would have leaped, too, at the eagerness that, without her realizing it, shone in her eyes and vibrated through her voice.

"Oh, it's true enough, about my grandfather . . . and my sister," he admitted.

He paused to consider her. The eagerness was gone from her eyes now. She didn't, he decided, care for him. Not the least little bit. Else she couldn't look at him like that—so hard and unyielding.

"I suppose," he said, bitterly, "that it's useless for me to try to explain."

Nan managed to make her eyes meet him and to control her voice.

"It is," she said, firmly.

For an instant he gazed at her. Then, without a word, he turned away. As for Nan, an instant later the traffic policeman took her by the arm.

"Look here, young woman," he said. "You wait until I give the signal for crossing the street or you'll land in the hospital."

Nan hardly heard him. When he released her she continued on to the Common. To think that he—that he was that kind! Hardly conscious of what she did she slipped to a seat beside the Frog Pond. Men passing by eyed her curiously, but she was unconscious of them. She cast a quick glance at the clock in the steeple of the Park Street Church.

"After 1!" she murmured, aghast, and started forthwith for Endicott's.

The woman who works has no time to weep, at least during business hours. And, anyway, she had no intention of weeping. She——

"Perhaps I can interest you in china sets," suggested the old gentleman, without malice.

She glanced up and saw, not the battered hat nor his shabby overcoat, but his face. A shrewd, keen face, yet kindly, as he smiled at her.

"Oh, excuse me," she apologized. And, hardly realizing what she was saying, added, "I'm a little upset."

"Young people often are," he observed. His eyes studied her an instant longer. Then: "Haven't you any tea sets that I could present to a bride with some degree of taste—something that wouldn't cause her to put poison in my tea the first time I called on her?"

"Of course," she said. "Over this way. . . . This is the set of a Thousand Wise Men. You can see their faces in the cup here."

She passed it to him. He held it, in the masculine way, gingerly, as if it were a baby. "How much is this set?" he asked.

"It depends. Half a dozen cups and saucers would cost $75. If you wanted the whole service, and perhaps matched plates, too"——

"It would cost much more," he commented, dryly. He handed the cup back to her. "I wonder if a tea set is what I really want, after all. Or perhaps I should say, what she wants."

Mae, one may be sure, would have been on to that dodge. "Fourflusher," would have been her inner comment. "He's gotten in too deep and is trying to back out without losing face."

Nan, however, was—well, less experienced, perhaps. "It depends upon what else she'll have for presents. If she has lots of other things, too, she'd adore a tea set."

He seemed to turn this over in his mind. Then his eyes fell upon the set of sets, so regal that it had a glass case all to itself, like ceramics, in the Art Museum.

"What's that one?" he asked.

She paused to stoop and open the case.

"Do you go to the Art Museum often?"

"Why, I've been several times, although"—she blushed unaccountably—"not lately. Being in the china department here, I was interested in knowing all I could about ceramics."

"I begin to suspect you of ambitions," he broke in. "What are they?"

"Why—to be a buyer some day."

"To be a buyer," he repeated. Then, very deliberately, he added: "Does that preclude marriage? Or have you never considered that?"

The quick color flooded her cheeks. Yet, somehow, she never thought of resenting the question. His hat was shabby and so was his coat, but he had the head of an old Roman Emperor.

"Never!" she said, and if some people would have wondered at the utter finality of her tone, the old gentleman apparently did not.

"I'm sorry," he said, yet there was a note of whimsicality in his voice. "Because a certain young man absolutely ruined my daily routine a while ago by

A BULL IN A CHINA SHOP

by Royal Brown

EVE ate of the tree of knowledge, and departed from Eden. Nanette Wrenn read a book, and shook the dust of Leicester from her feet. The dust, in so far as her trimly shod feet were concerned, is purely figurative, for Nan drove the car to the station. Her father, who had played hooky from business to see her off, sat beside her. Her mother was in the rear seat.

"She's so reckless," mourned Mrs. Wrenn, to herself. "Oh, how I wish she'd never seen that book."

The book she referred to was "Modern Woman and Business." It was supposed to be inspirational. At that moment, however, Mrs. Wrenn would have catalogued it among the works of the devil.

Nan, however, was swinging free of the steering wheel with the lithe grace of her years, which totaled 22. There was not such an awful lot of her, but what there was was crisp and decisive. Her hair was frankly brown unalloyed, but it was pretty and she was wise enough to wear it in a way that revealed the lines of her shapely little head. As she thrust a stray wisp of it back into place she turned gray, beautifully lashed eyes toward her mother.

"Now, do be a duck, like father," she beseeched. "I'll be with Aunt Jennie, and nobody is going to kidnap me."

The train was whistling for the curve, and so she broke off to give her mother a kiss and a hug. Then she turned to her father. He, having swallowed his emotions, managed to smile quite creditably.

"Well, Nan," said he, "I suppose you'll come rolling home in a $5000 automobile and lift the mortgage on the old homestead"——

Nan's mother produced a handkerchief. "Give my love to Aunt Jennie," she whispered. "And be sure to wear your rubbers."

And so Nan went to Boston, her fortune for to make. She had set herself a definite goal (as the book recommended), and a week later the Leicester Item, which ever follows the fortunes of Leicester's sons and daughters afield, announced her first step on the journey toward this.

"Miss Nanette Wrenn of West Leicester has accepted a position in Endicott's, the big Boston department store. She is employed in the china department, on the fourth floor there. Her many friends wish her all success."

Now, Endicott's, in Boston, is a typical department store, with 200-odd departments. The fourth floor is the province of china, bathroom fixtures, kitchenware, glassware, candlesticks, laundry furnishings, fireplace fixtures and—of vast barren vistas, with here and there a supporting pillar, behind which salesladies may hide, like startled nymphs, from prospective patrons. In short, the fourth floor of Endicott's is like unto the fourth floor of any department store displaying similar wares. Or, at least, it was until Nan appeared there, to assist the blond and vivacious Miss Mulcahey.

Miss Mulcahey's friends called her Mae. That privilege she graciously extended to Nan, forthwith.

"So long as we're stuck in this hole," said she, "we might as well be friends. Us girls ought to stick together. That's my motto."

Composedly she patted the blond puff that flared wide from either ear.

"I don't hafta work," she explained. "Ma was simply wild when I gotta job. But no girl wants to stick about home."

"I'll show you the ropes," offered Mae. "I'm not the sort that tries to cut a new girl out of all the sales."

Nor was she.

"Will you please show this lady plain glass tumblers, Miss Wren," she would suggest, ever so graciously.

Of course, if the customer happened to want dinner sets, that was different. To what she termed the swell trade Mae condescended.

"I've been here longer," she explained to Nan, "and know how to handle that sort. What you want is experience."

Experience was, indeed, what Nan was after.

"The goal of most ambitious young saleswomen is to become one of the fabulously salaried buyers who go abroad two or three times a year. * * * The buyer's job is one of the biggest in the business, requiring a fine grasp of human nature, knowledge of commodities and administrative ability of the highest order. The aspirant * * * is interested in more than the details of her own job. The manufacture of the articles she sells, their history"——

Thus "Modern Woman and Business," speaking as a prophet! To Nan, Endicott's was an empire to be conquered. She wished she might have been set down in some other province than chinaware, where the overturn is slow and the possibilities of achievement fewer; but, as chinaware it was, she mapped out her campaign and put it into execution.

"What d'ye know," exclaimed Mae to one of several masculine admirers. "She went up to the public lib'ry and got some books on the hist'ry of china. Not the country where they eat rats, silly—but the china like we have in the department. How it's made and all that. Can you beat it?"

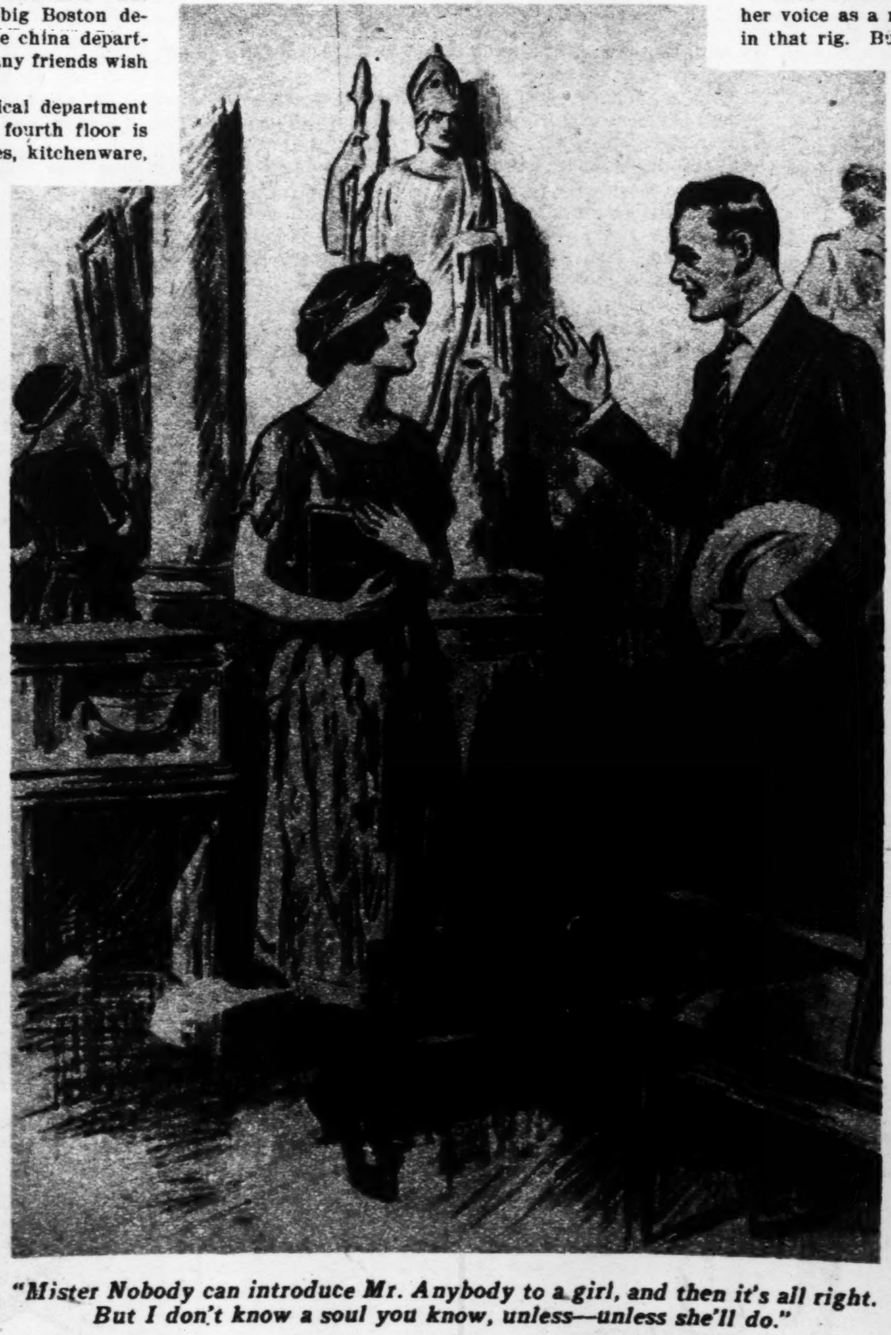
In the public library, even as Mae had said, Nan found the books she wanted. These she studied with the zeal of a young professor preparing for his Ph. D. The Art Museum was free on Sundays. There china became ceramics, the prose of Endicott's display tables became bits of poetry displayed in glass cases. Potters long since turned to clay had fashioned them, iridescent, opalescent jars and vases, exquisite plates that ran the gamut of every color known to man, and caught every vagrant gleam of light and glorified it.

There was, too, a peachblow vase which was miraculous, so miraculous that some of its prodigal color seemed to escape and tint Nan's cheeks. At least so the tall young man thought. She looked up, suddenly conscious of his presence, and surprised his scrutiny. And then they both blushed.

"Oh, I'm sorry," he said, impulsively. "I didn't mean to be rude, but"——

His eyes were straightforward, clear and candid as Nan's own. No one could help knowing that he was nice. At least, so Nan assured herself afterward, when she had time to wonder just how she had permitted herself to be drawn into conversation, at first anent the peachblow vase, and then—other things. Such as ceramics he had seen in the Louvre, in Paris.

"I got in the habit of dropping into the art museum while I was across," he explained. "I became interested and now I often drop in here."



"Mister Nobody can introduce Mr. Anybody to a girl, and then it's all right. But I don't know a soul you know, unless—unless she'll do."

Nan's mother would have been scandalized, but the peachblow glow stayed in Nan's cheeks all that afternoon.

"Oh, you Nan! A pick-up!" cried Mae the very next noon. "I'd never have thought it. What's his name and what does he do?"

Nan just then would have put the peachblow vase to shame. If Mae had only not been with her when she encountered him again on Tremont street, and nodded. Or, better still, if she had only had the wit to evade Mae's inevitable demand for information. Now she was in for it!

"I don't know," she confessed honestly.

"Well, you are slow! Why didn't you ask? He looks all right, but you never can tell. A girl has to be careful. Grace Sloane met a man at a dance last week and she simply raved about him. She said he was a perfectly wonderful dancer and in business with his grandfather"——

Nan bit her lip—she had just been on the point of saying that he had said something about being in business with his grandfather.

"And only yesterday she saw him driving a street car. You take it from me, girlie, and find out just what his job is and what he pulls down per week before you go very far with him."

Nan retorted she had no idea of going any distance whatever with him. Indeed, as she assured herself, she might never see him again. And, of course, it wasn't because she had the slightest idea that he would be at the Art Museum the next Sunday that she went there—or spent ten minutes more than usual in front of her mirror before going.

He was there! And she could hardly utterly ignore him.

"We haven't been introduced yet," he began.

"I wondered if you had forgotten that," she murmured.

"I haven't," he acknowledged; "I know it isn't done. Mister Nobody can introduce Mister Anybody to a girl, and then it's all right. But I don't know a soul you know, unless—unless she'll do."

Nan's eyes, revealing her surprise, followed the wave of his hand and met the glance of Minerva, eying them with cold and impeccable dignity.

"Miss Minerva," he explained, "has permanently lost her voice as a result of standing around in drafts in—in that rig. But as a mutual acquaintance of us both she begs permission to present Mr. Taylor to"——

He paused, his eyes pleading that she would not fail him. And—well, the modern business woman must learn to judge character for herself.

"Miss Wrenn," she supplied.

Now, it is possible that the hot wave that ushered in July would have made the Art Museum and the Public Library less attractive to Nan, anyway. This was the first summer she had worked, and the book had emphasized physical fitness as a prime requisite of the modern business woman. This being so, she saw no reason why, with all outdoors calling her of a Saturday afternoon or a Sunday, she shouldn't go to Riverside for canoeing or to Nantasket for a swim, when Sky Taylor suggested such trips. As he inevitably did. Especially as she always paid her own share, that, as the book had informed her, being the modern business woman's way.

She learned that his grandfather handled real estate and such things, and had an office in the Ames Building, and that he had a sister, who was visiting friends at the seashore. Beyond that she never questioned.

But such meager details failed to satisfy Mae.

"Yeah!" she scoffed. "The Ames Building is full of offices. Which one? And as for that sister business, how do you know that she isn't waiting on table at a summer hotel somewhere?"

Nan flushed. "I don't see why a man and a girl can't be just good friends"——

"Friends! I suppose he's always popping up around lunch time because you're a first aid to digestion."

"I pay my own check. And I don't see why it's anybody's business"——

"Believe me, you've got a lot to learn. One thing is that a man who'll let a girl pay her own check is a

TAKE it from Dr. Lillian Delger Powers, there is no better pet than a squirrel. And as Dr. Powers has 130 of them in her home she is in a position to speak with some authority. But because she shares her home with 130 squirrels there is no occasion for the reader to jump to the obvious conclusion. Let the squirrels do the jumping, and you arrive at your conclusion by reading this nutty effusion to the end. You will learn much about squirrels as pets, for no one knows more about them than Dr. Powers, and Dr. Powers talked with me for hours on the subject.

On the second and third floors of her large, rambling house near White Plains, N. Y., is a series of wire cages which contain practically every variety of squirrel. There are "Mahogany Reds" from South America, five-colored Prevostis from the Malay Peninsula, as well as the well-known gray variety so common in Central Park. In fact, there are so many of them that even the bathrooms of her home are utilized to house these pets, every one of which bears a name and to Mrs. Powers, at least, possesses a distinct personality.

Consequently it is not surprising that her country estate is called The Red Squirrel Farm and that at its very entrance there are painted squirrels on its gate posts.

For seventeen years Dr. Powers has devoted most of her life to raising these pets and studying their habits. And she has not only written scientific books about them, but has made the most elaborate motion pictures of their lives. In short, squirrels interest her more than anything else, except, possibly, her husband, and she is a woman of means and the Board of Health does not object—she is able to indulge in her bushy-tailed whims.

"I became interested in squirrels when my husband and I were traveling in Ceylon about seventeen years ago," said Dr. Powers, in answer to my obvious question. "As we were driving along a road near Kandy a native offered one for sale—a tiny red squirrel, very much like this one."

"It was such a cunning little animal that we bought it," she went on, "and for the next few weeks I was up at all hours of the night taking care of it. I didn't know then how necessary it is to keep the young ones warm and the morning after we had bought it it was cold and apparently dead. My husband, who is also a physician, and I worked for hours to revive it and we were successful, and during the next few weeks I got very much attached to the little animal." And she stroked the little "Mahogany Red," or Variabilis (to give it its scientific name) which she held in her hands.

"When we settled down in Germany, where squirrels are considered great pets, I began collecting unusual varieties of them. We lived near a seaport and ship captains from all over the world brought them to me. I soon discovered that they were the most affectionate of all pets—with all the traits of a dog or cat, and with infinitely more personality.

"And so I have never been without them since. I moved out here from New York City a few years ago to have more room to take care of them, and, as you will see, practically all the second and third floors of our home are given over to them."

With this introduction Dr. Powers conducted me to the second floor, where we entered a maze of wire cages, filled with the limbs of trees, on which were fastened little boxes—the homes of her pets.

And I will swear that the squirrel gave me a wink.

"He's a fine husband, the father of four handsome boys and true to his mate," my cicerone went on. "You may not know it, but squirrels are very much like us. They are true to their mates—until some vamp comes along and leads the male astray. I have many happy families here. The little animals love to be together and they spend hours spooning and kissing each other. They're so affectionate."

I don't remember the names of all the squirrels I met, but I was personally introduced to a score or more, including the most beautiful squirrel I have ever seen—a Prevosti from the Straits Settlements. He had a coat of no less than five colors, including a waistcoat of reddish-brown.

"I have to feed the young ones every two hours," Dr. Powers informed me, as she took a glass eyedropper and, filling it with warm milk, placed it at the mouth of a tiny baby squirrel. "I often get up several times during the night to take care of my pets—to see if they are warm enough. You see, they are very delicate and I have to keep them wrapped in lambs' wool to protect them from sudden changes in the temperature."

"What varieties make the best pets?" I asked, for I wanted some practical information about them.

"The ordinary gray squirrel one sees in Central Park," she replied. "It is amazing how tame they become. I let them have the run of the house. They're very affectionate and faithful. They cost very little and it costs almost nothing to feed them.

"To be sure," she went on, "they're playful and they'll bury a few nuts for the proverbial rainy day, but if you'll give them the limb of a tree to scratch on and play with them from time to time, you'll find them delightful pets."

In the dining room there is nothing but squirrel decorations, paintings, porcelains and carvings—all of squirrels in various poses. I was tempted to ask if they were good to eat, but refrained with an effort.

"You see, I'm very fond of squirrels," she concluded as I took my departure. "And I hope you'll come back and visit them again."

Personally, I think it's enough to be chased by a squirrel in Central Park. But your conclusion, which I'm sure you've arrived at, may be something else again.

At any rate, they make their tails cover their backs. Which is to their credit.

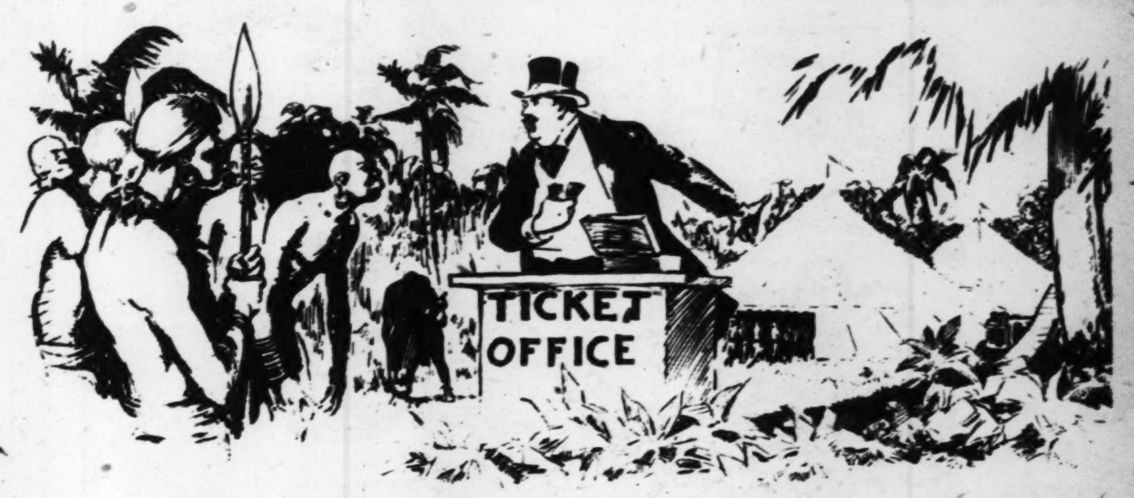
Big Game Passing From the Jungles

Lion hunter returning from 5000-mile tramp through least known parts of Africa, foresees day when king of beasts no longer will run free but will be a jealously guarded denizen of zoological gardens—Prince William of Sweden recommends protective measures for monarchs of forest against greed of sport and commercial hunters :: ::



(The author of this article is the second son of the King of Sweden and has spent many of his thirty-five odd years in Africa. He is an enthusiastic zoologist and has made extensive contributions to British as well as Swedish museums. The present article was written after he had tramped 5000 miles on foot through the least known parts of Africa.)

By PRINCE WILLIAM OF SWEDEN.

IT IS going to be an unhappy day—and one that may come very soon—for the sportsman and the nature lover when the king of jungle beasts is added to the already long list of extinct animals. Without its lions, Africa will lose much of the awe and majesty with which it is invested in the minds of most of us.

Yet, at the present rate of extermination, combined with other circumstances, I can foresee a day when the lion will be a jealously guarded denizen of zoological gardens; when the hunter will have to be content with going out after less important and less fearsome game. Then Africa's star-ridden nights will be shorn of the greater part of their glamor and mystery and the jungle no longer will echo and re-echo with that sound that still fills the mind of even the most hardened hunter with fear and awe.

In the Congo lions provided us with a fair amount of sport, although they are rapidly decreasing in numbers. This is so apparent in some districts that, if I had my way, I should forthwith place a ban on shooting them for some time to come. It has been said that the plains around Lake Edward comprise Africa's richest hunting ground, but this is doubtful. During the war the black troops located there took an extremely heavy toll of game. Since then a great deal of hunting has been going on, with the result that lions, as well as other animals of the district—once a hunter's El Dorado—are not nearly so plentiful.

But while at some stages of the trip no lions could be found, in spite of the most diligent search, at others they proved to be still sufficiently numerous to cause alarm among neighboring tribes. Thus in one village, on the Ruindi Plain, the inhabitants begged us to organize a lion hunt and so rid them of the attentions of some of the more daring of the species. A few days before a girl of 15 had been so severely mauled by a lioness that she had died, and in view of this episode I agreed to help.

A shelter was built and zebra steaks temptingly displayed in front of it. Late that night no fewer than fifteen lions presented themselves as targets for our guns. Their leader, a thin but otherwise magnificent black-maned male, was surrounded by his mates and their cubs. He fell to my first shot, while the rest stampeded toward our hiding place. One exceedingly fierce lioness made a determined rush at the barrel of my rifle, almost tearing the weapon from my hands, while the rest bounded past us into the jungle.

Half an hour later we were surprised to discover, from the suppressed growls and crunching sounds that came to our ears, that some of the animals had returned to the bait, regardless of the danger that awaited them. The incident served to emphasize another aspect of the danger that threatens the lion. The beasts were starving, no doubt as a result of the diminution of smaller game; which had suffered in common with the larger kinds; and they returned again and again to the feast in spite of our shots, which resulted in the village being freed, at any rate for the time being, from their depredations.

Nevertheless, it is my earnest hope that some means will be found of enforcing protective measures in this and other districts. Otherwise, man will have to answer for yet another crime against nature—the crime of desecrating the last stronghold of her greatest beasts.

When we had explored the vast volcanic region that has for its hub the mysterious Mountains of the Moon, we turned our steps northward and started on what in some respects was the most interesting phase of our journey. It involved a long and at first seemingly endless tramp through the immense tropical forest belt that lies to the west of the Rumenzori range, between Lakes Edward and Albert.

The forest is the haunt of the pygmy and of the okapi, of which extremely rare animal we did not succeed in obtaining a specimen, although we engaged the services of expert native trackers to help us in the search. But while we had no luck in this direction, we found some consolation in the fact that we traversed many little known parts of the forest and studied as many little known aspects of pygmy life.

Until quite recent years the "little people" of the forest bore evil reputations as cannibals, among whom it was unsafe to venture without a very strong escort. Now, however, they are comparatively harmless, although it is not difficult to appreciate the fact that their savage instincts are concealed beneath a thin veneer of respect for the white man.

Of a very low culture level, they live a lazy life in the forest clearings, where they build homes which, I verily believe, most domestic animals in civilized countries would disdain to occupy. Consisting simply of leaves covering hooped sticks, their queer little dwellings are lacking in every quality that makes for comfort.

Except for a rudely made knife and perhaps a bowl, used both for cooking and serving food; they have no household utensils of any kind. Their dietary consists almost exclusively of meat and wild honey, varied on somewhat rare occasions by sweet potatoes, and when game is scarce they go in danger of starving, for they have no knowledge of gardening or agriculture, and if they had they would probably be too lazy to apply it to good purposes.

As hunters, however, they have few equals among the world's primitive peoples. Thanks to their spare build and great natural ability, they are able to move through the forest at great speed, while they are marvelously dexterous with their bows and poisoned arrows, the only weapons they use. They get their poison from some obscure forest plant, and once it has been used it is rendered innocuous; hence meat that has been poisoned does them no harm in the eating.

Unlike the men of many other African tribes, the pygmy husband rarely allows himself the luxury of maintaining more than one wife, more than two being rarely if ever heard of. Likewise, his offspring seldom consists of more than two children, three being considered a big family and too great a responsibility for one father. The pygmy makes a tolerably good husband, too, but like some civilized husbands, he is not averse on occasions from administering corporal punishment, whenever he deems it deserved. Then he takes his erring spouse by the hair and beats her soundly with a big stick !

Now and again during our march through the great forest we caught glimpses of elephant herds, which, however, were usually far out of range. That elephants are seen in smaller numbers than was the case up to a few years ago is due in no small degree to the ivory hunters, whose activities have made the elephant in these days a very shy beast. Formerly one could be reasonably sure of meeting elephants at pretty well every turn. But now one may march for hours and even days without hearing or seeing them—just one more example of the need for some form of prohibition in the shooting of big game.

That this prohibition will come I think there is little doubt. The world cannot afford to part with its jungle monsters, however dreaded they may be. They all help to make life interesting and so to keep men sane.

Apart from this, childhood in the future is going to be a dreadfully dull business without them!

SEEKING A SPRING CARPETED WITH GOLD

American expedition off to Belgian Congo on soldier's tip that in 1917 he scooped handful of golden pebbles from drinking place. ::

IN 1917 a soldier of the World War gulped a drink of water from a spring. Now, as a direct result of that simple slaking of thirst, an American expedition is on the way to the Belgian Congo, in wildest Africa, in the hope of finding that selfsame spring, which is believed to be "carpeted" with gold.

One of the eight men who embarked recently on the steamship Majestic on this unique expedition of possible discovery is a relative of the soldier who drank from the gold-carpeted spring. Julius J. Dolgos, a chemist of Golden Bridge, N. Y., is the soldier. The story goes that five years ago he was a member of mounted forces operating in or near the Belgian Congo. While riding with his column he became lost. Growing thirsty, he found a spring and stretched himself out on his stomach to get a drink.

"I noticed," said Dolgos, "that the bottom of the spring was covered with pebbles of a golden hue. I scooped up some of them in my hand. They were metallic. After my discharge from the service I took my pebbles to a jeweler. He assayed them. They were pebbles of pure gold."

Such is the story which Dolgos, after he returned to America, told to his relative, Edward P. Barrett, Supervisor of the town of Bedford, N. Y. Barrett made investigation, believed the tale to be true, and now he has organized the expedition and with seven other men from Kaoanah, N. Y., is on his way to pursue a six months' search for what they believe will make the old Klondike look like a piker field.

British, French and Belgian scientists long have been of the belief that gold is to be found in plentiful quantities in certain portions of the Belgian Congo. Many expeditions have set out up the Congo River northeast from Boma, capital of the Belgian State, to a point 250 miles from that city, where the Congo is extremely wide and is fringed on either side with dense tropical jungles spreading over a rolling surface.

Here are to be found numerous ravines hidden entirely by the thick undergrowth of shrubbery. The earth formation is of peculiar type, and resembles, it is said, the soil and rock aspect of the once-famous Alaska gold fields.

Organized expeditions in a large measure have failed in the past, however, to unearth any large amount of gold nuggets. Every year some straggler drifts into Boma with a story of a rich find. Some are able to substantiate these stories, while others, believed stricken with fever, are regarded as delirious and little credit is given their reports.

In 1917 a party of English scientists spent approximately four months scouting through the Congo jungles in the hope of establishing the real worth of any possible gold veins. Disaster overcame the party in the form of fever and sickness and their work was not finished. Mineralogists then expressed the opinion that undoubtedly there were rich gold veins in parts of the jungles, especially in the neighborhood of the treacherous ravines, but because of their almost inaccessible location it was predicted that probably years would ensue before full discovery and actual mining resulted.

Diphtheria Germs in Wild Horses.

WILD horses running on the open range and never in contact with human beings have been found to be infected with the diphtheria germ, according to Dr. H. W. Schoening of the Pathological Division of the Bureau of Plant Industry, at Washington. This fact, he claims, indicates that the diphtheria organism is widespread in the soil and is not carried to the horse by some human being, as has been held.

Irrigation and the impounding of water upon a large scale increases the amount of rainfall in the neighborhood to a marked degree, meteorologists claim.

," says Herodotus, "the Persians, having taken conducted him to Cyrus, and he, having heaped great pyre, placed Croesus upon it, and with him young Lydians, designing either to offer this to some god, or perhaps, having heard that was a religious person, he placed him on the for the purpose of discovering whether any deity save him from being burnt alive.

, when Croesus stood upon the pyre, notwith- the weight of his misfortunes, the words of occurred to him, that 'no living man could justly happy.' After a long silence he uttered a and thrice pronounced the name of Solon. When heard him he commanded his interpreters to Croesus who it was he called upon. They drew and asked him, but Croesus for some time kept . When they persisted in their inquiries he at told them that Solon, an Athenian, formerly him, and having viewed all his treasures made of them; telling, in a word, how everything him as Solon had warned him; though his related to all mankind as much as to himself; and especially to those who imagine themselves happy.

"The pyre being now kindled, the outer parts began to burn; and Cyrus, informed by the interpreters of what Croesus had said, relented, and considering that being but a man he was yet going to burn another man alive who had been in no way inferior to himself in prosperity; and moreover fearing retribution and reflecting that nothing human is constant, commanded the fire to be instantly extinguished and Croesus, with those who were about him, to be taken down."

But they were unable to master the fire. Croesus then invoked Apollo to deliver him; rain fell, and he was saved.

The rest of Croesus' life was spent in servitude at the court of Cyrus at Susa and for the next 200 years Sardis remained under Persian dominion, governed by a satrap. But the palace ruins still exist and every day's digging brings the excavators nearer to its walls.

By 1914 Dr. Butler had uncovered a gigantic temple of Artemis in which was found a letter written in Greek by the Roman Emperor Augustus, containing the welcome information that a temple of Zeus stood nearby, directly over the remains of the ancient Lydian palace. Here were found the ancient coins of Croesus. The hands of the American explorers are thus almost within reach of relics of a great historical episode.

As Sun Grows Warmer, the Earth Is Cooler

A RAINSTORM dries the air; more goes up than comes down; as the sun sets the air grows warmer; the hotter the sun grows the colder the earth becomes; the sun rises before it is up and sets after it is down.

These statements sound like a fairy tale, but they are all true. Dr. W. J. Humphreys, quoted in the recent annual report of the Smithsonian Institution, explains all of them. They are facts well known to scientists if not to laymen.

As everyone knows, Dr. Humphreys remarks, water evaporates and is taken up in the air as vapor. This action is continuous all over the earth and the atmosphere would soon become very soggy if it weren't dried out. Rain is the collection, or condensation, and precipitation of these moisture particles; consequently, the more it rains the less moisture there is left in the atmosphere, or the drier the air becomes.

The second of Dr. Humphreys' paradoxes seems flatly to contradict the old saying, "Whatever goes up must come down." However, as the writer expresses it, vertical circulation in the atmosphere is only gravitational action, consisting in the sinking of relatively cold and therefore dense air. Contracted air descends, expanded air ascends. Therefore, mass for mass, the volume of ascending air is always larger than that descending.

In terms of mass, also, Dr. Humphreys says, descending air is less than ascending, for air, while rising, contains immense quantities of water in suspension, which does not return to earth with that air, but as rain, hail or snow.

The third paradox is merely a way of stating that the warmest part of the day is not at noon, when the sun is at meridian or overhead and should seemingly be pouring down greater heat, but several hours later in the afternoon. That is because the surface of the earth and the lower layers of the air continue to absorb more heat from the upper layers for some time after the latter have been receiving the maximum amount of heat radiation from the sun.

While it is not yet universally conceded that the next puzzler, "the hotter the sun the colder the earth," really is true, Dr. Humphreys states the evidence in favor of it is already very strong. There are several explanations offered.

The temperature of the sun itself varies, and sunspots are eruptions caused by heat activity. It is known, he continues, that earth's temperature varies with spot activity; that the more spots there are on the sun the cooler the earth's temperature becomes, and vice versa. Also, that the sun's corona is in large measure only so much dust, and must interfere with passage of radiation through it. Hence: Hotter sun—more spots; more spots—denser corona; denser corona—less radiation received on the earth and cooler climate ensues.

Another explanation is the heat-absorbing quality of ozone, which exists in greater quantity in the upper air. He concludes that the denser corona stops passage of some per cent of the ultra-violet rays, some of which, acting on cold, dry oxygen in the upper strata form ozone. In times of maximum spots there must, then, be less ozone. But ozone absorbs a great amount of earth radiation, therefore if the earth should be receiving an increased amount of heat at this time it might nevertheless grow colder because of the coincident depletion of the heat-conserving ozone blanket.

The paradox of the sun rising before it is actually up and setting after it actually has gone down is explained by the sending of light waves which, when placed in clear water, seem to bend; a light ray when sent through the air does actually bend. The rays from the rising sun are bent when they strike the air envelope. This angle varies according to well known laws, but on the average the light from the sun is bent thirty-four and one-half seconds of degree, so that the upper limb of the sun when first seen is actually half a degree below the horizon.

While the reverse is not absolutely correct, astronomically, it is added, when sun, star or moon sets, because of the slight modification of refraction due to earth rotation, nevertheless the difference is exceedingly slight. Consequently, as the light rays are bent upward by earth's atmosphere, the sun has actually gone down before it is seen to set by a terrestrial observer.

GOLD COINS from the WEALTH of CROESUS

Pot containing gold money dating back to 546 B. C. is unearthed in barley field at Sardis, being excavated by American scientists searching for barial place of richest monarch of ancient times—Fifteen of the thirty pieces on way to Metropolitan Museum of Art—Picturesque history of most famous of Lydian Kings.

AT SARDIS, the scene of some of the most thrilling events in ancient history, a party of American excavators has just unearthed from an old tomb a priceless treasure—a clay pot containing 30 gold coins which date back to the year 546 B. C. These coins, called "staters," are specimens of the first gold pieces ever minted and represent part of the wealth of the ancient King Croesus of Lydia.

Fifteen of the coins are on their way to the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art. News of the great find has just been brought to the United States by Dr. T. Leslie Shear of Columbia University, who was present at the discovery.

The American expedition, which hopes to unearth many even more valuable relics of a glorious past civilization, is headed by Prof. Howard Crosby Butler of Princeton University, who is in Constantinople completing his arrangements with the Greek and Turkish Governments before following the main body of excavators to the steep hills, barren mounds and jumbled ruins that mark the place where several cities of mystery and ancient romance lie buried.

Here at Sardis, in the midst of the red clay mountains of Asia Minor, where Dr. Butler and his companions began in 1909 to dig up a barley field above which projected two colossal Ionic temple columns and where work was interrupted by the outbreak of the war, lies buried the actual palace of King Croesus, wealthiest monarch of ancient times and last of the Princes who held court at the brilliant capital of Lydia.

Croesus came to the throne at the age of 35 and soon won a tremendous reputation for pride and wealth. Tribute from neighboring kingdoms which he conquered swelled his treasure houses, already bursting with bullion dredged from the gold-bearing sands of the Pactolus River, which flowed near his city. His cavalry, famous for its speed and dashing courage, easily vanquished the nations he set out to conquer.

"As rich as Croesus" became a proverbial designation which has lasted to the present day. His court, by all accounts, presented scenes of wonderful splendor to visitors from all over the ancient world.

Among the visitors to Lydia was the aged Solon, lawgiver of Athens and one of the "Seven Sages" of Greece. "On his arrival," related Herodotus, "he was hospitably entertained by Croesus, who conducted him round the treasury and showed him all the grand and costly contents. When he had seen and examined everything, Croesus asked him: 'My Athenian guest, who is the most happy man you have ever seen?' He asked this question because he thought himself the most happy of men.

"But Solon, speaking the truth freely, without any flattery, answered, 'Tellus, the Athenian.' Croesus, astonished at his answer, asked him: 'On what grounds do you deem Tellus the happiest?' He replied: 'Tellus, in the first place, lived in a well-governed commonwealth; had sons who were virtuous and good; and he saw children born to them all, and all surviving; in the next place, when he had lived as happily as the condition of human affairs will permit, he ended his life in a most glorious manner. For, coming to the assistance of the Athenians in a battle, he put the enemy to flight and died nobly.'

"Then Croesus, being enraged, said: 'My Athenian friend, is my happiness then so slighted by you that you do not think me of as much value as a humble private citizen?' Whereupon the philosopher answered: 'Oh, Croesus, you appear to me to be master of immense treasures and King of many nations, but as relates to what you inquire of me I cannot say, until I hear that you have ended your life happily. For the richest of men is not more happy than he who has a sufficiency for the day, unless good fortune attend him to the grave, so that he ends his life in happiness; for the gods, having shown a glimpse of happiness to many, have afterward utterly overthrown them.'

"When he spoke thus, Croesus dismissed him, since he considered him a very ignorant man, because he overlooked present prosperity and bade men look to the end of everything.

"After the departure of Solon," concludes the ancient historian, "the indignation of the gods fell heavy upon Croesus, probably because he thought himself the most happy of men."

Misfortune, indeed, soon began to crowd in upon the unfortunate monarch. He had two sons, about both of whom the oracles had indicated coming disasters. The elder son already had been afflicted with dumbness, and the only consolation that the gods would grant was the declaration that he would regain his speech on an evil day for the King.

Of the other son, Atys, who surpassed all the youths of his age in strength and intelligence, they declared that he would die from a wound inflicted with an iron weapon. Croesus therefore forbade him to go to battle with his company of Lydian cavalry and sought to curb his eager spirit by providing a wife and domestic cares for him.

At the wedding feast, however, in the midst of the riotous merrymaking, there suddenly appeared an unbidden guest, a haggard, wild-eyed intruder. Approaching the King, the stranger explained that he was a member of the royal house of Phrygia, Adrastus by name, grandson of the famous King Midas of the Golden Touch, a harassed fugitive seeking refuge, having unwittingly killed his own brother.

According to the laws of hospitality, Croesus could not deny him shelter. It happened at this time that an enormous wild boar came down from the mountains of Mysia and ravaged the country, killing many of the inhabitants. A hunt was organized in the royal palace. Prince Atys, very naturally, was eager to go, and begged his father to give him leave. When Croesus demurred, he answered:

"Would you have me a coward? What kind of man would you have me appear to my fellow citizens—to my newly married wife? Besides, the oracle declared I am to die by the point of an iron weapon, not by a boar's tusk."

The unhappy King was won over and consented, sending Adrastus along as the youth's special guardian.

The hunt was successful, the boar was brought to bay and surrounded, and Adrastus hurled his iron javelin at the beast. It missed its mark, however, and struck the son of Croesus, killing him and fulfilling the prophecy of the gods.

Bitter sorrow welled up in the heart of the proud King when he saw the corpse of his son borne back on a litter, followed by the miserable Adrastus. The latter, walking up to Croesus, stretched forth his hands and begged for instant death, declaring himself to be the most miserable of men. Croesus, although his own affliction was great, was filled with pity and said:

"You have made me full satisfaction by condemning yourself to die. But you are not the author of this misfortune except as far as you were the involuntary agent of that god, whoever he was, that long since foreshadowed what was to happen."

The son was buried with due solemnity, but Adrastus, "son of Godius, son of Midas, who had been the murderer of his own brother and the murderer of his purifier, when all was silent round the tomb, judging himself the most heavily afflicted of all men, killed himself on the tomb. But Croesus, bereaved of his son, continued disconsolate for two years."

The King's mourning was interrupted finally by the growing menace of Cyrus, King of Persia, with whom a conflict was inevitable. Rousing himself, Croesus began to prepare to attack the great Empire of the East. Having now acquired a tremendous respect for the Grecian oracles, he resolved to consult them, first making trial of them in the following unique manner: He sent messengers to the principal religious shrines with instructions to ask what the King of Lydia was doing on a certain day.

It was a remarkable response, for on that day Croesus had actually cut up a tortoise and a lamb and boiled them together in a brazen caldron, thinking that such a strange operation could not be guessed or anticipated. The answers from the other oracles being satisfactory, he again sent to Delhi to find what the god Apollo had to say concerning his attack on Cyrus. The answer came back: "If Croesus makes war on the Persians, he will destroy a mighty empire."

Highly pleased, and little guessing that the "mighty empire" was to be his own, Croesus showered gifts of gold and silver on the temple of the god and immediately took the field with his famous cavalry.

But Cyrus, meeting him outside the walls of Sardis, used a remarkable strategem. Before the Persian horses he drew up a line of mounted camels and ordered them to charge, knowing that a horse is afraid of a camel, and cannot endure either to see its form or to scent its smell. Accordingly, when battle was joined the Lydian cavalry was completely routed and the hopes of Croesus w

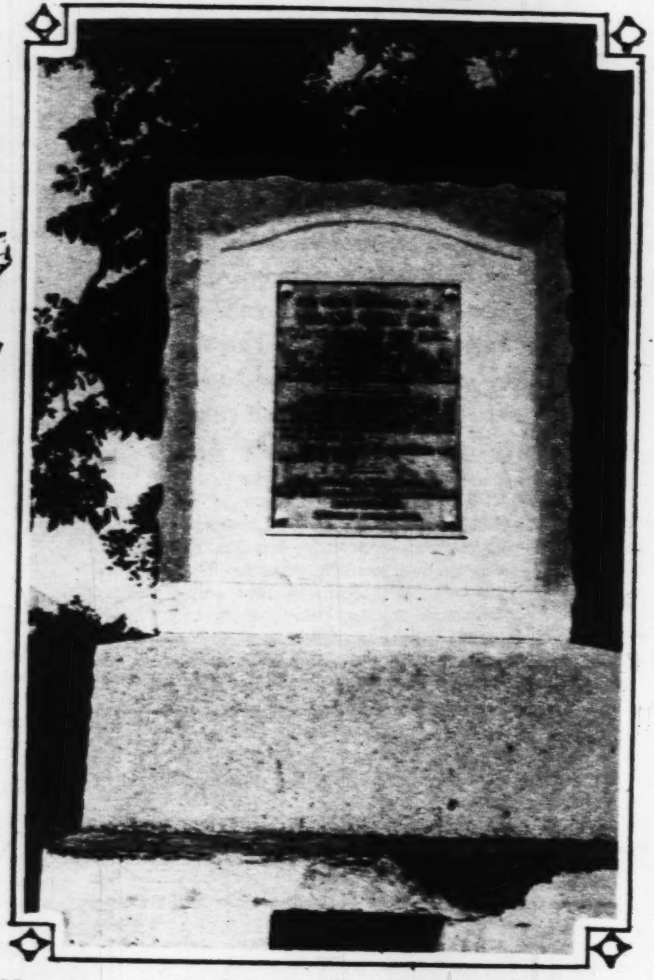
MONUMENT ERECTED TO THE HOG

After many centuries of service to mankind, the porker is memorialized in bronze and granite, with oratory and poesy, on a farm in Ohio near which originated the prolific Poland China breed—Unveiled by venerable widow of man who in 1876 dictated the first pedigree of a specimen of this breed, said to have been the first swine pedigree ever written :: :: ::



Monument to the Poland China hog, unveiled June 15 near Lebanon, O.

IN REVERENT memory of a hog that flourished and faded nearly half a century ago, a handsome monument was unveiled last month at an old farmhouse in Ohio. There are monuments and monuments. Monuments to men, to women, to children. Monuments to Napoleon, to Shakspeare, to Humboldt; soldiers and poets and scientists, Princes and preachers and plutocrats—monuments to men of many kinds. And now, for what is said to be the first time, there has been builded and unveiled and dedicated a monument to a hog.

Strictly speaking, this monument has been erected in honor of the official birth registration of a breed of swine—the Poland China. But when a dozen speakers, some of them being of national reputation, gathered with more than a thousand hog enthusiasts from all over the corn belt to take part in the unveiling of the swine memorial, several of them paid pathetic tribute to the one hog—gone but not forgotten—which was the first of all its race to be honored with a written pedigree.

Even the name of that illustrious porker—silent, alas! in death—appears to have been forgotten. At any rate there is a dispute as to its identity. The sex of the animal thus immortalized in granite and bronze also is in dispute. But, for all that, he or she henceforth is to be held in most respectful memory by the multitude of Poland China breeders throughout these States and by no means ignored by the world at large.

Both oratory and poesy paid tribute to the porker. A granddaughter of the late W. C. Hankinson, who dictated the hog's pedigree and on whose farm the monument has been erected, read an original poem in honor of the Poland China hog in general and the Hankinson hog in particular. As the lady delivered her ringing, singing strophes, no doubt the spirits of many just hogs made perfect, including that of the hog thus signally honored by the finest of the fine arts, grunted their satisfaction, their gratification; for had not they waited many long-drawn-out centuries for this recognition of their species? Verily, they had! All things come to those who wait—even the monument comes to the hog. Let, therefore, no beast, however humble, despair of eventual recognition by the memorial arts.

'Twas a proud day for the venerable widow of Farmer Hankinson. She is in her eighty-ninth year; she was present when her husband dictated the premier pedigree to Carl Freigau, compiler of the original Poland China record; she was unaware then that she was witnessing a scene which was to become hog-historical. And when, on that rare day, June 15, the day of the [illegible] of the hog, Mrs. Hankinson pulled the cord and unveiled the monument, and the shouts of many hog devotees arose to split the welkin, she knew that she had witnessed on that far-back day in the August of 1876, an event of world importance—and she wished only that she could recall the pedigree name of that notable hog, but she couldn't.

The hog monument stands near the old and now unused Hankinson farmhouse, eight miles west of Lebanon, Warren County, O., in a neighborhood bearing the unique name of Blue Ball. Mrs. Hankinson and her daughter live nearby, in the "new" house, which was built in 1867. The old house, being the one in which the pedigree was written, also is to be preserved by the Ohio Poland China Breeders' Association, which erected the memorial. Incidentally, it is held that this was the first pedigree written for a hog of any breed, and it is believed that the monument is the first erected to mark the place of official beginning of any breed of livestock.

Why all this fanfare over a member of the lowly tribe of swine? The answer is easy enough. Millions of people in this and other lands have eaten hogs from immemorial times. It has been said that the dog is man's best friend, but it is not to be disputed that a vote taken along practical lines would result overwhelmingly in favor of the hog. Millions of people like hogs. Who—other than the Filipino Igorotes and a few other low-class species of the human—ever eats dogs? The hog wins! Wherefore, why not a monument to the hog?

The hog monument is the outgrowth of a sentiment [illegible] two years ago by Thomas Hunter, a former [illegible] of the American Poland China Record Association. Mr. Hunter had Forded from his home near [illegible], O., with a representative of the Poland China Journal, organ of the breed, published from Kansas City. The hog journalist was on the trail of early Poland China history, that prolific breed having originated in the section of Ohio then being traversed.

"Really, now," suggested Mr. Hunter, "this old house should be restored and preserved, and a monument should be erected here to the Poland China breed."

"In honor of the first Poland China that had a name and number, eh?" asked the hog journalist.

"Exactly," replied the hog expert.

Mr. Hunter opined that the illustrious breed-beast was one that was named after Alexander the Great. "Alex 1" was his pedigree title. He was a celebrated hog of fifty years ago and later. Thus he is embalmed in the official record:

"Alex 1: Spotted; extra fine quality, remarkably deep across the heart, broad back, fine head and ear, short-legged, round-ribbed, excellent breeder, sire of many noted show animals, successful prize winner; was never beaten in his class. Farrowed in April, 1872. Bred by Alexander Young, Somerville, Butler County, O., bought of him by W. W. Greer, Oxford County, O.; bought of him by E. & J. M. Klever, Bloomingburgh, Fayette County, O., and M. L. Klever, Cross Roads, Madison County, O., in 1874; still owned by them in June, 1877."

If proof could be offered that Alex 1 was the subject of the first pedigree, as many old-timers in the Miami Valley believed, his name would be embossed on the hog monument. But such proof has not been established.

One is inclined to wish that it might have been Alex 1, since he was "never beaten in his class," and every true sport stands for an unbeaten champion—yea, even for a hog champion.

But the ladies must have their say. Both Mrs. Hankinson and her daughter, Mrs. Sarah C. Irwin, 66, the poetess of the unveiling ceremony, incline to the belief that "Lady Pugh" was the hog whose name should be placed on the monument. These two women remember Lady Pugh very distinctly, and as of an age to have been eligible for record about the time when the historic pedigree was written. Mrs. Irwin has been quoted as saying:

"Lady Pugh was a large white sow of motherly disposition, famous throughout the Miami Valley as a brood sow. In her old age she apparently was barren for two or three years, but finally she produced two very fine pigs. I remember having watched my father when he was making extraordinary efforts to save those two pigs, and he succeeded. I can point out the very spot where the pigs were farrowed."

But Lady Pugh, alas! like Alex 1, has gone the way of all hog flesh; and as all the human contemporaries who had official knowledge of the first pedigree's recording have been gathered to their fathers these many years, it appears probable that no hog's name and number will be added to the bronze tablet attached to the granite plinth; that the monument must be permitted to stand simply as erected in honor of The Hog.

Unfortunately, pure-bred swine of this generation do not seem to take any interest in hog history. Even the Poland China hog, despite the latter section of his breed name, is no worshiper of ancestors. Hogs, happily, unlike humans, do not worry themselves to death wondering where they came from or whither they are bound. They just take life for granted, it appears, and look upon it as merely one feed after another.

"I should worry!" grunts the self-satisfied swine unit. "A little more o' that savory swill, please."

However, if anybody imagines that in these days "hogs is hogs" and not to be mentioned in polite society, a few figures as to the relative value of hogs and humans are not amiss. Not long ago a New Jersey court fixed the recoverable value of a man at $850. The man in question, of course, was not a Rockefeller, nor a Kipling, nor a Harding. He was just an ordinary man. There are millions of ordinary men and millions of ordinary hogs, but when the extraordinary hog comes along it is time for ordinary men to take off their hats, financially speaking, to the four-footers. Out in Mr. Bryan's former State, Nebraska, a Poland China hog brought $30,000 a few years ago. Mr. Bryan dislikes comparison between men and the lower animals; but that Nebraska hog, named Designer, was worth all his owner paid, for he paid for himself in seventy days through the sale of his pigs for breeding purposes. Few men can produce that much, it may be insinuated.

There was another male hog of the breed that sold for $60,000 and still another that was said to have brought $75,000. Those prices were paid when the hog was at the apex of his popularity, a couple of years ago, at the same time that some silk shirts sold at $18 and a Ford car cost almost as much as a pure-bred pig. "Almost" is really a huge exaggeration, for scores of pure-bred male pigs sold in those not-far-gone days at $5000 each, and beyond.

About three years ago a sow bred in Missouri, near Kansas City, brought $17,200 at auction. Her owner soon got his money back, selling her pigs as breeders, and then made large profits on the purchase.

The Poland China breed, honored by the Blue Ball monument, originated within a few miles of the place where the memorial stands. It is strictly an American breed. Its beginnings date back more than a hundred years. One David M. Magie is held by some hog historians to have done more than any other one man in producing the breed by cross-breeding of hogs of other kinds. For many years Magie experimented with several sorts of hogs, and his swine were known as Magie hogs. He lived at Oxford, O., where four colleges are situated, and the sweet girl graduates coming and going from the town depot of thirty to forty years ago used to fall over crates of pigs awaiting shipment to far points. Magie shipped hogs to President Rutherford B. Hayes, who was an admirer of the breed. In 1872 the official name Poland China was adopted, and the Magie hog thus lost its identity with its originator.

Most of the black hogs you see are Poland Chinas. Black, with five white points—that's the Poland now.

The Poland China hog got its name from a Polander named Asher Asher, who lived near Cincinnati about a century ago and introduced into his neighborhood a Russian hog which he is said to have crossed with one of the breed known as Big China. The so-called "Poland" hog, named because of the nationality of his owner, was used also by Magie in cross-breeding. Magie bred the Poland to the Irish Grazier and the Byfield to the Big China. Then he bred the best specimens of the results of those two crosses. "And then I found," he said, "what I had long been looking for."

What he found was the Poland China Adam.

CORNELIUS COLE COMES BACK

The Rip Van Winkle of American politics, California Congressman of Civil War days, Senator in reconstruction period, born in 1822, suddenly reappears in Senate and House and makes both rub their eyes, trying to remember—He heard Lincoln's Gettysburg speech and visited the President the afternoon of assassination day—Voted for repeal of Fugitive Slave Act, for Thirteenth Amendment, for impeachment of Andrew Johnson—A Forty-niner de luxe, and still practicing law in Los Angeles

IN WASHINGTON the other day appeared a mysterious stranger. After some little delay he was identified as the Rip Van Winkle of American statesmanship. The Rip of Washington Irving's tales slept only twenty years before he reappeared in his former habitat to astonish the natives. Though this political Rip cannot be said to have been asleep on a mountainside all these years, it is but a few months less than half a century since, in his fifty-first year, he dropped out of politics early in 1873 upon his retirement from the United States Senate.

At the scene of his old-time activities Rip Van Winkle found persons who remembered him. Cornelius Cole of California found none. From his far-away home in Los Angeles, where this centenarian still practices law, he was on his way to Middletown, Conn., where Wesleyan University, from which he was graduated only seventy-five years ago, was to honor him with the degree of LL. D.; and Mr. Cole, ex-Senator, ex-Congressman, bethought himself to stop off at Washington.

Cornelius Cole, born in 1822, walking confidently, with the aid of his stout cane and his inveterate will to walk and keep going ahead like the other young-feeling fellows, took a look around Washington from the Union Station immediately after his reappearance there in 1922. Washington was different. So was Cornelius Cole, for that matter. He did not recognize Washington. Washington did not recognize him.

The Washington he knew in Civil War days and for a few years thereafter was a miserable mud flat, with nothing magnificent save distances. The Washington he found the other day is a city of magnificent edifices and boulevards. The Cornelius Cole that Washington knew was a youth in his forties, probably carrying a derringer instead of a cane.

"I must be getting a little old," said Cornelius Cole, to himself. "Things have changed so. Well, I'll just saunter over to the Capitol and see if I'm remembered there."

And so Cornelius Cole strode, sturdily enough, up the steps of the Capitol. Into the corridor of the Senate Chamber he went. Into that chamber, as a former Senator, he was entitled to walk without challenge from the sentry.

The doorkeeper knew not Cornelius Cole. An old gentleman with white whiskers, clad in the old-timey, comfortable clothing suitable to a person who had voted for Martin Van Buren for the presidency, as Cornelius Cole had done—just some old gentleman looking around the Capitol, probably from a rural village in Maryland or Virginia—that was how he looked to the doorkeeper.

Yes, Senator Shortridge of California was there. Cornelius Cole of California sent in his name. Shortridge came out, gave both hands to his ancient predecessor, far removed, escorted him into the chamber, introduced him to the boyish-looking Vice President of the United States, presiding over the august body, and found him a seat of honor amongst the callow youths of today who occupy seats in the Senate.

Even the eldest of these, Knute Nelson of Minnesota, is so much younger than Cornelius Cole that he seems almost like a young man; and Warren of Wyoming, Nelson's junior by a year or so, looks youthful by comparison.

When the Senate learned that the visitor was a member of the important Committee on Appropriations when he retired, the Senate sat open-mouthed for a brief spell: open-mouthed, yet too full of awe for utterance, which is not at all characteristic of the United States Senate.

"Cole? Cole? Why, Senator Cole must have died many years ago!" was the exclamatory thought in the minds of the few Senators other than Shortridge and Johnson of California who had been aware that such a man existed. Most of the members knew not even his name. To them, Cornelius Cole was not even a mildewed tradition.

But there he was, Cornelius Cole of California, who had served a full term from his adopted State of California and faded out of politics and public notice half a century ago. The Senate rubbed its eyes, put on its spectacles, and took another look. And for a brief while Cornelius Cole was a hero, a sort of holdover prophet with honor in his own country.

Then Cornelius Cole bethought himself of another chamber where he might find recognition. There also had he sat as a member, in the House of Representatives, but that was even earlier than his Senate service. He had sat through the Thirty-eighth Congress. The Congress sitting now is the Sixty-seventh.

"But the old boys are all gone, I know," mused Cornelius Cole. "Gone, all are gone, the old, familiar faces I knew there—the faces of Garfield, Blaine, Conkling, William Windom, Elihu B. Washburne, Dan Voorhees, Justin S. Morrill, S. S. Cox—"Sunset" Cox, we called him—Thad Stevens, Sam Randall, Schuyler Colfax—he was Speaker when I sat here with all these old-time celebrities and many others."

But in the House sat one member who was almost, yet not quite, a link with Cornelius Cole's past. A young fellow from Illinois, named Cannon, former Speaker, serving now his twenty-third term—"Uncle Joe," they call him, just as if he were old enough to be uncled. Cole left the Senate on March 4, 1873. Cannon entered the House the following December. So, by stretching things a matter of nine months one may regard "Uncle Joe" as a near-link with the congressional past of Cornelius Cole.

It was Mr. Cannon who introduced Mr. Cole to the House of today. In doing so he stated that it was hard for him to believe that the old-timer from California still lived and moved and had his being—and was right there on the floor of the House. Probably, also, it was hard for Mr. Cole to believe it. However, he offered no apology. When his ninety-ninth birth anniversary was celebrated last Sept. 17 in Los Angeles he did make a slight effort at apology.

"If there is any merit in old age," he said then, "don't give me the credit; I couldn't help it."

Even "Who's Who in America" apparently takes it for granted that Cornelius Cole has been dead for years. That big red book carried a brief biography of him in the volume for 1912-13, but succeeding editions have printed only a line referring to the sketch in that volume.

When Cornelius Cole thought of Speaker Colfax of the latter half of the Civil War period, he probably thought also of that day of memorable tragedy when he and Colfax called upon President Lincoln for the last time. Thus he tells of that visit in his book, "Memoirs of Cornelius Cole," published thirteen years ago, when he began to fancy that perhaps he was beginning to get old:

"Immediately on the collapse of the Confederacy, Gen. Weitzel had been placed by the President in military and civil authority over the city of Richmond, and in that capacity had issued an address to the people there, probably in pursuance of verbal instructions from Mr. Lincoln himself, which, for its extreme leniency, savored nearly as much of a victory for Lee as for Grant. Observing this in the papers at Willard's Hotel, where we were stopping, and apprehending from its tone dissatisfaction in the North, Mr. Colfax and myself called upon the President, who immediately informed us that Weitzel's proclamation was 'a little too good' and that he had already directed some modifications of it.

"This was on the afternoon of April 14, the day of his assassination. On leaving his room in the White House, after a most agreeable conversation about the ending of the war and about California, in which he was always interested, I bade that great and tender-hearted man good-by, little anticipating the sad ending of that day.

"I left on the evening train to take the steamer at New York for California. Late in the night I was awakened in the sleeping car with the horrible announcement that Mr. Lincoln had been murdered. It was not a dream! My old-time friend, Mr. Seward, also had been a victim of that most awful conspiracy. His life hung in the balance a long time after Mr. Lincoln passed away. I have always looked upon this unexampled crime as the culmination of a spirit engendered by slavery and the legitimate offspring of man's inhumanity to man."

In his book Mr. Cole tells also that he accompanied the Lincoln party on the railroad trip to Gettysburg in November, 1863, and sat but a few feet from Abraham Lincoln when the latter delivered his immortal remarks for that occasion.

Cornelius Cole is a Forty-niner de luxe, having been a member of the first overland party that reached the California gold fields. He left his native town of Lodi, N. Y., Feb. 12, 1849, with six other men, bound for the new El Dorado.

"At St. Louis," he writes, "we laid in a great variety of supplies for the journey on the plains. The enterprising traders of that place assumed to know a great deal better than we what was wanted. We were badly sold in the goods we purchased. They palmed off on us many things for which we never had the slightest use. I may mention a variety of extremely cumbersome gold washers. Not one of them ever saw California; but they served well the purpose for which they were intended; that is, to delude the inexperienced and to get their money."

From Independence, Mo., to Sutter's Fort in California the trip took 90 days. Cornelius Cole and two others of his party did placer mining for a year. He recalls that their biggest day's pannings totaled a value of $1849—the figures representing the date of the first gold rush. They sold their mine in Oregon Canyon to some British sailors for $1000, and later those diggings became the mines known as Mamaluke Hill and Sailors Slide, coarse gold estimated at $3,950,000 being taken out.

Cornelius Cole, who had read law in the office of William H. Seward, later Secretary of State in Lincoln's Cabinet, practiced his profession in Sacramento and later in San Francisco. He went through the lively days when the Vigilance Committee had to take things in its own hands and use the noose liberally to restore order. At Sacramento he was elected City Attorney and later District Attorney for the county.

Because of his vigorous antislavery stand, as he believes, he was elected to Congress in 1863 by the biggest majority theretofore enjoyed in a California district. In Congress he voted for the impeachment of President Andrew Johnson, which displeased his old friend Seward, still serving as Secretary of State. His recollection is that he introduced the bill providing for the arming of slaves late in the Civil War period.

Congressman Cole voted and worked assiduously for the repeal of the fugitive slave act. He was equally enthusiastic for the resolution submitting to the states the constitutional amendment abolishing slavery—the celebrated thirteenth amendment. He opposed the adoption of the so-called gold standard as a measure for money, being of the belief that both silver and gold still should be coined, without prejudice to the baser metal.

Senator Coles fought the ill-famed whisky ring that got such notoriety in President Grant's administration. He fought also what he conceived to be the encroachment of the national bank power. His firm stand on these questions, he holds, caused his defeat for re-election.

On his ninety-ninth anniversary ex-Senator Cole said this:

"I have not lived long enough to find any great change in humanity. Aside from better physical conditions of living, people have not changed much. We had our scandals in the old days, and we seem to have them yet."

Magic Gems in Morgan Collection

Rare jewels at American Museum of Natural History, gathered from out-of-the-way places of the world, are flashing step-stones from barbaric history to that of today — Carved agate obtained from missionary was carved 4000 years ago in Babylon; necklace-trapping of a vizier of Morocco made in 1750; and huge crystal, revealer of the past and future, was polished from California quartz :: :: ::

ONLY a few minute bits of stone and metal, glittering in their polished glass cases—but it's odd how they can wind up the imagination with their unspoken tales of magnificence, horror, superstition and romance. An excellent place in which to let one's fancy wander at will back across past centuries to the color and fascination of ancient civilizations and barbarous cultures, passing in a twinkling over miles of ocean and desert, accomplishing miraculous journeys by a mere glance from one precious stone to another, is the newly opened Morgan Memorial Hall of Precious Gems and Minerals at the American Museum of Natural History in New York. Its excellent guide is Herbert P. Whitlock, curator of mineralogy in that place.

As he points out the most interesting of the exhibits, disclosing many little-traveled by-paths in science and history, his matter-of-fact voice harmonizes curiously with the reverential quiet of the place and does not break the spell of magic and wonder; nor does the healthy sunlight of an early summer morning, dropping through tall windows into the milky-white arched gallery.

The present collection, explains Whitlock, possibly ranks as the second in importance of its kind, and has been laid out by him according to an entirely original plan. The jewels, supported on transparent glass rods, appear to float freely in the air. They represent not only an almost incalculable fortune, reckoned in dollars and cents, here gathered together largely through the generosity of Pierpont Morgan, but also many years of research, travel and labor on the part of Dr. George F. Kunz, research curator of precious stones, an expert who collected, one by one, those most fascinating bits of the earth's crust from all manner of out-of-the-way places.

The uncanny power of those sparkling beams of deep red and brilliant green that flash their hypnotic spell into the eye of the observer is very well illustrated in the large piece of agate, carved into the shape of an ax head, and is inscribed with cuneiform characters. So regular is the disposition of the layers of agate that one is almost justified in calling it an onyx. This rare jewel was obtained in the eighteenth century from an Eastern missionary by Cardinal Stefano Borgia, Secretary of the College of Propaganda in Rome. From the Cardinal's family it passed for 15,000 lire—about $3000—to the Tyszkiewicz collection, from which it was bought for the museum in 1902.

The engraved inscription is in the old Sumerian language, and indicates that the stone was carved in the city of Babylon about 4000 years ago and was presented by a Governor named Adduggish to the temple of the god Adad or Ramman, whose shrine was in Ashshur. As one looks on this stone it is impossible to avoid visualizing the scene that must have taken place within the dim temple, when the mighty warrior, returning perhaps from a successful campaign against the Egyptians, laid his offering before the squatting brazen ox-image of the god of thunder and famine and drouth, while white-robed priests with vast knotted black beards chanted their hymn of strange barbaric periods.

Stepping up to a nearby cabinet, one next may observe a large necklace of roughly shaped and polished stones, set in barbaric jewelry. Oval gold beads of elaborate Oriental workmanship, set with aquamarines and surrounded by diamonds, sapphires and garnets, alternate with flat plates of carnelian, engraved with the Mohammedan Star and Crescent. It is the official necklace-trapping of a vizier of Morocco, dating from about 1750.

A different picture is evoked by this exhibit. Instead of a mystic Oriental chant, one becomes immersed in the wild gaiety of a rapid rhythmic march played on metal fifes and tall cylindrical drums by a circle of tall, turbaned Arabs, looking intently over a wide stretch of brilliant yellow sand that burns and wavers in the intense sunlight of the desert. And cutting through the heat-haze, and across the background of purple hills, a cavalcade of white-sheeted Moors on foam-flecked ponies dashes into the foreground, leaving a screen of dust corkscrewing upward in its wake. As they wheel in a wide circle and suddenly check their gallop, one sees at their head a large, swarthy man. As his mount rears he shouts a hoarse command; and one marks, swaying from his sinewy throat with its bulging veins, the necklace, a glittering mass of gold and polished stones.

Near the center of the hall is a deep orange stone, an Essonite garnet, sometimes called the Hyacinth or Cinnamon stone. It is a jewel much prized by medieval churchmen. St. Hildegard, Abbess of Bingen, who died in 1179, gives the following directions for the proper use of its supernatural powers: "If anyone is bewitched by phantoms or by magical spells, so that he has lost his wits, take a hot loaf of pure wheaten bread and cut the upper crust in the form of a cross, not, however, cutting it quite through, and then pass the stone along the cutting, reciting these words: 'May God, who cast away all precious stones from the devil, cast away from thee all phantoms and all magic spells, and free thee from the pain of this madness.'"

This particular Hyacinth is distinguished by having engraved on it a bust of Christ in profile, an exquisite sample of gem workmanship. It is said to have been a part of the Vatican collection, when it found its way eventually into the Paris Exposition of 1890. The feelingly carved bust of the Savior transports one immediately to the somber little monastery cell in which some obscure monk probably executed the work. In the flickering glow of a single bracketed candle, throwing its feeble gleam over a mounted crucifix, we see him, stooped over a bare table, scratching with his sharp instrument at the hard stone. His lips murmur in a devotional monotone, while from the distance comes a faintly undulating Gregorian chant, the vesper hymn, intoned by smooth tenor and bass voices, trailing through the dim corridors.

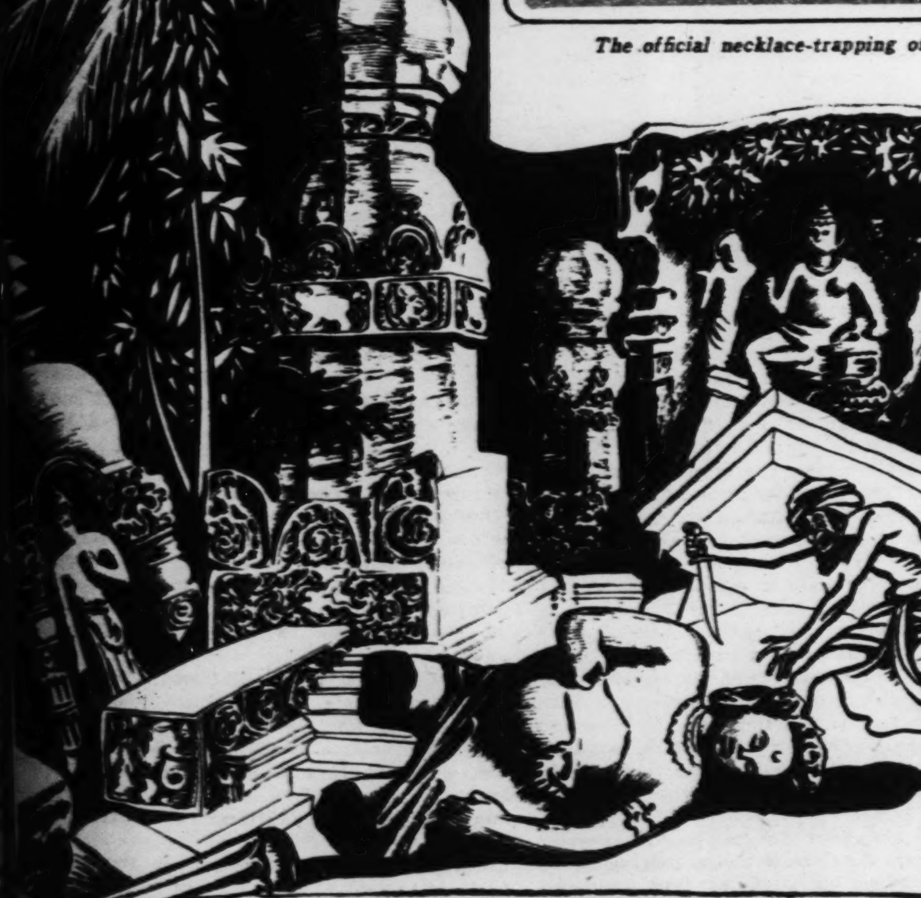
A single stride to the next cabinet interrupts the observer's religious meditations. Here is a flat red jewel, a tourmaline or rubelite, picked up in the Shan Mountains of China. The tourmaline is a gem still worn in the center of the forehead by mandarins as an emblem of the highest rank, according to ancient custom. It was called "Aschentrekker," or "ash attractor," by the old Dutch lapidaries, who were the first to notice its electric qualities when brought near wisps of straw or ash fragments. It is because of this electrical property that it has been credited with all kinds of magical powers.

A thrilling bit of historical drama is connected with this particular specimen, which again exhibits a remarkable carved design on its surface. For many years it formed the eye of an idol in an Indian temple. From the center of the forehead of some jade-green image it gleamed balefully or benignantly down on the prostrate forms of Hindu worshipers. Then came a day, during the wild and bloody Sikhs' War, when the sacred precinct was invaded by a band of brigands. One can hear again the deafening clatter of arms and accountrements, and through the bitter blue smoke one can see a lean brown hand pluck the glittering bit of red from the scowling forehead of the god.

"If you believe in the mystic and visionary powers of jewelry, you must look into our crystal spheres before you go," says the curator. "Here are a few of the finest in existence. This one, for instance, is an almost perfect specimen, measuring five and one-half inches in diameter. It is flawless, as far as any eye can see. The twelve-ton quartz crystal from which it was chopped, carved, milled and polished was found over a stratum of lava in the gold-bearing gravel of a dry ancient river bed at Mokolumne Hill, California, the scene of Bret Harte's famous 'Calaveras Stone.'

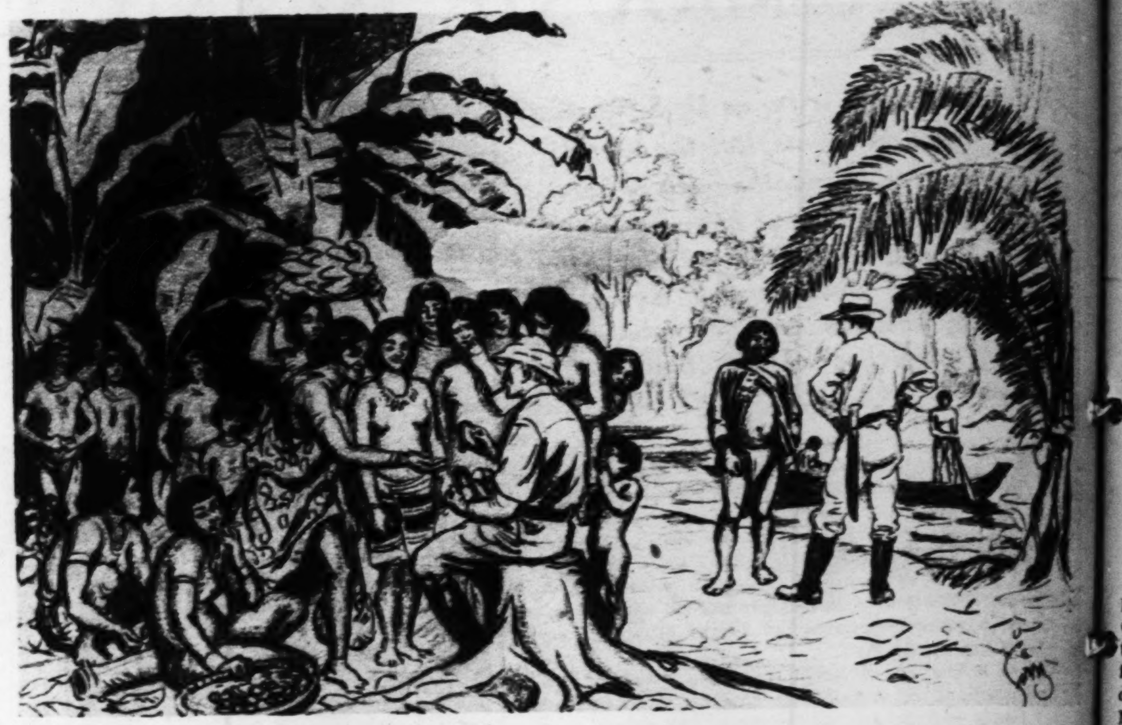
"From time immemorial, balls of this kind have been believed to possess the power of transporting the person who gazes into their depths into faraway places, into the past and into the future."



came a day, during the wild and bloody Sikhs' War, when the sacred precinct was invaded by a band of brigands."

Dangerous Business Up the Amazon

Revengeful natives and their poisoned arrows gave thrills to the trip of a purchaser of forest products — Young Indian was punished by white resident for going away with tools and merchandise instead of gathering rubber in payment, then the tribe attacked house, but shotguns and rifles drove them away— Brutalities are the usual thing, says narrator, where Indians are forced to gather rubber :: ::



"I pulled out trinkets and cigarettes to distribute and they rushed at me, almost pushed me off my seat, tearing the things out of my hands."

SUDDEN death is the risk a business man must run in certain parts of South America, particularly in the strange region of the Upper Amazon, in Brazil. There are no commercial facilities, such as telephones or banks, and trade is carried on by simple barter. This curious corner of the world is described by Louis Wanderer, a business man who has spent many years in tropical lands. Here will be set down the narrative of one of his adventures before the World War, when competition between various groups of exploiters for the valuable rubber was furious.

Wanderer is a little man, with blond hair and glasses on his curved nose. He speaks with a German accent and a certain air of simplicity which is convincing.

"I was the only passenger on the Para, a steamer of the Amazon Steamship Co.," he began, "on a trip up the river from Manaos across the Peruvian boundary to the Rio Maranon.

"When we reached the spot where I wished to disembark the boat stopped in the middle of the river and waited for the canoe to come for me. It was paddled by four Indians, bare to the waist, their copper bodies glistening with sweat, their hair braided with colored yarns. In the stern sat a young fellow, a white man of pronounced German features. He was steering.

"I knew that he was the younger of two brothers who managed a rubber estate for their mother, a native Brazilian woman. Their father had died some two years before of poison administered secretly by an Indian, in vengeance.

"After throwing my rubber bag, my guns and several parcels down into the canoe, I descended the rope ladder into the canoe. While we were making for the shore I introduced myself, told the white man that I had come to purchase any rubber and Brazil nuts gathered thus far in the season, and to find out their needs in merchandise.

"He was an amiable fellow, not bad looking and about 20 years old. Before we landed he changed from speaking Portuguese to German and complained that the crop so far had been very poor on account of the reluctance and dishonesty of the Indians who were working for him, and he swore that only the most severe treatment netted him any production at all.

He told me that the natives concealed large amounts of rubber in the jungle and brought it out at night, further up the river, to sell it to peddlers of liquor and merchandise.

"Where we landed I saw a really fine building of stone, with a large veranda, a well-kept lawn and shrubbery in front. For a moment I forgot that I was in the middle of a tropical wilderness. Dozens of fruit-bearing lemon and orange trees were grouped about the house. At the left was a big patch planted with manioc and cared for by six Indian women, some of whom carried their papooses dangling in a sling.

"I met the mother, a pleasant, white-haired woman, whose features bore the vestiges of an exceptional beauty in former days. She had an exquisite nose and mouth, and her eyes were large, black, very lovely. She welcomed me in the choicest of phrases of the Portuguese language, offering me, with a sweep of her arm, the hospitality of her house.

"And the house was finely furnished. There were many rooms, all with parquet floors. One room contained a library with books in every language; there was a piano and a phonograph; oil paintings hung on the walls. My room was the guest room, large and airy, charmingly furnished in bamboo and mahogany.

"I was amazed at such luxury, for every stone, board and piece of furniture had been brought 1500 miles up the Amazon.

"I got into a khaki suit and high-heeled boots, put my Browning automatic in my pocket, with plenty of cigarettes and mirrors, beads and pocket knives, for the natives, and then rejoined my host.

"We went over to the general store. The stock included everything, from shoe laces to sewing machines and phonographs. After a half-hour's talk he suggested a visit to the Indian village. We walked along for about twenty minutes beside a creek of clear, green water, covered here and there by a giant specimen of the Victoria Regia.

"Turning a bed of the creek, my host pointed out a sloth hanging from a tree. I wanted to shoot it, but it was too far off. Soon we reached a clearing in the jungle and the dogs ran toward us, barking and circling about us. Then we stepped into a totally clear space.

"To the left was a little pond. Out of this sprang about twenty-five people, children and full-grown of both sexes, all naked, with bronze skins. They greeted us with shrill "He-he's," the Arauna how-do-you-do. I was embarrassed and I believe that I blushed, but they did not seem to be aware of anything wrong.

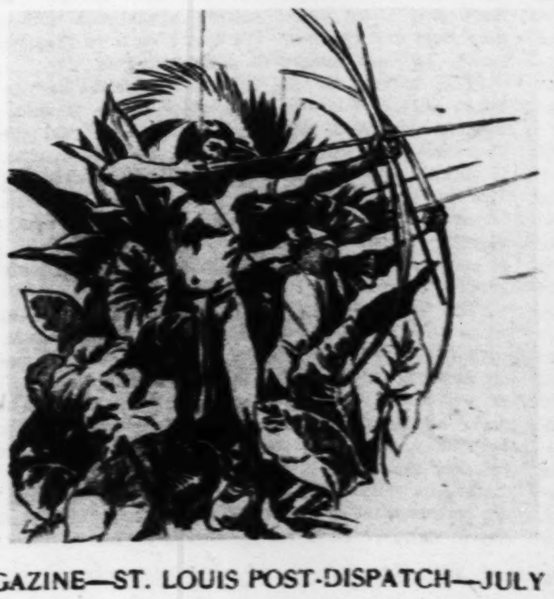
"They surrounded us inquisitively, especially the girls, and were amused at my hobnailed boots. One of the girls took off my slouch hat and touched my blond hair, giggling. The men were more serious and kept in the background. I sat on a tree stump while my host interviewed the chief. So I had plenty of time to look them over. They were all tall and well proportioned, with regular features. Among the younger girls there were some who would have been pretty if they hadn't filed their teeth.

"After a while came elderly members of the tribe, dressed in calico around their shoulders, bringing us bananas and peanuts. I pulled out trinkets and cigarettes to distribute and they rushed at me, almost pushed me off my seat, tearing the things out of my hands. When I reached in my pocket for more cigarettes I discovered that they were gone. Then I saw some of the young girls smoking them. But I didn't mind—the girls were so evidently enjoying themselves.

"We started back when it began to grow dark, and I was really sorry to leave. The place and the way of life had many attractions, and I liked the people.

"But on our way home my host told me that trouble was ahead, that a native to whom he had given about $30 worth of tools and merchandise on condition of his gathering rubber, had disappeared. The same thing had happened often lately, he said, and so he had decided to make an example of this man. He had ordered the chief to bring the fellow back within three days or else be driven away and have everything set afire. He warned me to stay away from the settlement now, but would not tell me anything more. That night I dreamed of fighting Indians and the like.

"Next morning at 7 o'clock my host aroused me and asked me to come over to the store. I hurriedly dressed and went over . I saw an Indian in a loin cloth standing in the middle of the room. He had shackles on his ankles. I was told that this was the fugitive. The doors were closed and the young man started to scold the Indian loudly. The latter hardly answered and I thought everything was all right. But then my host reached under the counter and brought up an instrument made from hardwood. This was a round block, three inches across and an inch thick, with a handle on it.



"He grabbed the Indian's hands, palms upward, and started beating the Indian terribly. I tried to stop him, begged him to stop. Then I walked toward the door, but my young host asked me to stay, saying that he had told the Indian that I was the 'boss' from down-river and that I had come for rubber, which he was unable to deliver because of such scoundrels as him (the Indian).

"By this time the fellow's hands were cut open, the blood was spurting from his fingernails and tears covered his face. It was too much for me. I cursed my host and told him that I would report matters to the state authorities at Manaos, and I added that I didn't wonder now at the death of his father. Then I broke upon the door and got out.

"That afternoon I saw the Indian, with a big iron ball chained to his feet, cutting grass in front of the house. His back was a mass of bloody welts and it was exposed to a myriad of mosquitoes. I got a pail of water, gave him a drink and poured some down his back. I shall never forget his look of gratitude.

"Next day my host told me that the man had been sent back to the tribe. I warned him of trouble, but he laughed. Several nights later he entered my room and asked me to come out. Something had happened. When I reached the hall I saw two bodies on the floor of a white couple that had worked in the house. They were dead and terribly mutilated.

"The men of the place were assembled. One was sent down the river for help. The rest of us went to take a look about the house. We had not walked twenty feet when a shower of arrows flew about us. There followed a yell from one of our men. A big arrow had pierced his chest and the point of it stuck out behind near the spine. He died almost immediately afterwards.

"We retired to the house, barred the windows and opened fire through the slits in the shutters. The Indians were hidden in the shrubbery and behind the trees. I had a double-barreled shotgun. Yells and screams answered our first volley. We must have hit somebody. Another shower of arrows and then all was quiet.

"We waited, on the watch, until daybreak, but nothing happened. In the morning we found that the [illegible] Indian women who worked about the house had disappeared, and we discovered our two watchdogs with little poison arrows in them.

"About 10 o'clock several canoes arrived, with about thirty men, who had been summoned by our messengers. They were from estates down the river—Germans, English, Portuguese—all heavily armed with rifles. We decided to march on the village, but my host insisted that I stay at home. I was glad, for I didn't want to sample their poisoned arrows.

"The party came back after four hours and reported that the village was completely deserted, and all canoes gone. The natives had probably crossed the river to join another tribe. They brought back, however, a goodly number of rubber pellets, which had been found hidden in the bushes, together with tools.

"At the first opportunity I left the house and returned to Manaos. I reported everything that had occurred, but was advised to drop it, as the Government would do little or nothing in the case. And I was told that such brutalities as I had seen are the usual routine in collecting rubber, wherever Indians are forced to work.

"What would you have? I am a business man, not an investigator. I had a living to make. But I shall never forget the look of that Indian when I gave him a glass of water."

ARKANSAS COUPLE'S HONEYMOON ON ICE-BOUND ISLAND IN BERING SEA

Farrar Burn and wife, as U. S. Bureau of Education agents, live the life of Eskimos for 10 months back of barrier of ice—Morals of natives better than those of white men—How they surmounted obstacles of strange speech, customs and climate on silent stretches of St. Lawrence Island :: :: :: ::

Mrs. Burn before the Mission quarters, their home on St. Lawrence Island.

MAROONED for ten months on icebound St. Lawrence Island in the north of Bering Sea, with 300 Eskimos as their only human companions, and with the mysteries of the long night, the romance of the undulating expanses of snow and the sullen movements of a herd of 5000 reindeer as the sole shields against monotony, was the honeymoon of Farrar Burn and his wife of Van Buren, Ark.

There in the frozen North these two young adventurers, ignorant at first of the guttural language and the simple customs and diversions of the people, rapidly tore aside the barriers of their isolation and became adjusted happily to the new environment.

Burn is the son of W. R. Burn of Van Buren, Ark., a civil engineer with the Missouri Pacific Railroad. Mrs. Burn was June Chandler Harris, daughter of E. H. Harris, formerly of Ridge avenue, St. Louis, now of Berkeley, Cal. She is a relative of the late Joel Chandler Harris. The two were married shortly before the close of the World War and then started on the long honeymoon trip from Washington, D. C., into the regions of the short latitudes. Burn was graduated from the University of Arkansas and enlisted in the navy for the war as an aviator. He was stationed at various points over the country, being attached to the staff of Admiral Earl in Washington at the close of the conflict.

It was immediately after his discharge from the navy that he and Mrs. Burn accepted a commission under the U. S. Bureau of Education to go to St. Lawrence Island for three years. The Island is nearly 100 miles long by 30 miles wide. Burn was to be superintendent of reindeer herds, which the Government fosters there. Mrs. Burn was to teach the Eskimos. She established the first American school on the island, where they passed the winter of 1920-21.

Practically dropped from civilization overnight onto a strange coast, with little more conception of their future there than a few instructions from the U. S. Bureau of Education's Alaskan division and the uncommunicative tracings of a chart, they set themselves cheerfully to their new task.

"At first it was strange; the great silence, the broad stretches ever before the eye and the knowing that they extended on and on for thousands of miles, was awe inspiring," said Burn, who was in St. Louis for a few days. "However, this was only the first shock of knowing that the boat which brought us had put to sea again and that we would be practically alone on the island, with no communication with the outside world and little with the natives, for we had no idea of how long it might take us to learn their language.

"We were established in one of the two wood houses on the island, the Presbyterian mission, which had been abandoned temporarily. The first few days passed quickly with the placing of our few possessions, the inspection of the herds and gazing as curiously at the natives as they were gazing at us.

"We learned a great many things about Alaska that we had never seen in a geography—and it seemed that these were the most interesting to us. It took us about a year to wear off the novelty of the new adventure and I imagine that were we to have stayed on to complete the three years the life would have become humdrum.

"Contrary to the common belief as we had met it before landing, the Eskimo is not always a fat, greasy individual nor is he addicted to eating candles and a few of the other picturesque things that have been ascribed to his appetite. Some of them are slim, some plump, some fat, some skinny. Some are very clean and some are very dirty and the in-betweens take in all the various degrees of personal care that are seen in any other race.

"The cleanest men and the dirtiest men I ever expect to see were Eskimos. Some of them are lazy and some are thrifty; some nervous and some placid. They have few quarrels among themselves and their moral life has a high standard. There are no 'eternal' triangle cases in the tribes. The Government has kept the white man from establishing any permanent habitation on the island, permitting him only to trade there. In their natural state the island natives are more contented, more prosperous than is the native on the mainland.

"After we had become established in the mission house we began looking about for the things that were to occupy our minds, and we found many. Studying the native provided plenty of entertainment. Mrs. Burn and I set about getting acquainted with our neighbors and charges. We found most of them were kindly disposed toward us and hospitable.

"The natives of St. Lawrence Island live in a house within a house. The outer house is made of walrus hide, held down by walrus skin and ropes. The hide is drawn over poles. Within this windbreak is another house, made of seal intestines drawn tight. The smaller one is the native's living room. This space is practically airtight, a small hole in the roof for ventilation and the door being the only openings. It is heated by whale-oil lamps that burn day and night, keeping the room at a bake-oven temperature.

"The native wears reindeer and sealskin clothing when on the outside. On entering he strips to his skin, with the exception of possibly a few beads. The guest, on entering the inner house, is greeted with gutturals of welcome and is expected to strip to his skin and make himself comfortable. Possibly a cup of tea will be offered, or a bit of walrus steak and mayhap some reindeer meat.

"A man with false teeth has no business trying to eat walrus meat of any kind. There is nothing tender about walrus. It is tough, but the Eskimo likes it and eats quite a bit of it. Seal is very tasty and the blubber is a favorite dish with Eskimos. There is something about the climate there that directs one's appetite. I could not eat blubber in this climate, but there it seemed the most natural of foods for me. Reindeer meat is very toothsome; it is tender and has a very pleasing flavor. Reindeer steak is a treat.

"After one has put in an hour or so chatting in grunts, he begins drawing on his clothing, which has dried out by this time. The missionaries have put rather a damper on this stripping-off custom of the Eskimo. They have educated him to the kimono. Now he covers his body when inside his house—that is, when he hears anyone coming. They usually have one filthy old kimono which first one, then another, will use. The spread of skin disease has increased with the introduction of this bit of civilized nicety.

"It is difficult to do a washing in the North. The Eskimo long ago solved this problem. When he strips he gives his clothing an airing; his body also has an opportunity to perspire freely, thus cleansing his skin. The method, although crude, is practical for him. During the warm period the natives move their houses to new locations, thus solving the problem of sanitation to their complete satisfaction.

"Eskimos are fond of music and have been supplied with phonographs by the traders. It is rather amusing to crawl into one of their houses and have one of them drag out an up-to-the-moment machine and start playing it.

"Most of the St. Lawrence Islanders are industrious and pay strict attention to their hunting and fishing. They are adepts at catching a whale and have little trouble handling the monster when one considers the primitive weapons and methods they still employ. Walrus hunting is good sport and we put in much time at this. The natives will search over the ice until they sight a group of walrus. It is difficult to shoot and kill them at a distance. However, out of a group of five or six they usually land three. An Eskimo is a patient individual, for he will sit beside an ice hole all day waiting for a seal to pop up. He then lays a blunt instrument over its head and drags out his prize.

"Much of our time was put in at making a map showing all the trails on the island.

"The natives put in a great deal of their time, when not hunting, at making their clothing and doing odd bits in preparation for the visits of the traders. The reindeer provides the native with his most serviceable parkis (coats), the seal provides their shoe soles, water boots and other parts of clothing. During the cold weather the native will wear two or three parkis, the underneath one with the fur turned in, while the others will be worn over and with the fur side out.

"A handsome gift article they make is a parki made out of the breasts of young auklets. Some of these garments are made out of the breasts of swans and eider duck. All Eskimos have a raincoat made out of about twelve fathoms of walrus gut. These are trimmed with the crests of Arctic parrots, making a really beautiful coat. Another luxury of the native is his fawnskin garment, which is made for his baby, while the same fur is used in the States for the covering of the American baby's mother. The thread used by the natives is made of twisted reindeer sinew.

"We left St. Lawrence Island much earlier than we expected. We had planned that our first child should be born on an island in Puget Sound that I had homesteaded. We arrived there and sent for a physician, who arrived four hours after the boy was born. The North put its mark on him, for on his left forearm is a small mark closely resembling a map of the island."

BLOOD MARKET STRONG—$50 PER PT.

New commercial exchange has for its consumers those unfortunates who are threatened with death; its producers are strong specimens of humanity who are willing to sell a quantity of their blood at intervals; and the dealers are the physicians and surgeons who arrange for and perform the operation of transfusion :: :: :: ::

A BLOOD market has been added to the many other markets of the world.

This is not an attempt to introduce a high-sounding figure of speech; the term is used advisedly and in its literal meaning.

True, it is not an organized market, as is that of the Stock and Commodity Exchange, the cotton pits, the coal industry or the grocery trade; but it none the less is a real market, possessing all the essentials of trade. The product dealt in is blood—human blood.

The prevailing price is $50 a pint. The consumers are those unfortunates who are threatened with death through sudden loss, or gradual deterioration, of their blood. The producers are those strange specimens of humanity who are willing and anxious to accept the consequences of selling a quantity of their blood at more or less regular intervals. The dealers are the doctors, who arrange for and perform the operation of blood transfusion, and otherwise act as intermediaries between consumer and producer. And finally, the hospitals and private medical laboratories are the places where the precious product actually is handled.

It is by no means a new thing, this traffic in human blood. It has been going on, at least to some extent, for two decades or more. But it is only with the comparatively recent establishment of transfusion that a safe and valuable measure of therapeutic treatment, that blood-giving has reached the point where it can be called a regular business.

At the present time, transfusions are being performed in New York City, at the rate of several thousand a year. In the majority of operations more than a pint of blood is used. Placing the total number at 4000, it can be seen readily that the annual consumption comes to more than half a thousand gallons. With the exception of a small amount given by relatives of the patients, the whole of this is contributed by professional donors. And when it is realized that each of these is only able to give slightly more than a gallon of blood a year, at the rate of about a pint a month, some conception of the extent of this extraordinary business can be gained.

It is difficult to estimate just how many men in the country are in on the blood-selling business, because there is absolutely no way to check up on them, but, judging by the total amount of blood required to supply the average yearly demand, there must be several hundred at least. Most of the hospitals, and some of the doctors who specialize in transfusion work, have lists of men who either call around at regular intervals, or wait until they are sent for. The lists usually are compiled with the aid of the advertising columns of the daily press. A want-ad is inserted such as the following:

> MEN Wtd.—At the Flower Hospital, as donors for blood transfusion; report at 9 a. m. Tuesday for preliminary examination. 450 East 64th street, New York.

For the most part these men belong to the typical down-and-out class, who having once been initiated into the secrets of the profession, are more than willing to stay at it until such time when they are of no further use, sometimes eight or ten or even twelve years. They are able to make an easy living by submitting to a transfusion every three or four weeks.

But there also are quite a number of men who only carry it on as a side line to their regular occupation, providing, of course, that that occupation is not one that requires very much energy. Usually five or six times a year is all they are willing to submit to an operation. It means a few hundred dollars of extra money and apparently does them no harm. The danger is that the ease with which they earn this amount tempts them to submit themselves a little oftener, and before they know it they have lost all ambition to work.

Then there are those who resort to a transfusion to tide them over a special period of hardship. I've known college students to help earn their way in this manner. One chap, unknown to either his classmates or professors, took as many as seven cases in as many months, but the strain was too great for him, and just before the final exams came on he broke down completely, and had to leave college. Another odd case was that of a married man with two children who admitted to me that this was his sole means of making a livelihood.

The qualifications for blood giving are quite severe. First of all, the applicant should be young, and robust, although successful transfusions have been made from donors as old as 65. Sex is immaterial, but as a business, the ranks almost wholly are confined to men. During the war, however, large numbers of women did invaluable service by attaching themselves to casualty hospitals in France and England, for transfusion purposes. The donor must be healthy physically, and free from diseases of the blood, and heart, malaria, diabetes, hemophilia, and so forth. And he must be of the same blood group as the patient to whom his blood is to be transfused.

Ordinarily the amount of blood drawn from a normal, healthy person, for a transfusion, is from 500 to 1000 cubic centimeters, the latter figure being about a pint. But there have been cases in which almost a quart was removed without any disastrous effects to the donor. In terms of weight, it is safe to remove a quarter of a person's total supply, which is always in the proximity of one-thirteenth of the total body weight. Thus almost three pounds could be taken from a man weighing 150 pounds.

The matter of blood grouping is a comparatively recent development of therapeutics. After a great deal of investigation it was ascertained that soon after birth all individuals may be grouped into four distinct classes, according to the agglutination, or clumping power of the serum of one group, to clot or dissolve the corpuscles of another group. The grouping is determined by a simple microscopic test, and the numbers I, II, III, IV assigned to the four different classifications. Blood from unlike groups is said to be "incompatible." The relative frequency of the occurrence of the groups in individuals is in the percentage proportion of 5.40.10.45, in their regular sequence. From this it can be seen that persons in groups II and IV are much more plentiful than in the other groups.

Previously to the working out of this group system, by the famous surgeon, Moss, there was no accurate way of pre-determining relative blood reactions and the result was that in many cases blood was transfused into the circulation of a patient which, instead of doing good, caused great harm, and sometimes even resulted in death to the patient. According to Lester J. Unger of New York, who is one of the foremost present-day authorities on the subject, "it is even unsafe to perform an operation relying simply on the fact that the donor and receptor are of the same group. The blood of each patient should not only be grouped, but also directly tested against that of the prospective donor." This explains why it is customary for the hospitals to keep such long lists of applicant donors. It is of primary importance that the blood of donor and receptor be carefully matched before any operation is attempted.

Numerous methods of carrying out the operation of blood transfusion have been devised and used with varying success. Generally speaking, all these may be grouped under the two main classifications of direct and indirect transfusion. Those methods in which there can be actual connection between the donor and recipient through which the blood may flow in its natural states, are referred to as direct. When the blood is first withdrawn from the donor into some kind of a receptacle, and then introduced into the circulation of the patient either in its natural state or mixed with some chemical substance to prevent clotting, the method is said to be indirect.

A simple method of direct transfusion by end to end anastomosis between the artery of the donor and the vein of the recipient.

The chief objection to the direct method of transfusion was that it was impossible to measure the quantity of blood which passed. The most common methods of transfusion as carried on today are indirect or continuous.

From the earliest times man's imagination has been stirred by the possibility of introducing healthy, vigorous blood into the circulation of one suffering from acute hemorrhage, or anaemic blood condition. The original investigators not only expected it to restore health, but even youth. They thought for a time that they had found the long-sought "universal remedy." An early English writer refers to transfusion as sort of will-o'-the-wisp of science, holding out brilliant prospects, but never seeming to be realized."

Hebraic, Egyptian and Syriac medical records many hundreds of years ago, contain fairly definite hints at a knowledge of the possibilities of transfusion. From them it can be traced down through the early history of Greece and Rome. As far back as 1492, Jewish physician is said to have attempted to save the life of Pope Innocent VIII by the injection of blood. The lives of three youths who volunteered the operation were sacrificed, but the Pope died.

The names of Richard Lower of England and Denys of France stand out as pioneers in the more recent development of the operation, the former being first to accomplish a successful transfusion experimentally, and the latter being the first to perform operation on a human being with beneficial results.

Experimentation was continued with gradually increasing success through the eighteenth century, into the nineteenth, with the names of Blundell England and Bischoff of Germany standing prominent. But it was not until the latter part of the century that the practice became an established procedure. Even then the number of operations actually successful was very small, and more often harm resulted to the patient rather than good.

It has remained for the twentieth century to overcome all the many handicaps and finally establish blood transfusion as a safe and sure remedy, deserving a high place among the few medical measures which can be referred to as truly life saving. With present-day medical profession continuing to develop and improve the methods of operation, blood transfusion not only is here to stay, but it is destined to occupy an even more important place in the surgical world.

The Princess Royal on Roller Skates

Juliana of Holland, thirteen years old, is a democratic, fun-loving girl, and popular with all classes—An interesting sketch of the youngster, today, who is destined to be Queen of the Netherlands—Fond of athletics, she plays with a big doll, too, and besides the regular course of the public schools she takes special studies, including numerous languages :: :: :: ::

PRINCESS JULIANA.
—Copyright, International.

By E. VAN LIER RIBBINK.

IT IS evening in a stately portrait gallery, spacious and deserted except for the flying figure of a young girl as she glides gracefully back and forth on a pair of new roller skates. The skates cause a strident, rumbling sound on the polished, inlaid floor, and the noise has attracted a group of servants who stand in the doorway, smiling.

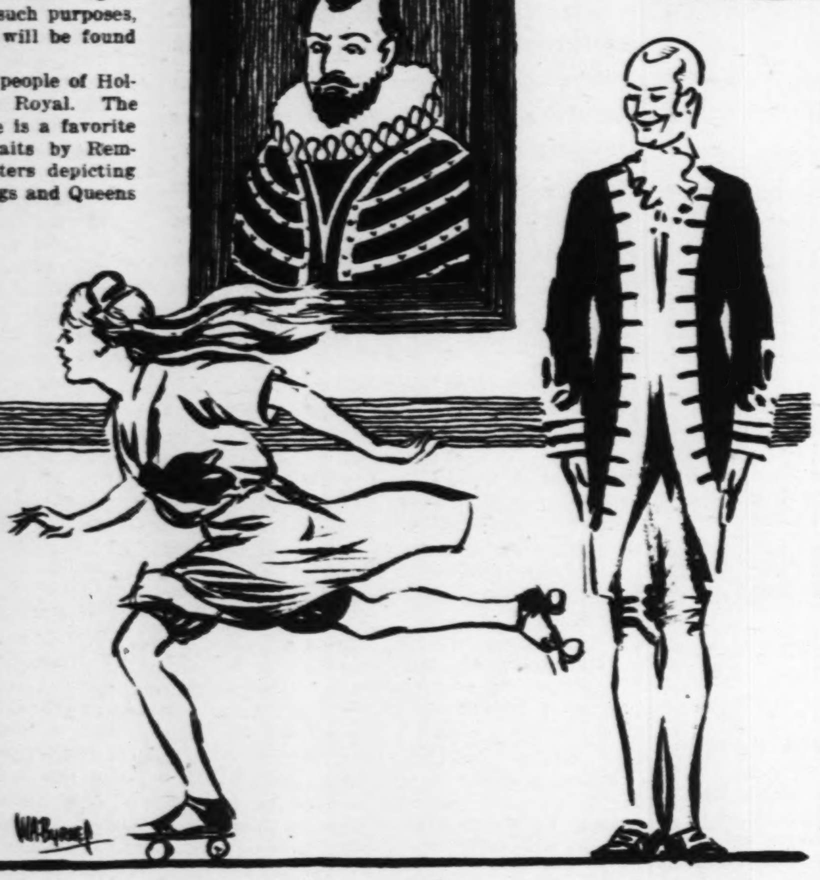
The energetic rumble of the skates has been heard by the youngster's parents, too, and they come downstairs to inquire about the unwonted racket in such a solemn apartment. The parents happen to be Queen Wilhelmina of Holland and the Prince Consort. The little girl is Princess Juliana, some day to be Queen of the Netherlands.

The lackeys step aside respectfully as the Queen and the Prince Consort approach the doorway. The royal mother and the princely father see the active figure of their daughter, who is quite unabashed by the spectators, and they smile, too.

Juliana, with a final sweep and clatter, halts before her parents and explains that the paths in the royal garden, where she plays with other Dutch children fortunate enough to be invited to court, are strewn with gravel and hence not very nice for roller skating. The Queen and the Prince Consort agree that the garden paths are not good for such purposes, but suggest that a more suitable place will be found than the gallery of ancestral portraits.

Which is one of the latest stories the people of Holland are telling about their Princess Royal. The long gallery in the palace at The Hague is a favorite place with Juliana. Hung with portraits by Rembrandt, Frans Hals and other old masters depicting the Princes, Princesses, Stadholders, Kings and Queens of the House of Orange, it might seem a rather overwhelming setting for a young girl at play. But Juliana is a striking example of the force of heredity. The facial characteristics of the Princes of Orange have been handed down through four centuries, and this merry child has the wide brow, the prominent nose and the determined chin of her great forefathers.

Juliana's tutors say that when she plays in the long gallery, she seems to be the living embodiment of all those belaced and beruffled personages, most of them dead, long ago, who stare so haughtily from their heavy gilt frames. And the night she went roller skating there, whispers palace gossip, the portrait of stern William the Silent, greatest of all Juliana's ancestors, seemed to be looking down at the frolicsome girl as if to say, "Have a good time, my dear!"



So many thrones tumbled down during the World War, and so many of the former great are cutting a sorry figure in the world today, that the general public displays less interest in the doings of royalty as a whole than ever before. But there are exceptions to the public's apathy in this matter, and the Princess Royal of Holland is one of them.

Last lineal descendent of the ancient House of Orange, she has just attained her thirteenth birthday. With blue eyes, straight, flaxen hair and a healthy child's fondness for amusements, particularly the athletic kind, she is being carefully trained for the duties of a constitutional monarch, and the Hollanders themselves are never tired of talking about her. Instead of being kept isolated, Princess Juliana attends a school which is held at the palace, with other children invited there. The studies are the same as in the public school, but in addition the Queen-to-be receives special instruction which will be useful in her future duties. As a result, Juliana is said to be quite remarkably democratic and unassuming in her demeanor.

American children would describe the Princess Royal as being a "bear" on such sports as skating, horseback riding and cycling. Like all Dutch children, Princess Juliana loves ice skating, which sport she learned when she was just 6 years old. She has several pairs of skates, made of silver, which were presented to her by the citizens of various Dutch cities which she visited on a never-to-be-forgotten tour of skating over the frozen rivers and canals.

The Princess enjoys herself most of all, however, in the summer when she goes with her parents to the royal country estate, known as "Het Loo." This beautiful palace is set in one of the finest parks in the world, originally designed and laid out by William the Third, Stadholder of Holland, King of England, and Prince of Orange.

There is a rule in the Dutch royal household that none of its members shall accept presents from private individuals. This rule is strictly adhered to, and frequently most valuable presents from the Dutch East Indies and other colonies are returned to the donors with a courteous note of thanks. Thus the Queen had to refuse several pieces of valuable jewelry produced by the famous gold and silver smiths of Java and neither could her husband, the Prince of the Netherlands, accept a private gift of a valuable Arab stallion.

The only exception made was when the Princess was a very small girl, and an old fisherman sent her the model of a fishing smack, fashioned by himself from a huge Dutch "klomp" or wooden shoe. The little Princess happened to catch a glimpse of the model as it arrived, all decorated with flags, and she begged so hard to be allowed to keep it that Queen Wilhelmina broke the rule and sent the old fisherman in the little Zuider Zee village a banknote for a hundred guilders.

But the case of presents given by entire communities or societies is different. Thus Princess Juliana has received most wonderful models of the "Boro Boedoer" and other famous East Indian temples from Java, beautiful ivory carvings such as are made by the Malays, magnificent "batiks" from Sumatra, valuable outfits of Dutch national "folk dress" and many other wonderful gifts.

Also, when former President Fallieres of France visited Holland, he gave the Princess a wonderful swan, the interior of which contained numerous toys and boxes of French bonbons. The French President and the Dutch Princess became exceedingly good friends, and Princess Juliana never has forgotten her "uncle" Fallieres as she called him.

But the most highly prized gift of all—except those of ponies and "basket" carriages from her parents—is one which still occupies a place of honor in the Queen's own apartment. This is the cradle made of rosewood which was presented to the royal couple by the citizens of the Hague before the birth of the baby Princess, and in which Juliana slept until she did not have to be rocked to sleep any more.

Princess Juliana is still a little girl at heart, even though she accompanies her mother at military maneuvers when the Queen reviews the Dutch army, and she sits on horseback, holding herself very erect as becomes a Princess of the royal blood whose forefathers were all great military leaders. For she plays every day with a splendid big doll, all dressed up in the quaint national costume of the Dutch province of Zealand, and lavishly decorated with gold ornaments and the big silver "Zeeuwsche knopen"—Zealand buttons—without which the costume of a "belle" of that province is never complete. This doll was a present some years ago from the people of Zealand province.

One of the first things the little Princess had to contend with, in the way of education, was to learn by heart all of the many high-sounding titles to which she fell heir at the moment of her birth. Thus, if she should want to introduce herself by her full name and titles, she would have to start off as follows:

"Juliana, Princess Royal of the Netherlands, Princess of Orange, Princess of Nassau, Countess of Buren, Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg, Grand Duchess of Schwerin (which two titles she inherits from her father, Prince Henry), Countess of Breda, Duchess of Guelderland, etc., etc., etc." Hard on a child to remember all those names and titles, isn't it, especially when she is so much more interested in dolls, skating, ponies and such amusements?

It is whispered around the palace that Her Highness at one time developed a decidedly plebeian taste for playing marbles in the corridors and in the great Hall of Audience itself. For, you see, she is a child first and foremost, and her inclinations to play and frolic are encouraged by both the Queen and the Prince Consort.

Young as she is, Princess Juliana already has become a skillful linguist. Besides Dutch she speaks English, German and French fluently, and receives daily lessons in these languages from various tutors. Soon she will be taking lessons in military and naval history and science, just as her mother did before her, for when Juliana becomes Queen of the Netherlands, she will likewise be the commander-in-chief of the army, and the Admiral of the Dutch navy with its great traditions of the days of Tromp and De Ruyter!

Though Princess Juliana and her parents live in the beautiful wood-embowered city of The Hague with its mellow memories of a glorious past, she makes annual visits of state to the great commercial capital of Amsterdam, that "Venice of the North," with its wide, tree-bordered canals, its great gabled buildings and its thousand-and-one bridges, and to Rotterdam, which is after Hamburg the largest port of continental Europe.

The Dutch people rather fancy the idea that maybe Juliana will not have to bestow her hand and heart upon "some foreigner," but that she may follow the recent example of Princess Mary of England and marry some Dutch nobleman of ancient lineage and fair repute. Many of the Dutch nobles trace their genealogical descent back as far and further than the Crusaders, and they feel themselves every bit as good as any foreign princeling.

It has already been openly proposed that, when she grows up, there shall be no "marriage for reasons of state" for Juliana, but that she be left free to make her own choice. Which but adds to the interest with which her career is watched by a vast number of people, both in Holland and elsewhere.

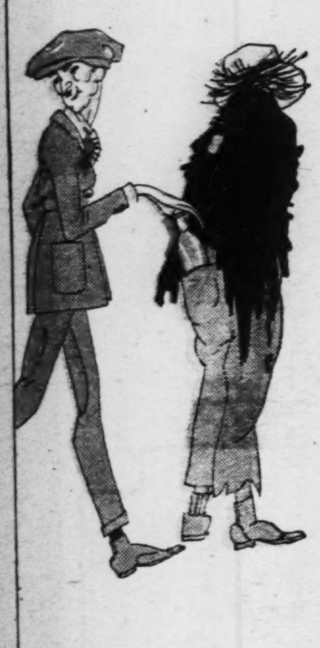
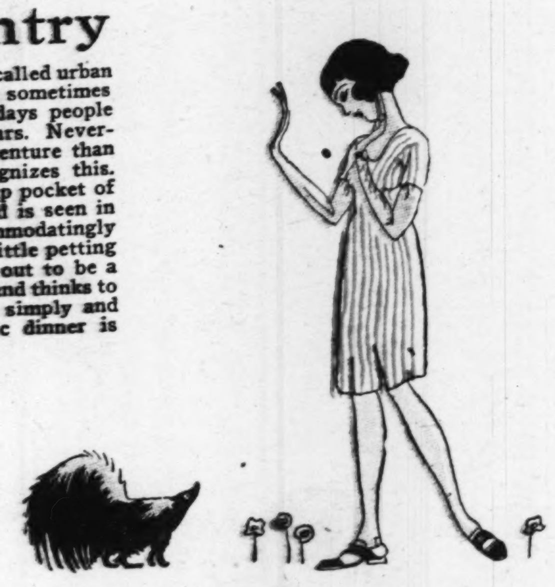
A Day in the Country





IN OLDEN days when Pan, the well-known goatfoot god, called urban dwellers to the wilding woods, they had to walk, and sometimes they stubbed their toes and got stonebruises. Nowadays people answer Pan's call by gliding to the wildwoods in motor cars. Nevertheless, the day's outing is no more insured against misadventure than was that of the stonebruise age. The merry artist recognizes this.

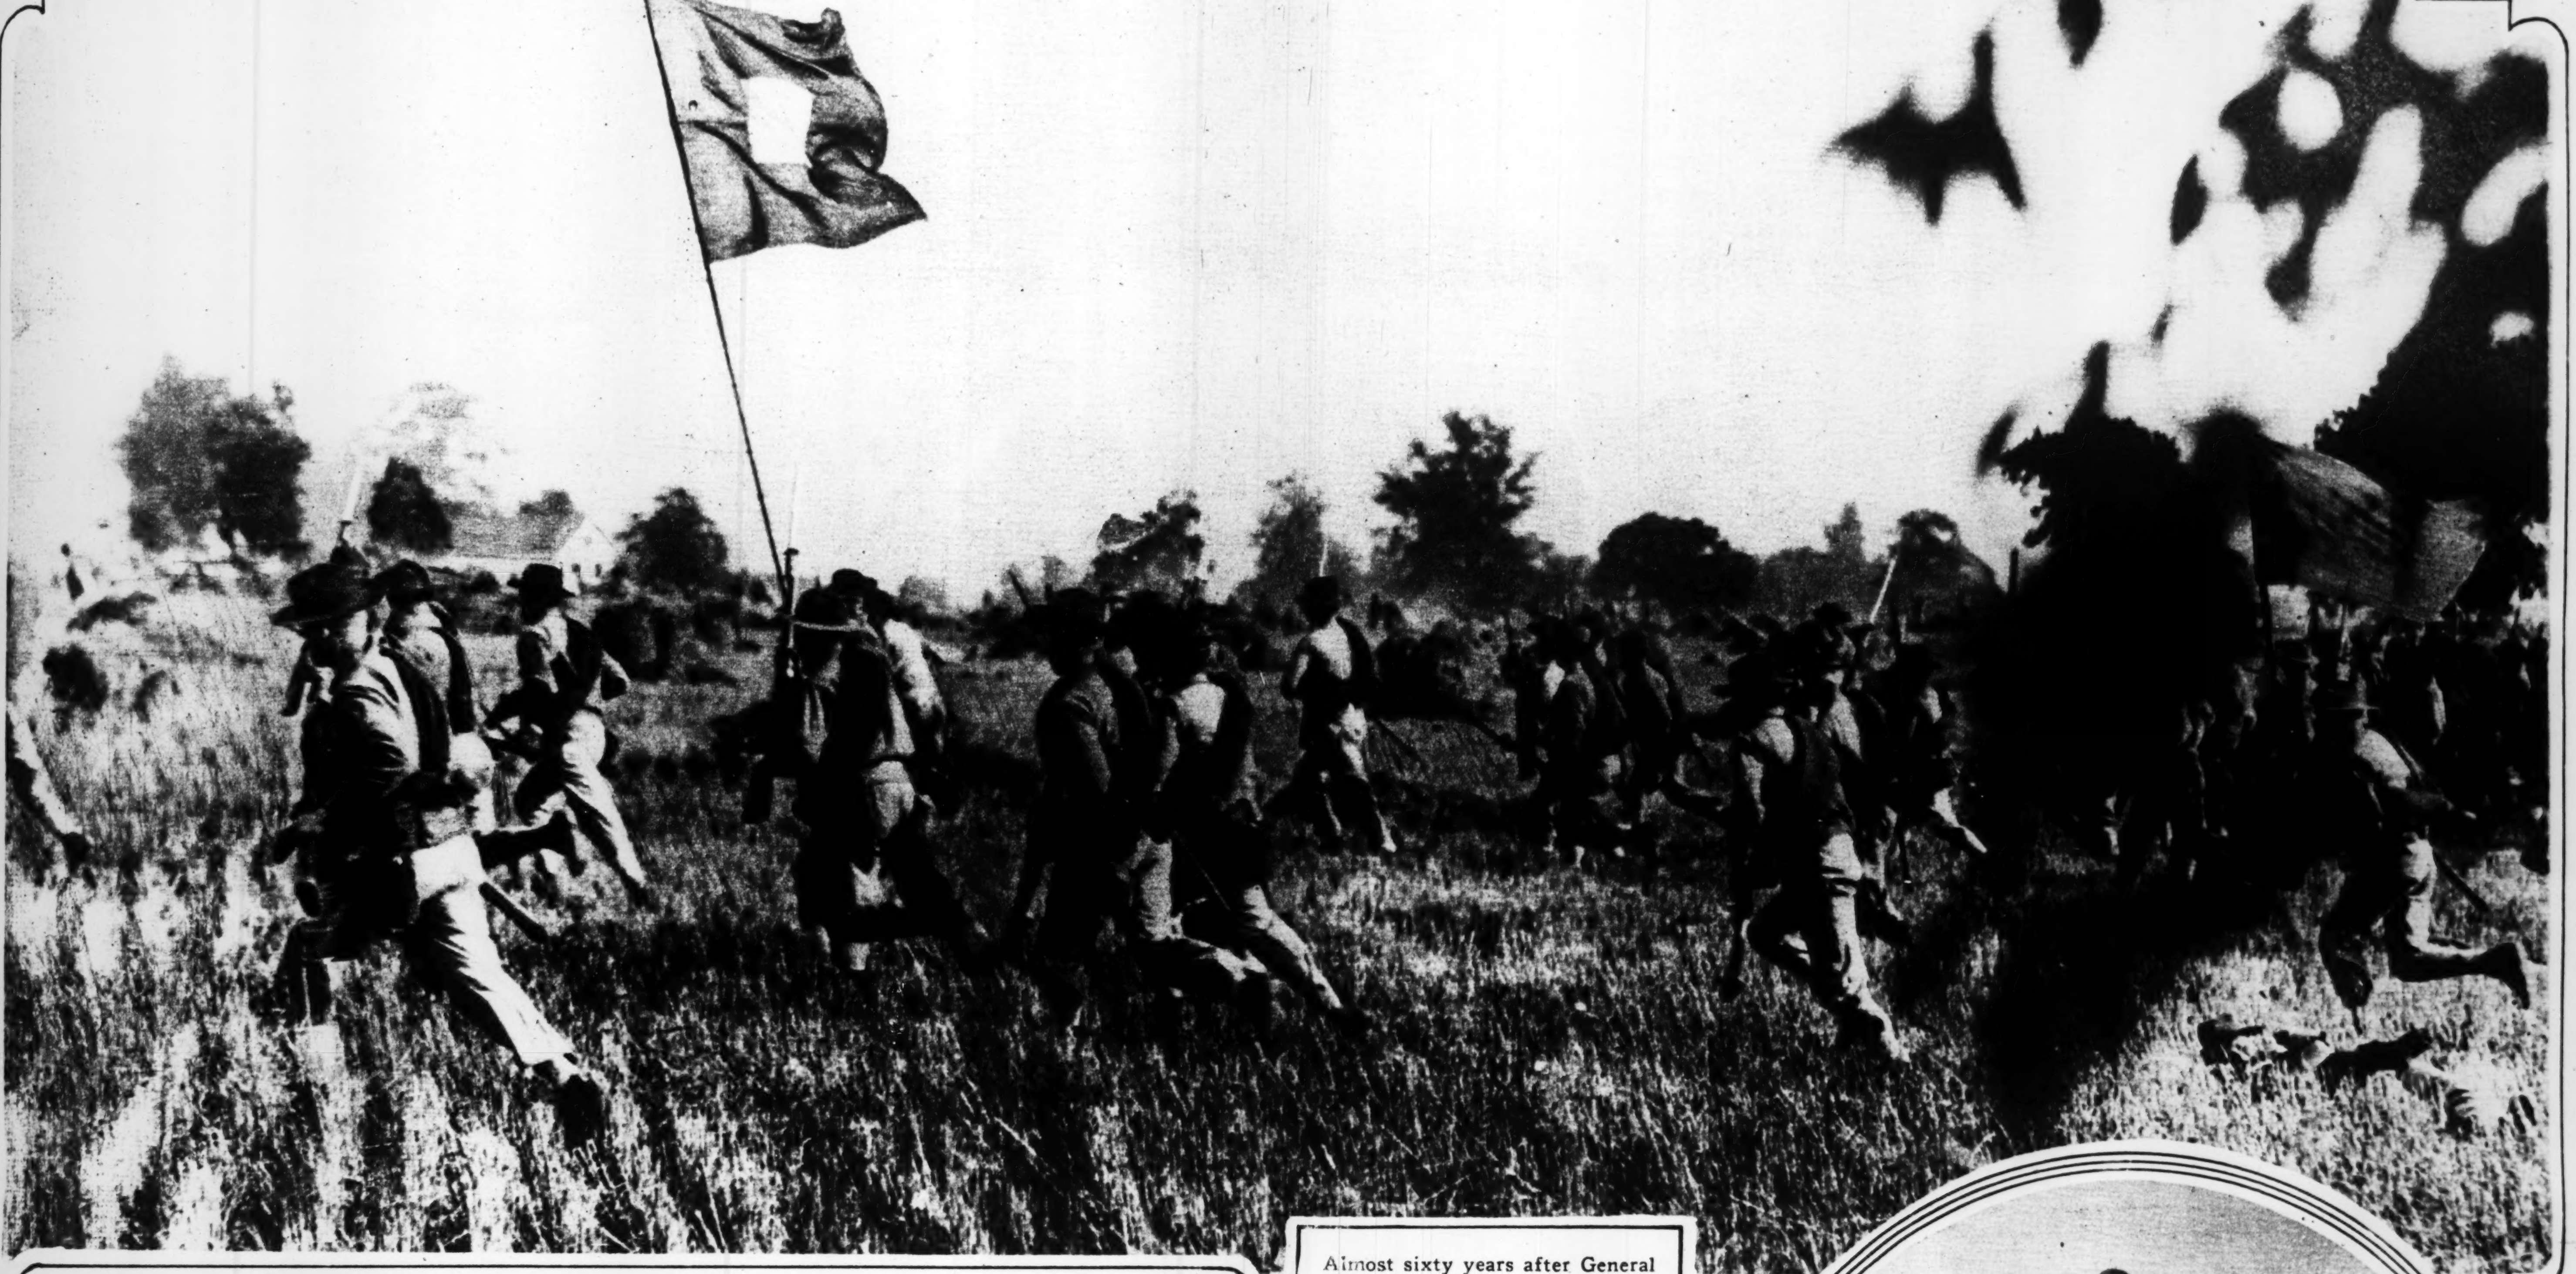
MARINES SHOW HOW PICKETT CHARGED AT GETTYSBURG



Almost sixty years after General Pickett's famous charge at Gettysburg, the scene was reproduced with historical accuracy on July 1 by 5000 officers and men of the U. S. Marine Corps, before President Harding and an enormous throng. This battle, on July 1-3, 1863, is regarded as the turning point of the Civil War. Pickett's charge was ordered by General Lee, over the protests of General Longstreet. It failed, but has gone down in history as a magnificent exhibition of courage.
